

MORTGAGE SALE Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

To be sold by Public Auction, at the Court House, in Charlottetown in Queens County, in Prince Edward Island, on Tuesday, the 13th day of February, A. D. 1924, at the hour of twelve o'clock noon, ALL THAT parcel of land, situate on Lot Forty-eight, in Queens County, bounded and described as follows:—Commencing at the eastern boundary of lands now or formerly in possession of Nicholas Robertson, on the boundary line of Townships Forty-eight and Forty-nine, and running from thence east along said boundary line through chains and eighteen links, and extending north from those two points by parallel lines for the distance of seventy-six chains, and containing by estimation ninety-two and one-half (92 1/2) acres of land a little more or less, saving and excepting thereout the Railroad and Public Road expropriation, and being the land described in an Indenture of Lease dated the 15th November, 1839, between the Assignees of the Estate of Peter Desbrisay Stewart deceased and Peter Ballum, also in a Deed from the Commissioner of Public Lands to William Ballem dated 25th October, 1833.

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITH-OUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu." 40c and 75c, at all druggists. The Musterole Co. of Canada, Ltd., Montreal.

MORTGAGE SALE

There will be sold by Public Auction on Saturday the twenty-third day of February, A. D. 1924 at the hour of eleven o'clock in the forenoon in front of the Court House in Souris in King's County in Prince Edward Island ALL THAT TRACT piece or parcel of land situate lying and being on Lot or Township Number Forty-five in King's County in Prince Edward Island, bounded and described as follows that is to say, Bounded on the North by the Greenvale Road; on the East by land in possession of Daniel Gregory; on the South by the St. Catherine's Road and on the West by land in possession of John Gregory containing Fifty-three acres of land a little more or less.

The above sale is made under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in an Indenture of Mortgage bearing date the seventh day of January, A. D. 1910 made between William Hennessey of St. Catherine's in King's County in Prince Edward Island, Farmer and Rosalie Hennessey his wife of the one part and Matthew & McLean, Limited, a body corporate having its Head Office at Souris in King's County in Prince Edward Island, of the other part default having been made in the payment of the principal and interest secured thereby. For further particulars apply to the Office of Arthur F. McQuaid, Solicitor, Souris, P. E. I. Dated this nineteenth day of January, A. D. 1924. MATTHEW & McLEAN, LIMITED Mortgagee 1112-122-Tue.41.

WOOD SALE

We will sell for Mr. Albert Hyde on his farm, Cornwall, on Wednesday, January 30th at 2 o'clock p. m., a quantity of lumber, comprised of soft wood, logs and scantling. All in lots to suit purchaser. Terms at sale. BENJ. CARTER & SON Auctioneer 1181-126-31.

For Fire Insurance Consult H. M. SIMPSON 156 Richmond Street Phone 369-J.

FOR SALE

The Sims Packing Co., Limited, Pork Packing Plant Charlottetown.

We offer for sale by Public Auction on premises the property, brick building, plant and office fixtures under instruction of the Inspectors of the Estate of the Sims Packing Co., Ltd., on Thursday noon, January 31st 1924. This Pork Packing Plant is in first class condition and ready for Pork Packing.

THE EASTERN TRUST CO. Trustee

BENJ. CARTER & SON, Auctioneers

Published by arrangement with Associated First National Pictures, Inc. Watch for the screen version produced by Frank Lloyd with Corlaine Griffith as Coquette Zattiany.

SYNOPSIS All New York society is talking of the beautiful young woman who has been seen at every first night performance recently. She is said to be the image of Mary Ogden, a belle of thirty years ago who had married a Count Zattiany; but all attempts to establish her identity prove futile. Clavering, a newspaper columnist, finally manages to meet her—and they immediately fall in love. He asked her to marry him and this finally forces her to reveal her identity. She herself is Mary Ogden, her youth restored by the famous Steiner gland operation.

