Maritime Pilot Officer missing

AMHERST, N.S., Oct. 2.—(CP)—Pilot Officer Creighton Lowther, one of the outstanding hockey players developed in the Maritimes in the last few years, was reported by the British Air Ministry today as missing after action against the enemy.

The young Royal Canadian Air Force officer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Lowther, were advised by his commanding officer, Sept. 27. The message gave no details. Lowther, a crack forward, had twice turned down offers to play professional hockey. In the Maritimes, he played with two Amherst teams that won the tri-province junior title and then moved to Baltimore Orioles of the Eastern Amateur League.

He played with Windsor in the Michigan Ontario League. He enlisted a few months after the outbreak of war, and last winter played with the R.C.A.F. team that was put out by Hull Volants in the Allan Cup playdown. His father was the first Maritimer to play in the National Hockey League.

PRETTY ISLAND
Pretty Island by the sea,
Where I'm wishing I could be;
Where the red soil beckons me,
Come to spend some time with thee.

To enjoy thy balmy breeze
Sweeping o'er thy fields and lease
Walk beneath thy birch and fir trees
As I take my time and ease:

Bathe beneath thy cooling waters
On thy shores and in thy streams;
Fish for speckled rainbow beauties
As the sunshine on them gleams:

Walk along the windmill highways,
Eye each flower or radiant hue;
See the swaying golden wheat fields
Glisten in the morning dew.

Sermons preached from many pulpits
Oft impress the power of God;
God in nature preaches stronger
On Prince Edward Island sod.

CAPITOL SUMMERSIDE

"Strawberry Blonde" At Captol, Summerside

"The Strawberry Blonde" is in town, and everybody who wants to treat themselves to some fun better himself down to the Capitol Theatre. If you can imagine hard-bitten James Cagney as a rather timid correspondent school dentist, with pretty Olivia deHavilland and luscious Rita Hayworth vying for his favor with no holds barred, you'll have some idea of the goings-on which make the picture one of the year's comedy highlights.

It all happens way back at the turn of the century when folks were still being shocked over girls who rode bicycles and smoked cigarettes, when men wore their straw bowlers straight and their trousers pegged, and "The Band Played On" was the tune everybody was whistling.

Against this nostalgic background, Warner Bros. have set a story that is packed to the brim with romance, fun and merriment. Director Raoul Walsh has paced the love story for comedy, yet capturing at the same time a realistic picture of that era.

Cagney and Miss deHavilland carry the starring roles of the dentist and his demure but purposeful wife, with the aplomb of truly finished players. Cagney's role is a complete turn-around from anything he has hitherto done on the screen and he displays a comedy flair that is a genuine delight.

LIPSTICK MORE THAN MAKE-UP
News comes from London that the wife of a British army major quit her job as assistant commandant of a hospital when her superior, a man, objected to her lipstick. She's looking for another war job, where camouflage and face paint is considered an unobjectionable activity, writes Ruth Millett.

To men, her gesture of defiance may seem silly, irrational, and ridiculous.

Why should a young, good-looking woman (or any woman, for that matter) be penalized for her patriotism?

Just because a woman has volunteered to do a dangerous and important job in war-time is no reason she has to look grim and unattractive and as much like a man as possible.

It doesn't take much time for a woman to put on lipstick—no more than it takes a man to look in a mirror, smooth his hair, and admire himself. And if there are any men in the army who have given up that privilege, war does change men's habits drastically. I haven't noticed, either, that men stop shaving when they enter the army.

And once a woman's lipstick is on—how much better off she is. No man can be expected to appreciate the satisfaction that comes from knowing that lipstick is freshly applied. Lipstick gives a woman poise and courage to face the world. Made up, a woman is ready for any emergency. Gray-faced by life, already half-way licked by life.

Need "Pepping Up"
The major's wife knows her rights, and the rights of all women—even in war-time. Ask them to do hard, tiring dangerous jobs and they agree readily. Ask them to skimp on food, clothes and luxuries—and they do it without complaint.

Injured in Contact with Electric wire

Mr. Fred Laird, is a patient in the Prince County Hospital, suffering from burns and shock. Mr. Laird was engaged in some electrical work at the Summerside airport and while working on a transformer came in contact with live wire. He had no safety belt and fell to the ground when he touched the live wire. He has no bones broken but his hands are badly burned and he is bruised and suffering from shock, however, his condition is good. Mr. Laird is from Mount Stewart and has been working at the airport.—S

Use of mails Forbidden Toronto Bible House

OTTAWA, Oct. 2.—(CP)—Use of the mails has been forbidden the North Toronto Bible House following justice department opinion that literature sent out by it was published for an illegal purpose. Postmaster General Mulock announced today.

Mr. Mulock said he had answered by telegram today a protest on this ruling received from Rev. E. J. Taylor, proprietor of the Bible House.

