Extensive reconstruction of both piers at Tignish was satisfactorily completed last week by the contractors, H. J. Phillips & Sons, Charlottetown, under the supervision of Mr. Edwin Doyle, Tignish, the inspector appointed by the Dominion Department of Public Works.

Because of its importance as a fishing station, Tignish has extensive works. The pier on the north side of the harbour or "run" is 2,200 feet long and that on the south side is about 1,500 feet of timber pile bent-work. Being a very old structure — the newest addition is forty years old — extensive repairs are frequently required.

Using, in the main, creosoted materials which are expected to last some forty years, a 145 foot section at the outer end of the south pier and an inner length of 480 feet, together with a middle length of the north pier, 326 feet long, have received the attention of the contractors.

Many harbours on the north side have similar works. These are required because, in most cases, sandbars obstruct the harbour, especially where the feeding rivers are too small to maintain a satisfactory depth of water at the entrance to the gulf.

At Tignish, Naufrage, North Lake and some nine other points, training works for guide piers have been built, to reduce the width of the outlet, thereby increasing the force of the flow of the river, at the same time, giving permanence to the position of the boat channel.

Many friends throughout the Maritimes will regret to learn of the death at his home in Charlottetown on Saturday of Mr. Warren L. Brenton, retired Dairy Superintendent for Prince Edward Island. Mr. Brenton had been in ill health for some years past, and took a stroke on Wednesday from which he failed to rally.

A native of Brookfield, N. S., Mr. Brenton was formerly senior dairy products grader for the Maritimes under the Dominion Department of Agriculture. At the time he was resident in Truro. In 1930 he was induced by the late Premier Lea to come to this Province as dairy superintendent, an office which he filled very competently until his retirement about four years ago. The high reputation now enjoyed by Prince Edward Island dairy products was due in no small measure to his activities during those years.

Mr. Brenton was a valued member of Trinity United Church, and was also affiliated with the Orangemen and I.O.O.F.

His wife, formerly Miss Gertrude Andrew, Shubenacadie, N.S., predeceased him by four years. There survive one son, Douglas, of Saint John, N. B., now in Charlottetown, and two daughters, Nelly, Mrs. H. J. A. Brown, and Suzanne, both of this city.

A funeral service is being held at the home this afternoon, after which the remains will be forwarded to Brookfield, N. S., for interment.

A number of Prince Edward Island's top agriculturalists are actively connected with the Maritime Winter Fair, which commences on Friday. Mr. Earl Ings, president of the P. E. I. Federation of Agriculture, is the first vice-president and a member of the board of directors. Other directors include Major MacRae, Charlottetown; Allison Proffit, Freetown; A. Boswell and S. Wood, Charlottetown; L. Burns, Freetown and W. R. Shaw, deputy minister of agriculture, Charlottetown.