To Clavering she tells the whole story—of her unhappy marriage, her subsequent love affairs abroad, her husband's death, her work and his toll of her health, and finally of the operation in Vienna which had brought back her youth, of body if not of mind. Clavering is shocked at the revelation, but his love is undiminished. He wants her to marry him immediately, but she finally consents to wait two months. Meanwhile, he settles down to writing a play, while Mary enters again into the social life of which she had been a leader in her youth. The papers are full of her story and she becomes quite the rage.

Her popularity among the men, however, arouses the resentment of the younger women, those of her own apparent age, and they take the occasion of one of her dinner parties to manifest their hostility.

(Continued) LUI

When the men returned from their fishing trip at six o'clock they saw several of the women on the lake, but there was no one in the living room. Clavering tapped at Mr. Dinwiddie's door, but as there was no answer, concluded that he and Mary had not yet returned from Huntersville. He was too desirous of a bath and clean clothes, however, to feel more than a fleeting disappointment, and it was not until his return to his room that he saw a letter lying on the table.

It was addressed in Mary's handwriting, and he scanned it at an astonishment for a second, then tore it open. It was dated "Huntersville, Monday afternoon," and it read:

"Dear Lee, Mr. Dinwiddie will tell you that unforeseen circumstances have arisen which compel me to go to New York for a few days. It is excessively annoying, but unavoidable, and I do not ask you to follow me as I should hardly be able to see anything of you. If there is a prospect of being detained it will not be worth while to return and I'll let you know at once—on Thursday night by telephone; and then I hope you will not wait for the others, but join me here. Indeed, dear Lee, I wish this need not have happened but at least we had three days. M."

Clavering read this letter twice, hardly comprehending its purport. She made no mention of Judge Trent. The whole thing was ambiguous, curt. A full explanation was his right; moreover it was the reverse of a love letter. Even its phrases of regret were formal. Something was wrong. He put on his clothes hurriedly in order to go in search of Dinwiddie, but before he had finished he heard a sound in the next room and opened the connecting door unceremoniously. Mr. Dinwiddie braced himself as he saw Clavering's set face. "Too bad," he muttered, but Clavering cut him short.

"I suppose I can trust you, Din, but I've seen plainly that you don't want me to marry her." "That is true enough. I want nothing less—for your sake; and Hohenbauer would be a far more suitable match for her. But I don't believe you even question my faith." "No. I don't. You're a brick, Din. But I'm unspeakably worried—almost terrified. I have never felt that I really knew her. She may have only imagined—but that is impossible! How in God's name am I to sit around here for three days and twiddle my thumbs?" "Don't. Take one of the men and go off on a three days' tramp. Climb Mount Moose. That will give you no chance to think. All your thinking will be in your muscles."

"And suppose she should return—by telegraph she is to do her?" "If she returns and finds you and gone it'll serve her right. And she won't telegraph before Thursday, if she's going to Washington. Now take my advice and don't be a fool." Clavering shrugged his shoulders, but he set his lips. "Very well. I won't follow her. Nor will I forgive her in a hurry, either." (To be Continued.)

Who woees sleep must have an untroubled heart. He who keeps off the ice will not slip through. His heart cannot be pure whose tongue is not clean.

ANNUAL MEETING The Annual General Meeting of the John Agnew Fur Farms, Ltd., will be held in the Board of Trade Rooms on Tuesday evening, January 29th at eight o'clock. No business will be transacted at this meeting as it is the intention to postpone the meeting until Tuesday evening, March 26th.

ed to a pert but becoming angle. Amy before her party was a hard working little housewife who made dainty sandwiches with amazing quickness and deftly arranged the inexpensive family possessions so the house looked rather well. Amy, when the party was in full swing, was a slim little figure in a dress much too sophisticated for her, a child glancing in "dressing up," having a glorious time at her own party and looking exceedingly sweet and young and innocently when she smoked a cigarette.

There was Dave, and Mark—Adam Arnold, of course, "The Tweedle Sisters, Dum and Dee," a dancing act from the vaudeville circuit, consisting of two girls who had met three weeks before when the "act" went on and made an immediate hit—there was Dick who had been around three times a week ever since the Talbot's returned from the country, and the one guest Amy was not glad to see—a little brunette with noisy spirits, whom Arnold was suspected of liking too much.