Mr. Taylor was informed that if he gave written assurance he would discontinue the use of the mails for distribution of pamphlets held to be published for an illegal purpose, full mailing privileges would be restored, Col. Mulock said.

Col. Mulock said the post office inspection department directed attention to complaints received about the use of the mails for distribution of "certain literature" bearing the names and addresses of "the North Toronto Bible House, 271 Yonge Street, Toronto, Ontario, Canada," and "the Protestant Book House, Station B, Box 125, Toledo, Ohio, U. S. A."

"In view of the nature of the pamphlets, officials of the department reached the decision that the department of justice should be consulted," Col. Mulock said.

"The former deputy minister of the department of justice, W. E. Edwards, by letter of Sept. 12, advised the deputy postmaster general that he was of the opinion that this literature was published for an illegal purpose within the meaning of regulation 206 of the Canada Official Postal Guide, and that the posting of the literature was forbidden by regulation 206."

(These regulations forbid the use of the mails for obscene or immoral books, illegal schemes or other unlawful purpose.)

Because Mr. Taylor had failed to give the assurance that the literature held to be published for an illegal purpose would not be sent through the mails, the prohibitory order against use of the mails by "The Bible House" would remain in effect, Col. Mulock's telegram said.

Presbyterian Moderator starts On Eastern tour

TORONTO, Oct. 3.—(CP)—Beginning a two-month tour of eastern Canada and Newfoundland, Rev. J. B. Skene of Vancouver, Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, stopped briefly in Toronto today and said Canadian people are "congealed with complacency."

"We need a revival of interest in moral and spiritual values and if we don't bring that about we're sunk," Dr. Skene left for Montreal, where he will stop over only a brief time before leaving for Halifax tonight.

TIMELY NOTES ON TOPICS CONNECTED WITH Silver Fox Farming

dumping large quantities of pelts on the market at illogical times. The following steps were approved as being desirable in the present situation. Advertising ranch mink in both the United States and Canadian markets by Canadian breeders. Orderly marketing of pelts in both United States and Canadian markets. Efforts should be made in both countries to control production by means of breeder education. Introduce standardized methods of grading in both countries.

From the above it will be seen that the mink breeders of the United States and Canada recognize their problems as a common one and have agreed to work together to solve them. We think it would be a good thing if the breeders of silver foxes in the United States and Canada could do likewise. The matter need not be very difficult to arrange as most of the breeders in the United States are members of some Association, likewise in Canada, and committees from their organizations on either side of the line could meet at a central point and make plans that would have the effect of stabilizing our industry.

I. J. Fox, who handled a considerable number of the show pelts of the Silver Fox Breeders and Exhibitors' Association marketed through the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders' Association, has donated that celebrated $11,000 Norwegian platina fox pelt to the British War Relief Society.

Our fox farmers will be glad to know that they are exempt from the provisions of the Unemployment Insurance Act. This decision has just come down from headquarters at Ottawa.

At 1:30 p.m. the foxmen will re-assemble at the McLure and MacKinnon Silver Fox Farms Ltd., Norwood Road, just off St. Peter's Road about 3 miles from Charlottetown where the various types of silver foxes, adults and pups, will be shown and discussed. About 4 o'clock the ranchers will adjourn for discussion and addresses by two prominent foxmen. All foxmen are welcome and invited to attend. Further particulars will be given in next week's fox notes.

tended to several recently appointed officers in the two provinces. Adjutant Victor Moran, supervisor of war services at Camp Tracadie, N. S., voiced the welcome and Major A. W. Martin, Moncton, re-plied.

This afternoon the Bible reading and address was given by Adjutant David Fisher, who is in charge of men's social work in Sackville. Adjutant McLean will be the speaker at tonight's session.

ATTORNEYS clash In espionage probe

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—An objectionable line of defence questioning about the federal bureau of investigation's failure to apprehend British agents while rounding up German-Americans, also resulted in a fistfight today between government and defence attorneys at the trial of 16 men charged with espionage conspiracy.

In the government's corner was assistant United States attorney James D. Saver (about 210 pounds)—Fordham) and in the defence corner, cross-examining a F. B. I. agent was Frank J. Walsh (about 150—Harvard).

Federal Judge Mortimer W. Beyer had ruled as inadmissible a series of Walsh's questions regarding the F. B. I.'s activities against British agents, when Walsh suddenly remarked, "Mr. Saver seems to be enjoying this."

Saver advised Walsh to address his remarks to the court; Walsh said Saver couldn't bluff him; Saver asked whether Walsh wanted "to go outside with me"; Walsh agreed, telling Saver "don't bring your agents."

A few minutes later, at noon recess, the attorneys walked grimly and silently to Saver's office where the door was locked and the transom closed. F. B. I. agents and assistant U. S. Attorney T. Vincent Quinn arrived in time to effect an armistice.
