TOURIST ASSN. DELEGATES HAD CONFERENCE

C. N. R. Officials Promise Co-Operation with Maritime Provinces.

Messrs. C. McArthur, M. L. A., P. W. Clarkin and R. L. Cotton returned from Montreal last evening where they had been in conference as representatives of the Prince Edward Island Tourist Association with representatives of the Nova Scotia and New Brunswick Tourist Association and Mr. A. T. Weldon, Traffic Manager and Mr. Robertson, General Passenger Agent on behalf of the Atlantic region of the Canadian National Railways.

The officials of the railway are certainly making great efforts this year, much greater than ever before to develop and promote tourist travel for the Maritime Provinces. The object of the present conference was to arrange if possible for co-operation between the three provinces in their tourist advertising expenditures and so make a much greater and more effective presentation of the summer time attractiveness of the provinces than could be possible if the three provinces make their advertising expenditures independently.

To help promote such a co-operative and progressive plan the railway management have agreed to make a special expenditure of $5,000, apart altogether from and additional to their own extensive advertising plans—a special expenditure in the purchase of newspapers or magazine space, the publications to be chosen by and the copy supplied by representatives of the three Provincial Tourist Associations working in conjunction with the advertising agent of the Atlantic region.

At the conference Colonel Montgomery of the Furness Withy line, Mr. Macdonald of the Halifax Hotel and Mr. Saunders, secretary of the Halifax Board of Trade represented the Nova Scotia tourist interests and Mr. Avar of Sackville president of the New Brunswick Tourist Association represented New Brunswick.

China and Soviet Russia Almost at Breaking Point

LONDON, March 20.—The Chinese Government has ordered the Soviet envoy in Peking, L. M. Karakhan, to quit China, says a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Peking. This action was taken, the dispatch adds, because Mr. Karakhan's notes to the Chinese Foreign Office were insulting one of them amounting to an ultimatum, it giving China three days to recognize the Soviet Government. The correspondent says the situation is tense.

LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY

LEGISLATIVE CHAMBER, THURSDAY

The first motion, to-day, was made by the Leader of the Government. It introduced a bill to further amend the Public Schools Act, 1920. It was read a first time.

Hon. Mr. Myers then submitted the Annual Report of the Department of Agriculture. This report sets forth that "rural science work has maintained a reliable part of the agricultural work through this branch in connection with 'Princes of Wales College and throughout the Province in the form of School Fairs.' During the early fall fifty School Fairs were held in practically every part of the province. Live Stock was shown including calves, pigs, poultry and lambs. In many cases the exhibit was a marked improvement over previous years commending the interest of the older people of the community. The Women's Institute Branch, it is stated in the report, has maintained an active interest in the various lines of its work. Through the Institute branches much of the community enterprise is being most favorably encouraged. The branches are encouraged in as many cases as possible to associate themselves with the School Fairs and other clubs, where encouragement and direction are needed from mature sources and "the result has proven very beneficial."

It is interesting to note that "The operation of the Brick and Tile Plant, at Richmond, which has been under the direction of this department for the past three seasons has proved that the quality of Island products can be taken as a successful competitor with those of outside sources. During the past season a large quantity of brick were supplied to build the magnificent chapel that is being erected at Egmont Bay. The quality has been pronounced as excellent by all those who were interested in this work. Owing to the crop conditions and the prices of farm products."

PRINCE INJURED ONCE MORE

Just as he recovered from a broken shoulder blade, the Prince of Wales suffered from another fall badly out about the face, and may carry a permanent scar over one eyebrow as a result. The accident has raised a storm of protest in Britain over his constant exposure to risk. The public is divided between a desire to prevent him taking further risks, and a keen admiration of his daring. The picture shows him in action at polo, another of his favorite sports.

ESCAPED FROM CAMP INFECTED BY SMALLPOX

Islanders From Maine Lumberwoods Will Be Stopped at Tormentine if Discovered—Full Precautions Being Taken to Safeguard the Province.

Notification has been received by Dr. J. S. Jenkins, Provincial Health Officer, from the chief medical officer of the State of Maine, that twelve men belonging to Prince Edward Island ran away from the smallpox infested camp near Houlton four days ago, their disappearance having only been discovered on Wednesday.