"She sets the pace at every party," Mark whispered to Dave while the little brunette was burlesquing the tragedy queen of the current season.

"She always spurs on Aimee, who isn't going to let any mere black eyed chit get ahead of her," Dave agreed. "Some pace too! I'll bet on the black one."

Mark laughed, watching the extravagant gestures of the girl, and glancing across the room at Amy. Amy concealed her dislike by being particularly sweet to her guest—but when she had her doing "stunts" she slipped onto the couch by Adam—who put a possessive hand over hers.

The party went on—Amy danced, and Mark did an imitation of her dance which made them roar. After the shows were out some others came in, and sat on the floor when the chairs ran out, and made more sandwiches and laughed and smoked and flirted. One man sang the song that was to be "plugged" hardest at a new show opening the following week, and they made a mock court finally, with Adam as king in a crown from silver paper.

Adam had to choose his queen blindfold—there was still more noise until some long suffering neighbor on the floor below hammered on the steam pipes and the party hushed and giggled.

"We'll all bundle into my car and Mark's and finish the party at my house," Adam declared, enjoying his paper crown and position in the party too much to want to stop.

Luther excused himself and went to bed—Mrs. Talbot went along on a courtesy invitation. But she was ed to a pert but becoming angle. Amy before her party was a hard working little housewife who made dainty sandwiches with amazing quickness and deftly arranged the inexpensive family possessions so the house looked rather well. Amy, when the party was in full swing, was a slim little figure in a dress much too sophisticated for her, a child glancing in "dressing up," having a glorious time at her own party and looking exceedingly sweet and young and innocently when she smoked a cigarette.

There was Dave, and Mark—Adam Arnold, of course, "The Tweedle Sisters, Dum and Dee," a dancing act from the vaudeville circuit, consisting of two girls who had met three weeks before when the "act" went on and made an immediate hit—there was Dick who had been around three times a week ever since the Talbot's returned from the country, and the one guest Amy was not glad to see—a little brunette with noisy spirits, whom Arnold was suspected of liking too much.

"She sets the pace at every party," Mark whispered to Dave while the little brunette was burlesquing the tragedy queen of the current season.

"She always spurs on Aimee, who isn't going to let any mere black eyed chit get ahead of her," Dave agreed. "Some pace too! I'll bet on the black one."

Mark laughed, watching the extravagant gestures of the girl, and glancing across the room at Amy. Amy concealed her dislike by being particularly sweet to her guest—but when she had her doing "stunts" she slipped onto the couch by Adam—who put a possessive hand over hers.

The party went on—Amy danced, and Mark did an imitation of her dance which made them roar. After the shows were out some others came in, and sat on the floor when the chairs ran out, and made more sandwiches and laughed and smoked and flirted. One man sang the song that was to be "plugged" hardest at a new show opening the following week, and they made a mock court finally, with Adam as king in a crown from silver paper.

Adam had to choose his queen blindfold—there was still more noise until some long suffering neighbor on the floor below hammered on the steam pipes and the party hushed and giggled.

"We'll all bundle into my car and Mark's and finish the party at my house," Adam declared, enjoying his paper crown and position in the party too much to want to stop.

Luther excused himself and went to bed—Mrs. Talbot went along on a courtesy invitation. But she was ed to a pert but becoming angle. Amy before her party was a hard working little housewife who made dainty sandwiches with amazing quickness and deftly arranged the inexpensive family possessions so the house looked rather well. Amy, when the party was in full swing, was a slim little figure in a dress much too sophisticated for her, a child glancing in "dressing up," having a glorious time at her own party and looking exceedingly sweet and young and innocently when she smoked a cigarette.

There was Dave, and Mark—Adam Arnold, of course, "The Tweedle Sisters, Dum and Dee," a dancing act from the vaudeville circuit, consisting of two girls who had met three weeks before when the "act" went on and made an immediate hit—there was Dick who had been around three times a week ever since the Talbot's returned from the country, and the one guest Amy was not glad to see—a little brunette with noisy spirits, whom Arnold was suspected of liking too much.

