POULTRY MEETINGS—Mr T. A. Benson, Dominion Poultry Representative, will address poultry meetings as follows: Egmont Bay, Thursday, Sept. 9th; Lorne Valley, Friday, Sept. 10th. Meetings will commence at 7.30 p.m. All interested in poultry production and marketing should make a special effort to be present. Ladies specially invited.

ACCIDENT AVERTED—What might have been a serious accident occurred during the evening of Monday morning at the residence of Daniel Birt, Mt. Stewart. As his son was passing a window a load of shot hit the house, some of them striking the window. It appears that one of the sportsmen was taking a casual early shot, and in the excitement failed to observe that the house was within range. This should be a grave warning to all who handle a gun within the village limits, as Mr. Birt will not tolerate a repetition of this offence.—1.

EARNSCLIFFE NOTES—Mr Dingwell Jenkins, being in a barn room is erecting another new out-building. Mr Harry Tweedy was in the city yesterday.—Mr Sebastian O'Keefe has pressed and sold some new hay, the first man in this part of the island to do so this season.—The annual women's missionary concert, of Cherry Valley, was held in the Methodist Church on Sunday evening last, and the sacred edifice was crowded to the door. Following was the programme: Opening hymn; prayer, by the pastor, Mr T. W. Hodgson; hymn; chorus, by the choir; duet, Mrs Dingwell Jenkins and Miss L. Rose; solo, Miss Lavinia Ross; chorus, choir; address, by the pastor, Mr Hodgson.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT—Yesterday morning Mr Malcolm McDonald, of Nine Mile Creek met with a serious accident. He was working in the harvest field with the binder. The horses were somewhat difficult to manage and he was leading them by the heads. He had got them quieted down when he let go and in leaving them he accidentally fell and was struck by the sharp point of the binder. He was also struck by the reel, and trown over the knife. One of his feet got caught, and the guard penetrated the ankle bone, whilst the knife severely gashed the flesh. But for his presence of mind in lifting his other foot out of the way he would have been more severely injured. It is feared that the ankle is broken.

HOME GUARD—After a good drill last evening with rifles at the Drill Hall, a meeting was held to award the prize for the best score made at the recent shooting matches at Kensington Range. It is only fair to say that the highest score was made by J. A. Clarke, who made 38. Prof. Clarke and A. R. Wise both made 38 points out of fifty, but owing to the fact that they had previously shot with the 3.03 ammunition they were barred out from the competition. Mr. R. Gillis, a young man who never shies at an army service rifle, won the medal with 37 points. The three shoots that the Home Guards have had has been excellent practice for them and thanks were tendered G. E. Hutcheson who presented the prize; also a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. R. V. Y. to Captain Landriagan, Lieut. Sterns and W. S. Jones for the assistance they gave in coaching the men and taking the responsibility in the three different practice shoots. The men are anxious to have another practice before the cold weather sets in, but owing to the scarcity of ammunition it may be some time to have another practice unless some ammunition is forthcoming. Possibly this may be arranged by the authorities.

WEDDING BELLS—A very pretty wedding took place at Notre Dame Academy, Charlottetown, on Monday, Sept. 6, at 6.30 a. m. when Miss Alice Ethel Callaghan, of this city, and Mr. John Alexander McDonald, of Vernon, P. E. I., were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. Rev. Father Connolly, of St. Joachim's Church, Vernon, officiating. The bride was given away by her brother, Horace, of New Glasgow, N. S., and looked charming in a travelling suit of blue serge trimmed with black military braid, large black hat trimmed with a white ostrich mount and an ermine neck-ruff and carrying a large bouquet of white Killarney roses. She was attended by her friend, Miss Lena Byrne, who wore a black Taffeta silk dress and cream coat, black and white hat, and carried a bouquet of pink Killarney roses. The groom was supported by his brother, Joseph, of Vernon. The bride's present to her bridesmaid was a diamond and amethyst ring and the groom's present to the bride was an uncut velvet coat and handsome cheque. The Academy choir supplied beautiful music. Misses Ryan, Keir and Moran taking the solos. After the ceremony the happy couple left on the Western express amid a shower of confetti and rice on a short honeymoon trip. The presents were numerous and costly, showing the popularity of the young couple.

GREAT POLITICAL RALLY IN THE PEOPLE'S THEATRE

less service than any other that has served the country for many years. (Applause.) There is a long letter from the same gentleman in the Patriot this evening, in which he charges that I had asked him to serve intoxicating liquor at the time the Governor-General was here visiting the province.

