FAMED CHEF DIES AT 70
LONDON, Oct. 8 — (CP) — Arthur Edward Towle, once described as the "greatest hotel chef in Europe," died here aged 70. He went direct from a public school to work in a kitchen — to learn the business from the bottom up. Until 1944 he was head of 27 London Midland and Scottish Railway hotels. One of his favorite sayings: "Women are indifferent cooks and inferior waitresses."

O'Leary—Important Business Centre

One of the busiest villages for its size is that of O'Leary, shown above. With a population of over 700, O'Leary possesses almost every type of business to be found in any town or city. O'Leary is the main business centre for miles around and on Saturday nights every possible parking space is filled with cars. The above photo was taken on a Monday morning and the number of cars seen in this picture is typical of any day. New streets are being opened from time to time and new dwellings being erected. This prosperous village gets its power supply from the plant owned by Fred Champion which is a real asset to the community and much credit is due the owner.

Among the many fine business establishments to be found here, are Jellies's and 10 shown in the above photo; MacWilliams and Turner, Hardware; Claude MacNeill, general store, and also dealer in farm produce; Pater; Mrs. Harold Mathews and operating a fine shoe and clothing store is Matthews & Ozon. Jellies's & 10 operate an egg grading station with Alfred Dignan in charge. Mrs. Kenneth Matheson operates a beauty parlor, while Jack Mathews, Kenneth Campbell and Claude Jolley are the barbers, the latter also owning an undertaking parlor. Restaurants are popular here, including The Dingle operated by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Noonan; East End with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gallant as proprietors; a new restaurant recently built and owned by Rod MacNeven and yet another owned by Miss Lillian Wedge. Courtesy Taxi operated by Blois Ellis also has a hot-dog stand. There are two garages operated Ross Strang and Lorne Jolley and two service stations operated by Dunville & Dunville and George Carruthers. Edwin Turner is agent for farm machinery while Lloyd Sellicker is agent for Imperial Oil. Angus MacKenzie is the jeweller, and Milton Smallman recently took over the Boot & Shoe repair. There are two radio repair shops owned by Hardy and Matheson, and two meat markets owned by Jack Pate and Sutherland. Swifts operate the cream factory while Ernie Dundie operates a cannery. Another growing place of business is the O'Leary Farmers Co-operative which also have a large warehouse which was built last year. There are other warehouses in O'Leary owned by business concerns and a few privately owned. Mr. A. J. Matheson owns the drug store and in connection with this store, he keeps a large collection of antiques and strange articles; this is really an interesting place to visit, and Mr. Matheson enjoys showing visitors through this "Museum." Mrs. Turner operates a nursing-home and the man who is hard to catch at home is Dr. Dewar. Mrs. Watson Sellicker is in charge of the telephone office, assisted by Mrs. John Moreshead, and Mrs. Claude Jolley is in charge of the library. Last year a four-roomed school was built. This fine building is modern in every way and is one of the finest to date. There are three ministers in O'Leary. Rev. W. G. Dickson, B.A. (United); Rev. C. O. Howlett, B.A., B.D. (Baptist), and Rev. Burgess, (Nazarene). For amusement this community has two theatres operated by Cecil Dennis and the Verdun owned and operated by Smallman and Son. Marne Kennedy owns a pool room, a tennis court built on the Baptist Parsonage, property by Rev. C. O. Howlett, and a fine race track owned by Mr. Phillips. For tourist accommodation, there are the Orchard View cabins, owned by Miss Marcia Pater, a veteran. Most of the establishments mentioned above are owned by veterans who took over or built when they came home, and are members of the local Canadian Legion.

Mr. Alvin Webb is the postmaster, and has rendered wonderful service at all times. As mentioned previously in this article, O'Leary is a very busy spot on Saturday nights, for it is on those evenings that farmers and their families gather. The younger generation go off to the shows while the older folk buy their weekly supply of groceries, and talk over the weekly happenings with their many friends they meet on the street or in the stores. To the majority of folk living in a 15-20 mile radius of this village, the week is not ended properly unless they get to O'Leary on Saturday night, coming in their cars, buggies or on trucks.

In winter hockey is the main sport and O'Leary boasts a fine team. This team is noted for their sportsmanship and can lose a game in the same spirit in which they win, although when talking to a fan, you will be informed that this team seldom loses.