"She sets the pace at every party," Mark whispered to Dave while the little brunette was burlesquing the tragedy queen of the current season.

"She always spurs on Aimee, who isn't going to let any mere black eyed chit get ahead of her," Dave agreed. "Some pace too! I'll bet on the black one."

Mark laughed, watching the extravagant gestures of the girl, and glancing across the room at Amy. Amy concealed her dislike by being particularly sweet to her guest—but when she had her doing "stunts" she slipped onto the couch by Adam—who put a possessive hand over hers.

CHASE & SANBORN'S SEAL BRAND COFFEE IS FIRST FAVORITE Sold only in 1/2 and 1 lb. airtight tins. Whole, ground or fine ground for Triculator or Percolator use. CHASE & SANBORN, MONTREAL

no longer considered "that old lady" someone the young people had to be nice to when they couldn't get out of it. She did not join in the party, but she was no longer a hostile outsider who made them uncomfortable. They really didn't mind having her along at all, as they put it.

In Arnold's big house they could make as much noise as they wanted. There was his grand piano to play on, his big drawing room to dance in, and more and more things to eat. Billadford, he pursued his "queen." The "Dee" sister pushed Amy into his arms, and an imitation Italian antique chair was declared the throne.

Adam became intoxicated with the idea of being dramatic. "Ladies and gentlemen, behold my queen—the queen of—or—well, I don't know what. And I might as well announce now that she's promised to be my—or—queen—the is, this is the best time I can think of to make public our engagement!"

A hush—one girl's black eyes turned blacker yet and she bit her lips till they hurt. One chubby faced boy felt the world go out like an extinguished candle. One old lady felt her heart stop, and something say, "It's done, it's over, they're gone." And a tumult of applause!

Tomorrow: Being Engaged.

If you walk on a tight rope, you'll need a balancing pole.

Fretting cares make gray hairs.

If misfortune comes, she brings along the bravest virtues.

By sorrow of heart the spirit is broken.

Were everyone to sweep before his own house, every street would be clean.

Respectfully yours, JOHN MCKENNA 1216-129-tts,td.

NOTICE To the electors of the City of Charlottetown. Ladies and Gentlemen: I intend to nominate myself a candidate for Mayor at the City Election to be held this year on the 13th of February.

With a record of twelve years as your representative in different branches of the civic government; six years as City Commissioner and six years as Commissioner of Sewers and Water Supply, I feel that I am justified in seeking, for a term, the highest civic office in the gift of the citizens.

Should you do me the honor of electing me I shall endeavor in the future, as I have done in the past, to respect the confidence placed in me and to give my support to a moderate policy of improvements in all civic Departments.

As it will be impossible for me to call upon every elector I take this opportunity of thanking you for your generous support you have given me in past elections and of soliciting your votes in the present campaign.

Respectfully yours, JOHN MCKENNA 1216-129-tts,td.

OLD THINGS NEW

Sweaters Waists Draperies Skirts Dresses Gingham Coats Kimonos Stockings

Diamond Dyes Each 15-cent package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint any old, worn, faded thing new, even if she has never dyed before. Choose any color at drug store.

The Middle Ground

By Marion Rubincam

AMY'S PARTY

Chapter 88

Once home, she found herself too busy to think about anything but the party that Amy was giving that night. Amy was sure she could be home that afternoon, to help make the arrangements herself—the mother got in to a dark flat, without even the first preparation for dinner, and a note from Amy that a special rehearsal had been called and she would be back by seven.

She pulled a big apron over her street dress, silently giving thanks for the convenience of the city that supplied her with ready cooked meals when necessary. Soup and a vegetable and dessert came out of cans, and while the potatoes boiled she ran around the corner for a cake.

Amy came in, a slim well tailored figure in her new tan covert cloth suit with a beaver collar that rolled up to her nice little nose, and made her brown eyes prettier than even. A brown beaver hat showed off her face and she looked to perfection. Amy, under the Clair's tutoring, had learned the art of dressing well on a small income. Her one suit she spent all her money on, her evening dresses she made up cleverly from odds and ends out of sales.