An emergency meeting of the Provincial Board of Health was held yesterday afternoon and steps taken to meet any danger that may arise.

Yesterday's reports from Tormentine were that none of the suspects were on the trains coming to the Island. Should these men be apprehended, a railway building has been offered at Tormentine by Mr. Grady, Superintendent of the C. N. R. office here in which to quarantine them.

Dr. J. S. Jenkins is leaving this morning to inspect the building and to make arrangements both at Tormentine and Borden for any eventualities. He is placing on the car ferry a medical officer who will remain there as long as there is considered to be any danger. Every effort will be made to prevent any case or contact entering the Province.

People are warned in the country districts that they should be careful about associating with men who have returned from the Maine lumber woods. The particular camp from which the men broke quarantine is 100 miles north of Bangor and 35 miles west of Houlton. The information of their escape was received by the Provincial Health Officer by telephone, but he was unable at that time to secure the Islanders' addresses. The names of the Island men are as follows:

Fred Nelligan, Martin Stewart, Dana McPherson, John McLeod, Ed. and that his re-establishment will be permanent.

MAKING AND BREAKING CONNECTIONS

Many Experiences, but One Law

In mechanics power depends on good connections. A visit to any great machine shop makes that clear. There must be good connections in two directions—toward the source of power, and outward for use. The same law holds true in spiritual power as in mechanical. There must be good connections.

These nights we have been together a few things have seemed clear. We have seen that from the standpoint of our lives there is need of power, as well as from the standpoint of the Master's use of us among others. Jesus promised and insisted words make plan the necessity of our having power to His plan for us is not to fail. His words about the price of power have set many of us to doing some honest thinking and heart-searching. And we have gotten some suggestion, too, of the meaning of that word power, and to the personality back of the word.

To-night I want to talk with you a little about how to secure good connections between the source of power and the channel through which it is to flow out to others; and, once secured, how to preserve the connections unbroken.

It has been one of the peculiar characteristics of recent years in religious circles that much has been spoken and written about the Holy Spirit. Thousands of persons have been led into a clearer understanding of His personality and mission, and into intimate relationship with Himself. And yet, may I say frankly, that I read much and listened to much without being able to get a simple workable understanding of how I was to receive the much-talked-of baptism of power. That may quite likely have been due to my own weakness of comprehension. But whatever the cause, my failing to understand led to a rather careful study of the old Book itself until—somewhat clearer light has come. And now

A DAILY TALK ON ADVERTISING

By Scammon Lockwood

THE LETTER

Jumping Josephat! What a lot of terrible business letters are sent through the mail! And probably those showing the very lowest average are letters written by people seeking employment—letters written in answer to want ads or letters written to business houses inquiring about a rumored opening or an actual opening. But it doesn't matter much what the particular purpose of a letter is; if it is designed to produce action on the part of the recipient, if you are asking a person to buy something, or to do something, your letter is a piece of advertising, and the rules or good advertising ought to apply to it just as to any other piece of advertising. It has been my observation that the most common fault of the inexperienced letter writer is to start his or her letter by telling what he or she isn't. I remember not long ago inserting an advertisement of a certain position which we had open and stating in the advertisement that a college graduate was required. It seems incredible and yet it is true that more than half of the replies started out by telling us that they were not college graduates. Now it seems to me that if I were replying to an advertisement about the last thing I'd tell the advertiser would be that I didn't fit his requirements. If I thought that I could get away with the job in spite of the fact that I didn't possess a college education, I certainly wouldn't tell what my chief defect was; or, if I felt that it was necessary to mention it, I'd tuck it away in a little paragraph somewhere in the middle or end of the letter or in a postscript where I'd hope to goodness that the advertiser wouldn't see it. MISS AGNES MACPHAIL, M.P.

She denounces the apathy of church people towards prohibition and fears that the O. T. A. may be defeated by a referendum in Ontario, because temperance people have slackened their vigilance. However, she predicts that the conditions which will follow the track of more liberal sale of liquor will swing the population back strongly in favor of prohibition, and that its re-establishment will be permanent.
