Donovan Played A Lone Hand

Wonderful Tribute Paid Local Boxer Who Made Big Hit in Cape Breton Town—Former Islander Looks After Donovan.

Alfred "Lick" Donovan, fly-weight champion of Prince Edward Island returned yesterday from Glace Bay, where he played a prominent part in the recent amateur boxing championships, held in the "biggest town".

Young Donovan was bubbling over with enthusiasm over his trip, and spoke of the wonderful treatment he received in the "land of hospitality."

Asked about his fights, he modestly stated, he thought he could have beaten the first fellow easily, but added that his bout with McDonald for the title was a daisy, and was of the opinion he could beat him over a longer route.

Donovan made a great name for himself in Cape Breton and incidentally a great advertisement of the Island Province.

Dawn Fraser, who writes under the name of "Ole Timer," has this to say of "Lick" and the big-hearted and loyal Prince Edward Islander who had him as his guest.

(Special to the Guardian)
By Ole Timer.

GLACE BAY, Nov. 17. — Lick Donovan, flyweight extraordinary, one hundred and five pounds of fight, left tonight for his home in Charlottetown, P. E. I., and thereby hangs a tale.

Lick has been for the last few days at Glace Bay and the guest of some of Cape Breton's best sports. If you don't believe it, ask Lick.

The brave little battler was attracted to Canada's largest town by the Maritime Amateur Boxing bouts which were staged here on Nov. 15th and 16th, and among all the boxers who contested for honors, none made a bigger hit than Lick, who is the smallest bit of fighting material ever introduced at the Mines.

The local promoters of the tournament had honed to attract a larger entry list from the land of the spuds and foxes, and indeed they understood that four boxers were coming from the Island.

Offering the promoters cooperation was Mr. John A. McRae, prominent Glace Bay citizen and native of Prince Edward Island, who when he heard that his former home was sending entries insisted that the Island boys be his guests while in Glace Bay and he even motored fourteen miles to Sydney at a very early hour Wednesday morning to meet his expected guests, but there were no visitors aboard the train from the Island and Mr. McRae shared the disappointment of the promoters.

But on returning to Glace Bay, however, the promoters ran down a rumor that one guest from Prince Edward Island had arrived and indeed had been in the mining metropolis for two days, unheralded unwelcomed and unsung. Further enquiry revealed that the mighty midget Mr. Lick Donovan had slipped in unnoticed and engaged a room on an obscure street. LICK DONOVAN WAS PLAYING A LONE HAND.

At the rooming house on the obscure street the lady admitted that she did have a roomer Mr. Donovan by name, but that if he was a fighter he was a very tiny one. Careful search between the blankets upstairs revealed the Island warrior sleeping the sleep of the just. Introductions followed between Lick and the promoter. When asked why he had not announced his arrival to the Press or Promoters Lick referred to his humble circumstances. He was strictly an amateur and consequently poor. He was not equal to any social activities. He had not brought his evening clothes. He had not much money on arrival, indeed only enough to pay for his room.

"Are you not eating?" asked the startled promoter.

"Had some biscuits with me," the boy admitted.

Well, the next stop was at a restaurant where Lick ordered out of all proportion to his size, while the promoter hurried away to inform McRae of the arrival of his war like countryman.

Now Mr. John A. McRae as already noted is a native of the Island and he naturally has a little bit of love still burning for Island products, particularly those of merit or gameness. So Lick's troubles were over, at least for the present. He was an honored guest at what is perhaps the most luxurious home in the largest town in Canada. No more dry biscuit diet for Lick Donovan. He had come into his own.

The story of how Lick bore himself in battle is really a subject for another day. Lack of space and lack of ability to do it justice compels us to touch but lightly on the mighty deeds of the midget Islander. He won his decision over young Lewis, a much heavier boy who had a weakness for hitting low, on the first evening, after Lick had taken four pokes on his little tummy without a whine or murmur of protest. But Lick though a stranger had many friends, and a just referee disqualified the other boy. In the finals the second evening Lick was outweighed about six pounds by Butch McDonald, but he forced the rugged and clever Cape Breton champ to go two extra rounds before the judges could decide that McDonald had just a shade, just a very little shade, on the game little spud Islander.

There were many other battlers invaded Cape Breton to compete in the great amateur boxing contests ah, but those guys don't count much. None of them made the hit with the fans made by Lick Donovan the little hundred and five pound P. E. Island fighting man.

NOTE—The only regretable feature of Donovan's trip, was that he had no manager accompanying him, and—as "Ole Timer" says—he was playing a "lone hand." He could not do anything else—he was all alone in a strange land. The wonder of it all is, how he ever managed to do so good as he did. It may be added that Johnny Nemis seconded Donovan in his bouts.