Amy on the street was trig, self-possessed, smart, her little nose tilted

CIVIC ELECTION

In pursuance of an Act of the Legislature of the Province of Prince Edward Island, made and passed in the Third year of the reign of His Majesty King Edward VII., Chapter 17, intitled "An Act to consolidate and amend the several Acts incorporating the City of Charlottetown," and all Acts in amendment thereof, I do hereby give PUBLIC NOTICE that an Election of a Mayor for the said City, and of one person to serve as a Common Councilman in the City of Charlottetown, and of two persons to serve as Common Councilmen in the Ward Number One, and of three persons to serve as Common Councilmen in the Ward Number Two, and of three persons to serve as Common Councilmen in the Ward Number Three, and of three persons to serve as Common Councilmen in the Ward Number Four, and of three persons to serve as Common Councilmen in the Ward Number Five, shall be held on the Thirteenth day of February, A. D. 1924.

For Ward Number One One Councillor For Ward Number Two One Councillor For Ward Number Three One Councillor For Ward Number Four Two Councillors For Ward Number Five Three Councillors

WILL BE HELD ON ON WEDNESDAY, THE THIRTEENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, A. D. 1924

At Several Polling Places That is to Say:— In Ward 1 West, at or near the shop of Owen Trainor, at the corner of King and Queen Streets. Ward 1 East, at or near the dwelling of Mrs. Hillary MacMillan, being on Dorchester Street between Prince and Great George Streets. Ward 2 West, at the dwelling house of William Byers on the south side of Sydney Street, between Queen and Pownall Streets. Ward 2 East, at the dwelling house of Patrick McCloskey, No. 174 Sydney Street. Ward 3 East Central, at or near Mrs. Sarah Jane Higgins' dwelling house, 212 Great George Street. Ward 4 East, at or near the dwelling house of Mark Pound, No. 201 Euston Street, East. Ward 4 Central, at or near Silas J. Whitlock's shop being No. 182 on the South Side of Kent Street.

DESCRIPTION OF POLLING DISTRICTS WARD ONE The First Polling Division shall comprise all that portion of Ward Number One, the City of Charlottetown, situate East of Great George Street, and the Poll shall be held at or near the dwelling of Mrs. Hillary MacMillan, being on Dorchester Street between Prince and Great George Streets.

WARD TWO The Second Polling Division shall comprise all that portion of Ward Number Two, in the City of Charlottetown, situate West of St. George Street, and the Poll shall be held at or near the shop of Owen Trainor at the corner of King and Queen Streets.

WARD THREE The Third Polling Division shall comprise all that portion of Ward Number Three, in the City of Charlottetown, situate East of Great George Street, and the Poll shall be held at or near the dwelling house of Patrick McCloskey, No. 174 Sydney Street.

WARD FOUR The Fourth Polling Division shall comprise all that portion of Ward Number Four, in the City of Charlottetown, situate West of Great George Street, and the Poll shall be held at or near Wm. Byers' residence, on the South side of Sydney Street, between Queen and Pownall Streets.

WARD FIVE The Fifth Polling Division shall comprise all that portion of Ward Number Five, in the City of Charlottetown, situate East of Great George Street, and the Poll shall be held at or near the dwelling house of Mrs. MacEwen, No. 180 Weymouth Street.

WARD SIX The Sixth Polling Division shall comprise all that portion of Ward Number Six, in the City of Charlottetown, situate West of Great George Street, and the Poll shall be held at or near the dwelling house of Mrs. Sarah Huestis, being No. 7 Upper Queen Street.

NOMINATION DAY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 6TH, A. D. 1924 At the Office of the City Clerk, City Hall, from the hour of Twelve O'clock noon, until the hour of Four O'clock in the afternoon of the same day. For Qualifications of Electors see Act 8rd Edward VII., Cap. 17, Secs. 24 to 29; also Act 1st George V., Caps. 13 and 14.

