Islander Writes From Rhode Island 116 Years Ago

Published recently in these columns was a letter, written in 1822 from Rhode Island by Mr. James D. Hazard, publisher of Prince Edward Island's first newspaper...

Dear Brother: I wrote Mr. Davies a few days since, answering several questions which he suggested, and informing him that I should not return this fall, for sundry reasons therein stated...

I received a letter from Cousin Charlotte Rind, who informs me that William has been married nearly four years since. His wife died last April of a pulmonary complaint, and left an infant, of which she has the charge.

Let me know whether Rhode has got his woollen factory under way and how it is likely to succeed, also how the printing goes on, and what is said about me. Has the House Assembly met since we have been away?

I must now commence scolding you for not writing. You would almost make me believe you were not capable, but that I would not be willing to suppose, as from the reading and practice you must have had during the time I have been away, have made considerable proficiency. I therefore expect this letter will be immediately answered.

I have just finished the Laws, and have proceeded on a volume of Manuscript Sermons. I have the strongest confidence and respect of Messrs. Miller and Hutchins, who treat me with marked attention.

Invitations to their houses. They do not look upon a man here, any the less, for following his business, tho' it should be mechanical, if he bears a good character, dresses decently and has good introduction, he is sure to be noticed.

I occasionally make from $10.00 to $11.00 per week, but average about $8.00. I am obliged to dress not avoid in the company which I keep, therefore, I cannot say by as I was at a party a few evenings since at Mrs. Nightingale's, which was very large, splendid and grand. I happened, unluckily, to have a very severe headache "Miss Greene" and I did not enjoy myself as well as I should have otherwise done. The charms drew me thither, their company was irresistible.

I may and I may not, return with a wife, it will depend upon circumstances, that I can get one to please me in every respect. I have made no positive bargain yet.

though I have frequent pleasure of the company of several very fine ladies, not fine in apparel, etc. but in accomplishments and housewifery etc. If I take the pains and give the preference to the Providence ladies, I trust I shall not be deceived.

October 15th: must from the affection I have for you as a knowledge and by every means possible you to the pursuit of knowledge. You have good natural abilities, then why not cultivate them? Many idle hours of frivolous waste, would if well employed be paying you principal and interest. I wish to see you a dole of science, neglecting social duties and innocent pleasures; but then those maybe regarded and the greater objects at the same time properly attended to.

The nine o'clock bell has rung a warning for all honest citizens to be at home. (I am writing in the Counties Room). There are very good regulations in Providence. The bell rings at sunrise for to commence work, again at twelve for dinner and at nine at night. The principal topic of my letter was an alarm of fire. I have hardly got the din of the bells, rattling of the engine and vociferations of the Cry Fire out of my ears, it was nothing of consequence.

I will resume my admonitions to you because it is a subject that so deeply interests me. I have such a fervent desire to see you advance severance, resolution and industry. Fire out of my ears, it was nothing of consequence.

What is a man without character, no confidence is placed in him, no respect reposed, but all his actions suspected of having an evil design. He has no regard for himself, he cannot have any for others, therefore avoid such as you would be reptile. I would in regard to politeness, a good breeding etc. advise you to read Chesterfield's advice to his son. For specimens of perseverance, industry and economy.

The Life of Franklin, who you will perceive was nothing more than a printer's boy. Read the Histories of England, Rome, Greece, etc. etc. by them for will learn the eminent modes of Government, the various extents curiosities, etc. with a deal of other useful matter. As you advance you will take a relish in reading which history will develop to you. How much better would you feel how much more respected, than if you had been associating with some low and ignorant horse jockey or trickster fellow, from whose conversation or manners, no edification was to be derived. You do not know what you may be called upon to do, if you are competent, you may be raised to some high office.