It is really too bad that the Island has champions in the making, but few followers to back them up.

The bride received many beautiful and costly gifts, among which were six beautiful dining room chairs, a gift from the Palmer Road Choir, of which she is a member. —ADDRESS BY REV. F. H. ARMOUR.—Rev. F. H. Armour, International secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society, addressed a united service in the Presbyterian church at Summerside on Wednesday evening. He was introduced to the audience by Rev. H. D. Raymond of St. Paul's church Charlottetown, who is provincial president of the society in P. E. Island. This is Mr. Armour's first visit to this Province, having only recently arrived from the old Land. His topic was, of course, in reference to the work being carried on throughout the world by this great organization and his address was most interesting and instructive. Rev. John Murchison, the district secretary of the Society for N. B. and P. E. I. was also present and spoke briefly in support of the work. Rev. C. St. Clair Jeans, chairman of the church occupied the chair and with him on the platform besides the speakers mentioned were Rev. J. P. Fraser of Trinity United Church and Rev Archibald Adams of the Baptist Church both of whom took part in the devotional exercises. Mr. Armour's address made a deep impression on those privileged to hear him and all felt that they had enjoyed a rare treat. S.

Island Fur Products East And West

(Historicus)

Whether it be in fish, furs or game this Island meets outsiders they can come out of competition with flying colors. This is proved by the Prize Lists east and west. In live stock or farm products it cannot be gainsaid that they stand in the first line. Take the competition in fur farming also and our boast holds good. In the early days when records were not kept Reynard always held the poll when the price of Island pelts set the standard for excellence of quality, size and weight. In later days, in fact and just at present, the Island invariably holds its own in the keenest battles with the "Busy East," that is confining the struggle to New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, Quebec and Ontario.

The fight for supremacy in all Canada is not an exception either when the field extends from Coast to Coast. An Ottawa official, writing under the above caption does good work for all the Province, "Fur bearing animals," he writes, "have been the source of an important local commerce for a century and a quarter. In fact, for a century the fur trade was the only industry of light country and even today it is of no mean consequence. Many outlying posts receive in trade no other commodity. The principal controls of the trade are Peace River, Fort St. John, Hudson Hope, Fort McLeo, (west of mountains) Gonuard Ford River, Fort Vermillion, Hay River and Red River.

"Reports from the resident traders at the points state that the principal fur-bearing animals are bear, black, brown and in some districts the grizzly, coyote or prairie wolf; wolverine, lynx, fox, red, cross and silver; skunk, ermine or weasel, beaver, marten, otter, fisher, mink and muskrat. It is estimated that the yearly revenue derived from the furs of the Peace River country east of the mountains amounts to at least a quarter of a million dollars.

(We are not prepared to state in this article the showing of the Island in some of the above named classes, but we feel quite confident that as for Messrs. McLure & MacKinnon, Agents for the Hudson Bay Co., are rated, their product will be round equal to that of any part of the "Busy East" they still hold with distinction the "Prize Card" for champion Fox Kings (and that the Island is able to point with pride to two at least of its sons who are at the front in encouraging Home Industry and local enterprise).

In an article which treats of so many subjects, it is impossible to do more than skim the merest surface. One of those is the subject of rivers. In the West pride is felt in the length, the depth and width of the great stream that flows east and west in its boundaries. Beginning at home our sea-girt Isle can boast as many tidal and ocean rolling rivers as any other part of the globe of its dimensions. We have the Morell and the Dunk, fresh water streams, which if properly protected, would abound in sea-trout, salmon, mackerel, codfish and other "speckled beauties" as can be found in any other streams in the wide expanse of Canada. In laudation of our shady groves, green fields and purling rivers we have no later than the present season attracted tourists from among the leading public men of the Empire who have lavished encomiums on our beautiful landscape and confessed that they had discovered a new El Dorado cosily nestled here in the midst of panoramic beauty, such as they had no idea 'neath sunny skies, all of which shone brighter and charmed more mystically than any of their Andelusian types of scenic grandeur.

Thus it can be easily shown despite all the splendors of the other points of the compass our people have a reason to complain that the world is unevenly divided.

MONTREAL, Nov. 17.—By a vote of forty-nine to twenty-five a Conservative convention yesterday decided not to contest the Dominion by-election in Joliette county, Dec. 17. Unless an independent candidate makes an appearance in the field it is practically certain that C. E. Ferland, the Liberal nominee, will be elected, by acclamation. The by-election was rendered necessary by the appointment of the sitting member, J. J. Denis, to the Superior Court Bench.
