While James McMillan of High River, Alta., farmer resident of Vidalebank was working in the field the horses took fright. Mr. McMillan caught them by the head but they reared and threw him under their feet. The animals then started forward, drawing the disc harrows to which they were attached, entirely over Mr. McMillan's body. He was badly bruised and injured about the body, but is now doing well.

Some misunderstanding has been prevalent about the change of program at New Wonderland. Whether purposely or otherwise, persons have been spreading reports that only alternate nights are pictures shown there, and that music is the order for the remaining ones. This is entirely untrue, for there is a change of program every evening, a change of pictures being on Monday; of illustrated songs on Tuesday; and so on to the end of the week. Thus there is always something new and attractive, and the management caution the originators of these reports which they know are circulated to injure the house, that the utmost rigor of the law will be resorted to, if they persist in their underhand attempts to do harm. New Wonderland means to cater to the best patrons and as the persons who are spreading the reports are known, there is no difficulty in stopping their malicious interference, and perhaps at the same time ridding the community of mischief makers which are no benefit to it. A word to the wise should be sufficient.
