—The famous Dionne quintuplet girls today were rushed from danger of whooping cough and established in their own new hospital after their first automobile ride. A violent rainstorm was in progress as the move was made.

The move was accompanied by Dr. A.R. Dafeo, country physician who attended Mrs. Olive Dionne at the birth of her five daughters, by three nurses and one orderly. They rushed with the bundled-up babies from the Dionne farm home to waiting automobiles which took them the 100 yards to the hospital.

The parents of the babies were not present during the move. They left their home early in the morning for an unannounced destination. Mr. and Mrs. Dionne previously declined to attend the opening ceremony at the hospital, pleading aches.

Dr. Dafeo said the children stood the move very well. He described their condition as "very good," and expressed keen joy that they were now in the hospital where they can be kept away from all sources of possible infection.

The doctor said he had been considerably worried by an outbreak of whooping cough among the children of the countryside around Calander and by the fact that the other Dionne children all developed colds.

The quintuplets themselves have slight colds, he said. He declared they were recovering steadily from the effects of intestinal toxemia from which they have been suffering for more than a week. They still have slight temperatures, he said.

Today's move, the doctor explained, was delayed for more than four hours by the fact the plumber had not completed the joints in the hot water heating plant and the hospital was too cold for the babies.

A nurse remained in the building with a thermometer testing the temperature of the air after the furnace had been put in order and until it was warm enough for the babies.

Dr. Dafeo said the hospital heating plant will be controlled by a thermostat as soon as one can be installed.

—(Canadian Press Staff Writer) CHURCHILL, Man., Sept. 26—The elevator in this port requires very great power to operate. It has over six miles of belts which convey the grain from the bins to the ships' holds. Machines tip the freight cars filled with wheat, on one end and then on the other, emptying the contents into the pits at the rate of two minutes a car. Fans, elevators and a score of other appliances all function by electric power.

Furnaces in the power house produce steam that generates this energy, and most of the heat comes from pigweed seed. The furnaces are fed entirely from screenings obtained in clearing the grain which flows in from country elevators. No coal is used.

Wild oats form the bulk of the screenings but the tremendous heat as the fuel proceeds along the travelling grates under the boilers comes from the small black seeds about the size of pinheads. These are from the farms where pigweeds are a nuisance to the grain growers.

The grain arriving at Churchill is in the same condition as it leaves the threshers on the farms. The grading and clearing is done here under the supervision of officials of the grain board. Since the elevator began operation more than three years ago, the supply of screenings has always been sufficient not only to supply power for the elevator but to light up the port, including the spotlight on the tower whose rays stretch far out on the rolling waters of Hudson Bay. The bright light welcomes the sailors of the world to this newest harbor.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Sept. 26—Soldier, newspaperman and poet—each of these roles was filled during the colorful lifetime of William E. Maiden whose death is mourned in New Westminster. Born in England in 1875, Mr. Maiden moved with his parents to the United States in 1882 where as a youth he rode range in the Dakotas. When Sioux Indians led by Sitting Bull started their historic outbreak, Mr. Maiden was a captain of a quickly-assembled army to check the Indians.

Mr. Maiden joined the staff of the American Press Association in St. Paul. In 1902 he was given a commission as a first lieutenant in the Chinese Imperial Reform Army. Before the Imperial Reform Army got started on its campaign, the Boxer rebellion broke out. He returned to newspaper work, coming to New Westminster as sports editor of the British Columbian. During the Great War he wrote many poems under the name of "Bill Maiden."