ROBERT H. JENKINS, Mayor of the City of Charlottetown, City Clerk's Office, Charlottetown, January 21st, 1924.

ed to a pert but becoming angle. Amy before her party was a hard working little housewife who made dainty sandwiches with amazing quickness and deftly arranged the inexpensive family possessions so the house looked rather well. Amy, when the party was in full swing, was a slim little figure in a dress much too sophisticated for her, a child glancing in "dressing up," having a glorious time at her own party and looking exceedingly sweet and young and innocently when she smoked a cigarette.

There was Dave, and Mark—Adam Arnold, of course, "The Tweedle Sisters, Dum and Dee," a dancing act from the vaudeville circuit, consisting of two girls who had met three weeks before when the "act" went on and made an immediate hit—there was Dick who had been around three times a week ever since the Talbot's returned from the country, and the one guest Amy was not glad to see—a little brunette with noisy spirits, whom Arnold was suspected of liking too much.

"She sets the pace at every party," Mark whispered to Dave while the little brunette was burlesquing the tragedy queen of the current season.

"She always spurs on Aimee, who isn't going to let any mere black eyed chit get ahead of her," Dave agreed. "Some pace too! I'll bet on the black one."

Mark laughed, watching the extravagant gestures of the girl, and glancing across the room at Amy. Amy concealed her dislike by being particularly sweet to her guest—but when she had her doing "stunts" she slipped onto the couch by Adam—who put a possessive hand over hers.

The party went on—Amy danced, and Mark did an imitation of her dance which made them roar. After the shows were out some others came in, and sat on the floor when the chairs ran out, and made more sandwiches and laughed and smoked and flirted. One man sang the song that was to be "plugged" hardest at a new show opening the following week, and they made a mock court finally, with Adam as king in a crown from silver paper.

Adam had to choose his queen blindfold—there was still more noise until some long suffering neighbor on the floor below hammered on the steam pipes and the party hushed and giggled.

"We'll all bundle into my car and Mark's and finish the party at my house," Adam declared, enjoying his paper crown and position in the party too much to want to stop.

Luther excused himself and went to bed—Mrs. Talbot went along on a courtesy invitation. But she was ed to a pert but becoming angle. Amy before her party was a hard working little housewife who made dainty sandwiches with amazing quickness and deftly arranged the inexpensive family possessions so the house looked rather well. Amy, when the party was in full swing, was a slim little figure in a dress much too sophisticated for her, a child glancing in "dressing up," having a glorious time at her own party and looking exceedingly sweet and young and innocently when she smoked a cigarette.

There was Dave, and Mark—Adam Arnold, of course, "The Tweedle Sisters, Dum and Dee," a dancing act from the vaudeville circuit, consisting of two girls who had met three weeks before when the "act" went on and made an immediate hit—there was Dick who had been around three times a week ever since the Talbot's returned from the country, and the one guest Amy was not glad to see—a little brunette with noisy spirits, whom Arnold was suspected of liking too much.

"She sets the pace at every party," Mark whispered to Dave while the little brunette was burlesquing the tragedy queen of the current season.

"She always spurs on Aimee, who isn't going to let any mere black eyed chit get ahead of her," Dave agreed. "Some pace too! I'll bet on the black one."

Mark laughed, watching the extravagant gestures of the girl, and glancing across the room at Amy. Amy concealed her dislike by being particularly sweet to her guest—but when she had her doing "stunts" she slipped onto the couch by Adam—who put a possessive hand over hers.

The party went on—Amy danced, and Mark did an imitation of her dance which made them roar. After the shows were out some others came in, and sat on the floor when the chairs ran out, and made more sandwiches and laughed and smoked and flirted. One man sang the song that was to be "plugged" hardest at a new show opening the following week, and they made a mock court finally, with Adam as king in a crown from silver paper.

Adam had to choose his queen blindfold—there was still more noise until some long suffering neighbor on the floor below hammered on the steam pipes and the party hushed and giggled.

"We'll all bundle into my car and Mark's and finish the party at my house," Adam declared, enjoying his paper crown and position in the party too much to want to stop.

