THE CENTRAL GUARDIAN

HALIFAX LAID UP.—The crew of the Plant liner Halifax were paid-off Monday and the steamer will lay up until her annual departure for Florida to engage in tourist traffic. The service is now being run by the Evangeline according to her regular schedule.

NO SERVICE.—Rev. J. L. Dawson Mt. Stewart, has decided to leave on Saturday for the Missionary Conference in Amherst, N. S. Consequently no service will be held in the Methodist church at Black River, Mt. Stewart and Marie, on Sunday.

RALLY DAY.—The Methodist Sunday School of Hampton intend holding their Annual Rally Day service in Hampton Hall on Sunday the 9th, just at three o'clock. A very interesting and instructive program will be rendered. All are invited and silver collection will be taken in aid of the general Sunday School fund.

VALUABLE FURS.—Through a mistake on the part of the Canadian shippers the large consignment of rich lustrous furs to have been in stock for Paton's exhibition sale was not shipped until the 24th, the closing day of the Fair, and have just been received. In order that the Charlottetown ladies can have their choice of one of the largest and finest shipments of furs which has ever come to Paton's they will be displayed today as they must be shipped back within forty-eight hours. Anyone is invited to call and see these rich and beautiful furs and make a selection. The prices will be quite an inducement. 1858

BRIDGE WORK.—In connection with the various new bridges now being built by the Government in different parts of the Island, good progress has been made with the sub-structures, but further advance is delayed in a few cases on account of the fact that the material for the super-structures has not yet been received from the manufacturers. The sub-structure of the bridge at Bay Fortune for instance is finished, but the steel spans for the upper work are not yet here. This is also the case with the big bridge at Cardigan river, the foundations of which will be completed in a few days' time.

A NUISANCE.—Passengers travelling on the Summerside-Charlottetown section of the P. E. I. Railway have been complaining recently of a decided nuisance, in the shape of the pestiferous attentions of a partially deformed Indian. This man boards the train at Summerside, and when it is in progress passes from car to car accosting the passengers and using his unfortunate affliction as a means of exciting sympathy and obtaining some pecuniary help. Not insignificant is the assistance he thus gets from kind-hearted people. In his instance however, it is a case of charity being misplaced, as the man, it is authentically stated, spends the money he obtains in this way entirely in drinking spirituous liquor, from the effects of which he is repeatedly incapacitated. But apart from this, it is thought highly unsatisfactory for the nuisance he makes of himself to passengers on these trains to be allowed to continue. It is true that the Indian pays his fare and travels as a passenger himself, but that is no reason why he should be allowed to go from car to car and pester passengers, exposing his deformity in a disgusting way which in the case of women folk with sensitive nerves is particularly objectionable.

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

Cordell Hull, who represents the Fourth Tennessee district in the national Congress, was born in Overton County, Tennessee, October 2, 1871.

FIRST THINGS

The first English law designed for the suppression of vagrancy and the punishment of vagabonds was put into effect on this date in the year 1530. Before that time the English "hobo" was left to the tender mercies of the local authorities, and there was no general law dealing with the crime of being without a home or visible means of support. Poverty drove thousands to the streets and highways in the early part of the sixteenth century. Under the law the vagrant was to be whipped, and then forced to take an oath to return to the place where he was born, or had last dwelt for three years. This statute did little good, and in 1535 it was supplemented with an act providing that a vagrant should have the upper part of his right ear cut off, and upon a third conviction should be put to death. In 1547 another law was passed, whereby a vagabond was to be branded with the letter "V" and be a slave for two years. If he escaped and was caught, he was branded with an "S" and became a slave for life. In 1572 the law was further amended, providing whipping, jailing and boring of the ears as punishment for the first conviction, and was today elected lord mayor of the

STANFORD'S NEW PRESIDENT INSTALLED

PALO ALTO, CALIF., Oct. 1.—The trustees, the faculty and the undergraduates of Leland Stanford, Jr. University, and many alumni of that institution assembled early this morning at the university to take part in the exercises in honor of the installation of John Casper Branner, the new president of the university. As it had been the desire of the trustees to make the formal installation of President Branner a "family affair," no outside guests were especially invited for the occasion and not a single invitation had been sent to other universities and colleges when they were informed by the customary circular of the administrative changes at Stanford.

At the installation ceremony there were addresses by Timothy Hopkins, president of the Board of Trustees, President Branner, and by representatives of the faculty, the alumni and the student body. After the installation exercises a luncheon was given by the trustees to the members of the faculty. The program for the rest of the day includes a reception in honor of President and Mrs. Branner in the afternoon and a social gathering arranged by the undergraduates.

John Casper Branner, who today became the successor of David Starr Jordan, the famous ichthyologist, as president of Leland Stanford, Jr. University, is a noted geologist and has been connected with that institution for many years. During the absence of President Jordan in 1896-9 Mr. Branner had been acting president and since then he had the position of vice president. When President Jordan, who had been at the head of Stanford University since 1891, retired, Mr. Branner became his logical successor.

President Branner was born at New Market, Tenn., July 4, 1850 and studied at Cornell University and Indiana University. He specialized in geology and from 1875 to 1877 was geologist of the Imperial Geological Commission of Brazil. The following two years he was assistant engineer and interpreter of a mining company at Minas Geras, Brazil and after that he made botanical studies in Brazil for several years. For two years he acted as agent of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Brazil. After his return to the United States he became topographical geologist of the geological survey of Pennsylvania. From 1883 to 1885 he was professor of geology at Indiana University; from 1887 to 1893, State geologist of Arkansas and in 1892 he became professor of geology at Leland Stanford University. He is a member of many learned societies, the author of a number of books and many articles on geological subjects and has been honored with honorary degrees by several universities and colleges.
