MORE INDUSTRIES FOR PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

"Prince Edward Island should now be the home of splendid industries and at least two-thirds of its youth should find occupation in industries instead of leaving the Island."—Dr. J. W. Robertson.

The truth of this pregnant sentence of a keen observer and wise counsellor, is apparent to all. We see across the Straits many towns that have developed industrially far beyond what our Island towns have done.

Take for instance, Moncton, which at the last census had a population considerably less than that of Charlottetown; Yarmouth and Truro with but half our numbers, or Amherst with little more than one third, yet these towns have all developed growing and prosperous industries.

Galt and Gananoque in Ontario, the first-named with about half and the second with one third the population of Charlottetown, are quite famous manufacturing centres. Smith's Falls is another Ontario town with 5,000 people. Berlin, Ont. had under 10,000 people at last census, and is a hive of industrial activity. All these towns are shipping their products — agricultural implements, carriages, buttons, suspenders and what not to Prince Edward Island.

Orillia, Ont. has shipped hundreds of carriages into this Province during the past ten years, and at the last census it had fewer than 5,000 people. Prince Edward Island farmers have sent tens of thousands of dollars to Orillia and other Ontario towns for carriages that ought to have been made here.

Our Province is small, but it requires some hundreds of thousands of pairs of boots and shoes, big and little, nearly all of which are imported, thousands of setts of horse harness, large quantities of rope and cordage, binder twine, wire fencing, stoves, grates and furnaces which ought to be manufactured in this Island. It is not creditable to our enterprise that we are sending thousands of dollars yearly to the little town of Sackville for stoves and furnaces and other thousands for like articles to Quebec and Ontario.

Stop and think why we are buyin from abroad tons of ready-made clothing, shirts, collars, cuffs, suspenders, hats and caps, skirts, blouses, rainproof coats and wearing apparel generally, that might profitably be made within our own Province. If we are somewhat handicapped in the matter of winter transportation, that ought not to prevent us manufacturing for the supply of our home wants. That very difficulty itself would put a premium upon the home made article. The same obstacles are in the way of shipping goods to the Island as of shipping goods from it.

Our people appear to have the mistaken notion that manufacturing industries cannot be maintained here at a profit. And yet coal is cheaper here than in Ontario, Quebec or New Brunswick. There is abundant capital in the savings and other banks earning but 3 per cent—millions of it — that could be profitably employed as capital for scores of industries, large and small right here in our midst.

Then think of the employment such industrial development would give—employment throughout the year, — think how that would keep our young people at home, also the money that we are now sending abroad, and the resultant advantage to our farmers from the increased home market for all that they produce, and the increased trade for our merchants in supplying the wants of the added population.

"Prince Edward Island should now be the home of splendid industries," says Dr. Robertson. Our common sense tells us that this is true. We are building up industrial towns in Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, at the expense of our own, sending them our hard-earned dollars won in the few brief months of summer on the farms and in the lobster factories, and paying also a little army of travellers and agents to sell us their products, all because we lack the pluck and enterprise to start and maintain factories of our own.

The Guardian has frequently, as our readers know, called attention to this important subject. We are glad now to be able to enforce the lesson with the weighty words of Dr. Robertson, who perhaps more than gny other man in Canada has the ear of the people of Prince Edward Island.

We deplore the continued exodus of our young men and women. The cause is to be mainly found in the want of constant, paying and varied industry at home. Nothing but industrial development can supply that want or check the continued exodus. The proof of this is found in the tens of thousands of Island-born people employed in the factories of New England.

We cannot expect all our young people to remain content to work upon the farm or in catching fish. The business of clerking and all the professions are full. In any case their varied talents demand varied callings, a field for their mechanical skill, a chance to learn the varied handicrafts, to make ready money and to rise to positions of trust and control. All such chances are now denied them at home and will be denied until we create factories of our own.

There is some unfavorable comment in regard to the selection, or more particularly the omissions, made of witnesses to give testimony before the Royal Commission at its recent meeting here. Very properly the important industry of Bruce Stewart & Co. was represented along with the railway workshops. And, as elsewhere stated, our industries are all too few. But we have a condensed milk factory, a tobacco factory, a soap factory, a boot and shoe factory, a tannery and our merchant tailors collectively employ a large number of hands, to say nothing of the dairying and lobster industries which are of very large importance and seem not to have been touched by the inquiry at all.

"Take ball cartridges, and do not hesitate to use them," was the order given by the Spanish Government to the troops sent to San Sebastian on Sunday last to preserve order. The order that was to be preserved meant the prevention of a demonstration which Spanish Roman Catholics were about to make against the Canalejas Government. We fail to see why these people should not be permitted to make a peaceful demonstration of their opinions, whether those opinions are right or wrong. Evidently the Spanish Premier, while posing as the friend of religious equality, has the spirit of intolerance and is barbaric enough to treat opposition to his Government as a capital crime. Ball cartridges to repress public opinion are not in accord with the spirit of the twentieth century.

Henry Clews & Co's circular under date of August 6 finds that nothing better than an average crop of wheat can be counted upon in the United States this year, but corn promises well. Cotton is a short crop. The iron trade, which is a sort of commercial barometer, shows production of 20 per cent below that of last year, with prices declining. Many cotton mills are idle. Business failures are increasing. Railway earnings show a gross increase, but this has been more than balanced by increase in wages and some roads report startling net losses. Along with these unpleasant facts a decided improvement in monetary affairs is reported, with the financial situation now well under control.

A New York statistician has developed a plan to save consumers some millions of dollars every year. After the manner of other reformers he proceeds to demonstrate how we are being ruined in order that it may be made clear how we can be saved from ruin. Our ruin is being wrought by the odd half cent. For instance, we buy three articles at 12½ cents each, the total being 37½ cents and the seller makes us pay 38 cents. In this he gains and we lose the half cent. It is estimated that the average family loses in this way half a cent ten times every week, or $2.60 in the year. Perhaps the loss occurs twenty times a week on an average, in which case the loss would be $5.20 a year. There are a million and a half of families in Canada, and their loss in this way is anywhere from $3,900,000 to $7,800,000 a year. The simple remedy for this ruinous condition is to have the Government issue a 2½ cent coin. Then we can give exact change and save all these millions.