Luther excused himself and went to bed—Mrs. Talbot went along on a courtesy invitation. But she was ed to a pert but becoming angle. Amy before her party was a hard working little housewife who made dainty sandwiches with amazing quickness and deftly arranged the inexpensive family possessions so the house looked rather well. Amy, when the party was in full swing, was a slim little figure in a dress much too sophisticated for her, a child glancing in "dressing up," having a glorious time at her own party and looking exceedingly sweet and young and innocently when she smoked a cigarette.

There was Dave, and Mark—Adam Arnold, of course, "The Tweedle Sisters, Dum and Dee," a dancing act from the vaudeville circuit, consisting of two girls who had met three weeks before when the "act" went on and made an immediate hit—there was Dick who had been around three times a week ever since the Talbot's returned from the country, and the one guest Amy was not glad to see—a little brunette with noisy spirits, whom Arnold was suspected of liking too much.

"She sets the pace at every party," Mark whispered to Dave while the little brunette was burlesquing the tragedy queen of the current season.

"She always spurs on Aimee, who isn't going to let any mere black eyed chit get ahead of her," Dave agreed. "Some pace too! I'll bet on the black one."

no longer considered "that old lady" someone the young people had to be nice to when they couldn't get out of it. She did not join in the party, but she was no longer a hostile outsider who made them uncomfortable. They really didn't mind having her along at all, as they put it.

In Arnold's big house they could make as much noise as they wanted. There was his grand piano to play on, his big drawing room to dance in, and more and more things to eat. Billadford, he pursued his "queen." The "Dee" sister pushed Amy into his arms, and an imitation Italian antique chair was declared the throne.

Adam became intoxicated with the idea of being dramatic. "Ladies and gentlemen, behold my queen—the queen of—or—well, I don't know what. And I might as well announce now that she's promised to be my—or—queen—the is, this is the best time I can think of to make public our engagement!"

A hush—one girl's black eyes turned blacker yet and she bit her lips till they hurt. One chubby faced boy felt the world go out like an extinguished candle. One old lady felt her heart stop, and something say, "It's done, it's over, they're gone." And a tumult of applause!

Tomorrow: Being Engaged.

If you walk on a tight rope, you'll need a balancing pole.

Fretting cares make gray hairs.

If misfortune comes, she brings along the bravest virtues.

By sorrow of heart the spirit is broken.

Were everyone to sweep before his own house, every street would be clean.

Respectfully yours, JOHN MCKENNA 1216-129-tts,td.

NOTICE To the electors of the City of Charlottetown. Ladies and Gentlemen: I intend to nominate myself a candidate for Mayor at the City Election to be held this year on the 13th of February.

With a record of twelve years as your representative in different branches of the civic government; six years as City Commissioner and six years as Commissioner of Sewers and Water Supply, I feel that I am justified in seeking, for a term, the highest civic office in the gift of the citizens.

Should you do me the honor of electing me I shall endeavor in the future, as I have done in the past, to respect the confidence placed in me and to give my support to a moderate policy of improvements in all civic Departments.

As it will be impossible for me to call upon every elector I take this opportunity of thanking you for your generous support you have given me in past elections and of soliciting your votes in the present campaign.

Respectfully yours, JOHN MCKENNA 1216-129-tts,td.

NOTICE To the electors of the City of Charlottetown. Ladies and Gentlemen: I intend to nominate myself a candidate for Mayor at the City Election to be held this year on the 13th of February.

With a record of twelve years as your representative in different branches of the civic government; six years as City Commissioner and six years as Commissioner of Sewers and Water Supply, I feel that I am justified in seeking, for a term, the highest civic office in the gift of the citizens.

Should you do me the honor of electing me I shall endeavor in the future, as I have done in the past, to respect the confidence placed in me and to give my support to a moderate policy of improvements in all civic Departments.

As it will be impossible for me to call upon every elector I take this opportunity of thanking you for your generous support you have given me in past elections and of soliciting your votes in the present campaign.

Respectfully yours, JOHN MCKENNA 1216-129-tts,td.

NOTICE To the electors of the City of Charlott