LOYD GEORGE INTRODUCES MUNITIONS BILL IN COMMONS

The Measure Expected to Revolutionize Manufacture of Munitions. Strikes and Lockouts are Made Illegal. Employers' Profits Limited. Volunteer Army of Workmen Provided for. Minister Urges Necessity of Concerted Action by all Loyal Citizens in Order to Meet the Demands for a Successful Campaign.

(Special to The Guardian.) LONDON, June 23.—Minister of Munitions Lloyd George took the country into his confidence today when introducing the Munitions Bill in the House of Commons. This measure will revolutionize the conditions under which ammunition and other war materials are being prepared in this country. The bill makes strikes and lockouts illegal, provides for compulsory arbitration, gives power to "slicers" limits the profits of employers and creates a volunteer army of workmen pledged to go wherever they are wanted. Lloyd George admitted that the shortage of munitions was serious in view of the standard set by this war. The duration of the war and the success of the Allies depend on the supply of munitions and the minister asserted that where the Allies the making progress their share of the western line depended completely on the supply of munitions. The Allies are superior in number and quality of men. He understood that Central European powers are capable of turning out 250,000 shells a day. We cannot equal this, but if we be in earnest we can surpass it. Continuing, Lloyd George referred to his recent visit to France, where he interviewed Albert Thomas, who holds a post similar to his own. Thomas assured him that France could do and Lloyd George said if Britain could do as well there would be no question that the Allies would have as great superiority in munitions as in men. The Germans realized the magnitude of the war and prepared for it. The Allies had not, but with proper attention they could in time produce munitions more than sufficient to offset what Germany could do. It will take months to secure a maximum output of munitions and this is due entirely to a shortage of workers. "If I could lay my hands on an adequate supply of skilled workmen I could double in a few weeks our supply of machine guns." Continuing, he said that if Germany swings her forces from the east to the west it is most essential that every available machine gun be produced. Trade union restrictions interfering with the output of munitions must be at once suspended. There must be no strikes or lockouts during the war. Lloyd George said Great Britain would at once be organized into ten munition areas. In London there will be another Woolwich Arsenal able to turn out prodigious quantities of war materials. It might be necessary, he said, for the Government to take complete control of the metal market in order to make sure that valuable material was not wasted on non-essentials. The Department is securing full information regarding stocks of raw and semi-manufactured metal. As to supply of labour, he said as many skilled men as possible would be brought back from the ranks, but this is difficult as the men preferred fighting to working shops. The trade unionists had promised in seven days to get all the munition workers the Government requires, and if they could do so there would be no need for compulsion, which would be so much better. Lloyd George will have power to enforce contracts made by voluntary army workers and to maintain discipline in the yards. A munitions court will be established to decide disputes, and there will be a limitation in profits of establishments working for the state. After Lloyd George completed, Sir Richard A. Cooper, member of a large chemical manufacturing concern, who previously complained that the British War Office, by refusing to deal with responsible agents, had neglected to obtain a supply of munitions, announced that he is in a position to offer the Government three million shells made in England, eight million shells made in Canada, and ten million shells made in the United States. He also said he had one billion rifle cartridges and two million rifles for delivery, commencing with October, and added: "If this offer is not accepted, I want to know the reason why." Lloyd George in reply said the Government had asked Cooper for the names of the firms prepared to supply such large quantities of munitions. The result was one name of a firm which on enquiry was found to be engaged in lithographic printing. The Minister of Munitions deprecated all wild and irresponsible talk about plenty of shells being available. He said he was scouring the country for them and was prepared to take every shell that could be procured.

The sessions of the Grand Lodge A. F. and A. M. of Prince Edward Island were concluded at an early hour this morning. The first session was held yesterday morning with a larger attendance than usual. Owing to inclement weather the afternoon excursion was abandoned and an extra session was held thus enabling the brethren to complete the work within the one day. A large amount of routine work was disposed of. A large number of distinguished visitors from the sister provinces who had been attending other Masonic functions were present at the different sessions. At the close of the last session the brethren repaired to the Kosy Korner, where a banquet was thoroughly enjoyed, and where speeches, conversation and song whiled away a very pleasant couple of hours. TWO ALLIENS IN PRIVY COUNCIL

(Special to The Guardian.) LONDON, June 23.—Baron Reading, Lord Chief Justice, to-day granted an order in the Court of King's Bench directing Sir Edgar Speyer and Sir Ernest Cassel to show by what authority they claim to be members of the Privy Council of Britain. Application for this order was made at the instance of Sir George McGill on the ground that neither Speyer nor Cassel are British subjects, born or bred, and therefore not lawfully members of the Privy Council. The court granted application without expressing any opinion.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE 5,000 PRISONERS

