INVASION--DRAMATIC EPISODES OF INITIAL ASSAULT

HERE ARE SOME OF THE MANY OPERATIONS THAT WILL BE A PART OF THE AXIS-SMASHING ATTACK ON EUROPE

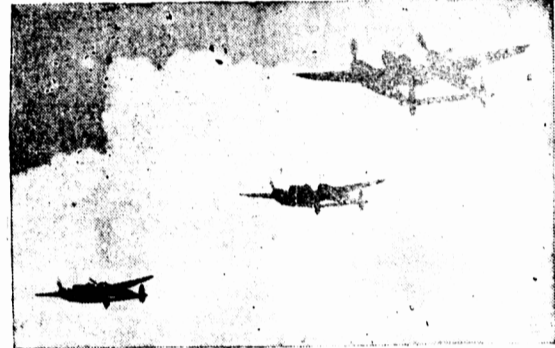

CONVOYS of troop transports and cargo ships by the hundreds carry men, machines and supplies to the shores marked for invasion. Barrage balloons protect vessels from dive bombers, while escort warships watch for submarines.

WARSHIPS guard convoys, engage the enemy and shell axis defenses.

BOMBERS blast enemy's guns, troop concentrations and installations to soften up area for attack.

FIGHTERS form an umbrella over the attacking troops to protect them from enemy air attack.

GUERRILLAS and underground agents spring to action behind lines in occupied countries.

TROOPS from the sea swarm ashore from invasion barges launched by the convoy ships. Initial landing groups establish beachheads so larger forces can land and push inland.

TROOPS from the air land behind axis lines, cut foe's communications. Paratroops come from the sky to seize fields so airborne troops, jeeps, tanks in planes and gliders may follow.

TANKS fight the big land battles, crash the enemy's defenses, knock out his armor and spearhead the advance. Jeeps, trucks, half tracs and infantry support the tank advance.

GUNS of the field artillery and other mobile weapons shell enemy positions, knock out his tanks to clear the way for our advance. Engineers fix roads, bridges as enemy retreats.

OTTAWA, June 10—Discussion on naval estimates was continued in the House of Commons yesterday. Clarence Gillis (C.C.F. Cape Breton South) said the navy organization was distinctly Canadian and its achievements did it credit. Because of the contribution she had made Canada should not be taking direction from any other part of the world. Canada should build its own economy and protect itself without blindly accepting a lead from any other quarter. Mr. Gillis said free transportation should be provided for sailors and leave so they could visit their homes in any part of Canada. All merchant marine shipmasters should keep a registration of their men so next-of-kin could be informed promptly if anything happened to these sailors. Some Canadians served aboard the merchant ships of allied nations such as the Norwegian and it was difficult to obtain information concerning them. Mr. Macdonald said he would look into the question of a device having been submitted to the R.C.N. He knew of no discrimination against the volunteer reserve and navy reserve by the permanent force. War—25 Years Ago Today

(By The Canadian Press) JUNE 11, 1918 was the day that the British Empire was attacked on a scale never before known. The German High Seas Fleet, under the command of Admiral Scheer, sailed from the Baltic coast of Germany and entered the English Channel. The British fleet, under the command of Admiral Beatty, met them in the Battle of the Juno. The British fleet was victorious, but the German fleet was not destroyed. The German fleet was scattered and many ships were damaged. The British fleet was able to force the German fleet to retreat. The German fleet was never seen again. The British fleet was able to force the German fleet to retreat. The German fleet was never seen again.

BROODER HOUSE POLICY

Poultry raisers who have purchased brooder slaves, and are eligible to apply for the bonus paid by the Provincial Department of Agriculture under the Brooder House Policy, must make application through the Department on a form supplied by the Department, not later than Saturday, June 19th. Every application must be accompanied by a receipt covering the cost of the brooder slave. Any applications received after this date will not be recognized. On account of shortage of gas and other conditions, only one trip will be made into any community for inspection purposes. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