Something worth mentioning about O'Leary is that it is the only place in P. E. I. that gives a 10 per cent discount on groceries to clergymen. With all these facts O'Leary is without a doubt one of the finest communities in Canada and one that the villagers can be truly proud to say "I come from O'Leary."

Tignish

Mr. Hubert Bernard, St. Louis, spent last week visiting with friends at Tignish North.

A valuable mare owned by Mr. James Doyle, Skinner's Pond, was kicked by another horse recently and resulted in Doyle's animal receiving a broken leg and having to be shot later.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harrington, Summerside, and Mrs. John McQuaid, Kensington, spent several days last week the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Handrahan and family, Norway.

Potato digging is the order of the day in this neighborhood right now, with splendid crops reported. A nice run of potatoes and no rot, although up to digging time the farmers were a little anxious, hearing the stories of rot in other sections of the Province. The blight did not hit in this end of the island very early, which no doubt accounts for the good and healthy potato crop.

The name of J. C. Gaudet appeared recently in the list of Maritime boys serving in the R.C.A.F. who had received promotions. Claude was promoted to the rank of Sergeant and his Tignish friends are pleased and happy over this new promotion. Members of his household, other than Gaudet and the late Mrs. Gaudet, also happy in this new promotion of Claude's are his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter M. Chaisson.

Mr. Michael McPhee, Tignish, had a narrow escape last Monday evening when a gas lamp he was lighting in his home went out of order and flames ignited his clothing. Quick thinking on the part of Mr. McPhee saved his life and possibly the lives of other members of his household. In getting the flames extinguished, Mr. McPhee had his hands severely burned, but not severe ones. His many Tignish friends are thankful this accident was not worse and hope he may recover with not too much suffering.

"NERVES" She Called It
Losing interest—losing friends—she was—always too tired. "Nerves," she thought—but was her blood—she filters of her blood—that needed attention. She used Dodd's Kidney Pills at once. The improved action of her kidneys helped to clear away blood impurities and excess acids. Fatigue, headache, dizziness, lack of energy disappeared. Dodd's Kidney Pills contain essential oils and medicinal ingredients that act directly upon the kidneys—and help restore their normal action. 144

Oct. 10 Anniversary Of Disastrous S'Side Fire

This approximate date forty-two years ago will long be remembered by the citizens, especially the older ones, of Summerside, for it was on October 10th, 1886, that the worst fire in the history of the town, if not in the Province, took place.

The fire, starting about 10 p.m., presumably from incendiary origin, in the railway freight shed, burst continually throughout the night burning over an area of some 23 acres, destroying 162 buildings, leaving over 100 families homeless.

Among those destroyed were the electric light plant, 3 churches, the Baptist on Spring Street, the Anglican Church, St. Mary's and hall on Church Street, and the Christian Baptist Church on Central Street. Also the large "Willow" hall on Summer Street, north of post office, three hotels, and large number of fine residences.

The area destroyed covered the lower part of Water Street, east of where Coyles' restaurant now is, and from one to three blocks of dwellings north of Water Street, crossing Granville Street, Summer, and Central Streets, the last building to burn being the court house on west side of Central Street.

Had not the firemen used frantic efforts to save the Coyles building, opposite the station, the loss would have been very much greater. This being a high wooden building and all the buildings between it and the Brace block on the north side being of wood and closely joined to one another.

Another factor in saving the Methodist Church and probably a large area beyond it was the open space of the Public Gardens, as area was narrowed down considerably at that point.

The fire department, which at that time, consisted of the steam engines, Beaver, and two small hand engines manned by about 40 or 50 men, were greatly handicapped for water after leaving the waterfront area. At that time the only water supply was a number of underground cisterns, which were pumped dry the firemen were helpless at that point.

Shortly after the fire got beyond control a call was sent to Charlottetown for help and a special train with firemen and a steam fire engine was rushed to Summerside and while they also were handicapped due to lack of water, were instrumental in saving the Presbyterian Church of North Market Street as well as several residences. During the time of the fire, a strong gale was blowing from the south east so strong that when following day parts of burnt shingles were picked up at St. Eleanor's, some 2 miles away.