(Special to The Guardian.) LONDON, June 23.—A despatch to the Central News from Petrograd gives the following Russian official communication made public Tuesday: "In the Dniester district a complete success has been attained after six days of fighting near Snowidow. The Russians captured over three thousand prisoners. On the Zale-Szczyky front during the night of the 20th, and after fierce fighting, the Russian troops captured two thousand prisoners of Russia's dominance of Galicia." News of the fall of Lemberg, although known on the continent yesterday, did not reach London until late in the afternoon, when bulletins arrived almost simultaneously by wireless from Berlin and Vienna, by way of Amsterdam. The British press had been expecting such a development, and there was no more than a passing comment on it, though it drove home, according to military observers, how ample must have been the Austro-German ammunition supply to have accomplished the feat. Archduke Frederick of Austria, Commander-in-Chief of the Austrian forces, and General August von Mackenzon of the German army, both have been made Field Marshals of the Prussian army in recognition of their services in the Galician campaign. On the River Dniester, south of Lemberg, the battle is still raging.

CANADA FINANCING WAR CONTRACTS

(Special to The Guardian.) OTTAWA, June 23.—In connection with the question of war contract financing, it is learned that practically since the outbreak of the war this matter has been receiving attention of the Government. This has been especially true since the international exchange situation became so unfavourable from the standpoint of European countries. A number of efforts were made to arrange credits in London from which payments might be made, and some weeks ago the Finance Minister offered to advance to the banks Dominion notes against such foreign securities as they might buy to facilitate the purchase of munitions and supplies in Canada. The banks, it is understood, are already extending credits on a generous scale to customers engaged in the manufacture of munitions and supplies, but it is nevertheless important that they conserve their resources for the movement of what is expected to be the largest crop in history. The question of currency inflation must also be considered in connection with any further issue of Dominion notes against securities.

STEAMER TUNISIANA TORPEDOED BUT BEACHED

(Special to The Guardian.) LONDON, June 23.—The steamer Tunisiana was torpedoed off Lowestoft by German submarines. The skipper was able to beach her. She was saved from Montreal to Hull with 5,000 tons of wheat. The crew were landed at Lowestoft. This is not the Allan liner Tunisian, a passenger liner, which formerly sailed between Montreal and Liverpool. The latter was taken over by the Admiralty last fall and is being used as a prison ship.

TURKS LOSE VERY HEAVILY

(Special to The Guardian.) LONDON, June 22.—An official communication from the headquarters of the Mediterranean Expeditionary force says that on the evening of June 19th the Turks expended some 450 high explosive shells on our left centre trenches, and were seen missing for an attack. The enemy's heart failed them, and the attack degenerated into a fire action. At 7.30 one of our brigades attacked the Turkish trenches but were unsuccessful. The Turks counter attacked and effected a dislodgement of their lines at Awkard Sallent captured by us on the 4th. As the brigade was unable to recover the lost trench, the Fifth Royal Scots assisted by a company of the Worcester Regiment came to their help. This attack was ably organized and brilliantly carried out to a successful issue. Prisoners state the Turks expected their bombardment with high explosives would have cleared us out altogether and were much disappointed that so little impression had been made, though trenches were much damaged. The Turkish dead are estimated at the hundred in front of one brigade, one thousand in all parts is a low estimate.

(Special to The Guardian.) LONDON, June 22.—Voluntary relinquishment of their salaries by members of the Commons for the period of the war was suggested in the House today by Sir A. B. Markham, Liberal, Premier Asquith promised to consider the question although he said he thought it would be a matter for the House itself to decide. Markham's plea was based on the "necessity of economy in all branches of the public services," but he said he was willing that members with private incomes less than $2,000 should continue to draw the emolument of $2,000 paid to members of the House.

OPERATIONS ON THE DARDANELLS

(Special to The Guardian.) PARIS, June 23.—Official on Dardanelles by War Office tonight:—Yesterday an expeditionary corps in the Orient attacked the Turkish lines on two-thirds of the front. After artillery preparations the infantry sallied from the trenches with superb spirit. Our left, in a single bound, carried two lines of the enemy's trenches. These they held notwithstanding numerous counter attacks. To the right, on more difficult ground the struggle continued throughout the day on the ruins of Turkish works which had been razed by our artillery. The enemy, bringing up without cessation fresh troops, had succeeded in retaking these entrenchments when a battalion of the foreign legion and a battalion of Zouaves in a bayonet charge, carried the position in ten minutes. This brilliant charge decided the issue, and finished for the day the efforts of the Turks to regain the lost grounds. In a counter offensive on our right this morning the enemy was decimated without having achieved any gain. Summing up, the day ended with success along the whole line, despite the desperate nature of the struggle. We took some prisoners, among whom were some officers. The battleship Saint Louis effectively bombarded the batteries on the Asiatic side. At our left the British army gave us efficacious support. Everything confirms the enemy's losses were very heavy. The important point is that we have occupied ground which commands the head of the ravine of Kereves Dere, which the Turks had defended with utmost determination for several months using all their resources to hold it.