A rightful charge it is. Now, I am going to take you into my confidence. Of course, when a man who was Governor was honored in honour to observe certain things as confidential and secret, when he discloses these things and makes a personal attack he has departed from the principle of common decency and good breeding and is dishonoured. The first year the Governor was in power the Governor-General, the King's representative, a member of the Royal Family, honoured this province with a visit; and when the Governor-General comes his proper home is Government House, and when he goes there his standard supersedes all others. I was desirous that we should do our duty, that we should act as a civilized community should act towards the Representative of our King, and I, with two other members of the Government, waited upon the Governor and tried to induce him to extend full and sufficient hospitality to the Governor-General and his party. I consulted with the late Governor, who had been Lieut. Governor of a North West Province, when prohibition was in force and when the Princess Louise paid that province a visit. He said that the standard and the customs of the Governor-General should prevail. Wine was served in Government House during the train just after the war precedent would justify. I told the Governor that for his direction and guidance, because Mr Laird was just as good a temperance man as Mr Rogers ever was—(cheers)—and did his duty as well as Mr Rogers ever did. I know Mr Laird tried to get the Governor to do decently in the matter. He entertained the Governor-General in a manner that reflected considerable discredit on himself and the province. Last year, when the Dominion Royal Commission, appointed by the British Crown, was here comprising some of the most distinguished and illustrious men in the realm, on the important work of taking stock of the Empire and enquiring into the resources of the Dominion, that man shirked his whole duty. Those gentlemen never entered Government House grounds, because the practically in their faces; and the province, to save its face, as we had to do on many occasions, entertained those men. In the meetings throughout the country we have heard it charged against us, "You are extravagant because you did these things." We had to take the money of the province to entertain those illustrious men and not be ashamed before the world, simply because the man whose sole duty it was to extend befitting hospitality to them refused to rise to the dignity and importance of his office. I would not have mentioned these things, except for the fact that we are held up and this money is charged against us—money we had to spend for the sake of decency. The man who should have spent it is the man who is leading the horde that is attacking us for having spent it!

say it was a black and unfortunate day in the island's history when a man in such a position, who would utterly fail to do his duty to the province, and would take the income he received and work for himself instead of the country, should be brought out of the obscurity to which he had retired and be placed to the head of a party. When we met four years ago it was a splendid assembly and at the last election the party lines were broken; and I want to ask you, is there any man here who broke his party lines on that occasion and came to the support of the Government who regrets what he did? Did we make any promise to you then which we have not amply fulfilled? I don't think there is one who can say he regrets the act he did. There is more reason now for breaking party lines than there were then. If ever there was a time in the island's history when a man should put aside all petty things and strive to do the higher duty that devolves upon men to serve the Empire in this great war, that time is now. Are you going to put at the head of the province a man who stood with the military authorities here that his aide-de-camp resigned and not a single military man would take his place? (Cheers.) A man who gave such a gross offence to a military officer riding on the train just after the war had broken out that officer told me he had never dreamed that the man he was talking to was the Governor of the province, and he said he was ready to rebuke him for his flagrantly disloyal utterances. This is the man that it is proposed to place in the forefront of the province to carry a loyal banner. I don't think we have come to such a pitch as that, and the loyal men of the city and province will be slow to put at the forefront, in charge of the negotiations regarding the war, one whose record is as black as my hat. I will tell you that continuously since the war broke out the Government has been in intimate relations with the Military and Naval Department and with the British War Office in dealing with all matters according to the full limit of our power. Every possibility of danger which might beset us was carefully considered, and plans taken as to what our duty was not only in strengthening the fighting arm of Britain and her Allies, but how we shall take care of our own people, the widows and orphans and dependents of our brave soldiers who are going to the front. Are you going to put into power a man whose record is such a record that no patriotic meeting in the province would ever think of putting him in the chair?

The Premier then pointed out that not another Federal Government had ever done as much for Prince Edward Island as the Borden Government and appealed to the electors to support a local Government in sympathy with the Great Dominion Administration. He pointed out the enormous benefits which had accrued to the province as a result of the reformation effected in the telegraph and telephone system.

In concluding an eloquent address, the Premier said: "We are only on the margin of the possibilities of the province. We have seen it brought from the darkest pessimism up to brilliant optimism, and the people are realising more and more the almost unlimited prospects that lie before us."

The Premier resumed his seat amid tremendous and prolonged applause.

ITALY OPPOSES PEACE MOVE.
MILAN, Sept. 6, via Paris.—The Italian press links together Germany's modification of her submarine policy and Pope Benedict's peace efforts, expressing the view that Germany desires to have President Wilson further the wishes of the Pope. The Scelco remarks that the very reasons which might make peace desirable for Germany would cause it to be disastrous to the Allies.

"Peace at the present moment would be a victory for Germany," this newspaper says, "giving impunity to-day and triumph to-morrow to German militarism."

The opinion is expressed by the Scelco that President Wilson, while expressing appreciation of the Pope's move will postpone any efforts of his own for one or two years.
