FAUNA UNANIMOUS FOR AN OPEN FALL

NEW LISGEARD, Nov. 9.—The animals, great and small, of Temiskaming, together with the fish that swim in its streams, are agreed that the present Autumn season will prove a real open Fall, according to W. C. Armstrong, the game warden for the district, and a veteran resident of the north country. Mr. Armstrong said today that the weasels and rabbits are late in changing their Summer fur for the white covering with which they face the Winter, the moose are calling beyond their usual time and the fish have been spawning at a later date than is customary.

MAY BE SECRETARY AT WHITEHALL

LONDON, Nov. 9.—By passing an examination that had beaten other women, a girl has put herself on the road that leads to the highest positions in Whitehall. It will be possible for her ultimately to become Secretary to the Treasury, who gets $17,500 a year, and who is the official head of the Civil Service. She is Miss Lorna C. Watson, and she has won one of the 22 vacancies offered to successful candidates in the recent examination for Class I, Administrative Grade, of the Civil Service. The examination is so severe that none of the 16 women who entered last year was successful. It lasts a month, and imposes a great physical as well as mental strain. The age limits are 22 and 24. Candidates without an honors degree at a University have little chance of success, highly specialized study being required.

For those executive posts which rank next to Class I, 326 women entered the recent examination, and for the inspectorship of taxes examination, which is of university, but not of honors standard, the number of women candidates was 55.

THREE LIEUT. GOVERNORS MAY RETIRE THIS YEAR

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.—Three lieutenant-governors are likely to be filled soon after the return from London of the Prime Minister. Technically, the terms of Governor Tory, of Nova Scotia, and of Governor Egbert, of Alberta, expired last month, while, well on in his second term, Lieut. Governor Newlands, of Saskatchewan, is understood to have intimated his desire to retire at the end of the year and revert to his pension as former chief justice. While the term of a lieutenant-governor is normally for five years, there cannot be an interregnum, and so a holder of this high office retains it till his successors are appointed. Not infrequently he gets either a second term or an extension of his appointment.

While there has been gossip on the outside suggesting various people for the prospective vacancies, no action has ever been considered here. The choice of governors and chief justices and senators is the personal prerogative of the Prime Minister, although, of course, the Cabinet Ministers from the provinces interested are usually consulted. It is well understood here that Hon. W. A. Black, M.P., for Halifax, can have the Nova Scotia governorship if he will accept it.

ANCIENT WHITEHALL CHANGING SHORTLY

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Changes which Whitehall may well consider revolutionary are to take place on New Year's Day, when, by order of the London County Council, the portion of Charing Cross in line with Whitehall is to be incorporated in it. The Charing Cross numbers are from 9 to 46.

Whitehall, which now runs northwards from Parliament Street (at the Cenotaph) to the Admiralty on one side and the War Office on the other, will be extended right to Trafalgar Square. This will mean that a big re-numbering operation affecting both Whitehall and Charing Cross must be carried out.

By far the greater number of buildings in Whitehall are, of course, Government offices, and as such are so well known that they have never had a number allocated to them. Whitehall, of course, will no longer retain its almost exclusively official character.

"TREE OF LIBERTY" UPROOTED

DUNDEE, Scotland, Nov. 5.—Dun-dee's "Tree of Liberty," dating back to the French Revolution, is no more. It had stood four-quarters to all the winds that had blown for more than a century, but recently it was ruthlessly uprooted from its place in Belmont Grounds, where it was planted by sympathizers with the Revolution.

The tree marked the day when even in Dundee there were strong and fierce believers in the Revolution. It was originally planted in Dundee's High Street by these enthusiasts to mark the success of the French anti-Royalists. The Provost of that day, one Alexander Riddoch, was himself a bitter anti-Revolutionist, but for all that he was made to dance round the tree chanting "Liberty, equality, fraternity."

REPORTS PLANNED BY SALVATIONISTS

LONDON, Nov. 7.—High officials of the Salvation Army expect no opposition from Commander Evangeline Booth to radical changes proposed for the Army constitution, General E. J. Higgins, the Army's chief, said today on his return from South Africa. Commander Booth, as representative of the Army in the United States, is on the way here to join other territorial officials in what General Higgins expects to be the first of a series of conferences for general discussion of the Army's work.

She is not likely, he said, to interpose any objection to a threefold platform which will be discussed at the meeting on Nov. 10. These proposals are for the election of a General, instead of appointment, as under the present regulations; for the retirement of a General at a specified age-limit, and for the appointment of a trustee for the property, capital and assets of the Army.

FEEDING STEERS FOR PROFIT

(Experimental Farms Note)

There are many factors that influence the profits to be derived from steer feeding during the winter months. The steers must be of sufficiently good type that they will finish well and command top prices on the market. The age and size of steer to put in for winter feeding is another factor to be considered, as is the quantity and quality of feed supply, the housing conditions under which they are fed, and the spread between buying and selling price.

The Dominion Experimental Farm at Nappan, Nova Scotia, has been conducting feeding experiments for upwards of thirty years in an attempt to solve some of these problems. Space does not permit discussing all of the experiments carried on, but detailed information may be obtained by writing to the Superintendent.

It has been found that dairy-type steers are not profitable feeders. While good gains may be obtained, they are due chiefly to the growth of frame and the accumulation of fat and the buyer discriminates against this type of steer, because of the low quality of meat produced. Two experiments carried on during 1926 to 1928 comparing heavy, medium and light weight steers, resulted as follows:—

Average weight in fall: Heavy, 1096 pounds; medium, 947 pounds; light, 885 pounds. (Chiefly yearlings and two-year-olds).

Average daily gain per steer: Heavy, 2.08 pounds; medium, 1.96 pounds; light, 2.07 pounds.

Feed cost per pound gain: Heavy, 15.43 cents; medium, 16.78 cents; light, 14.80 cents.

Four experiments comparing heavy and light meal feeding gave the following results:—

Average weight in fall: Heavy meal ration, 966 pounds; medium meal ration, 956 pounds; light meal ration, 977 pounds.

Average pounds meal fed per steer per day: Heavy meal ration, 8.33 pounds; medium meal ration, 6.29 pounds; light meal ration, 4.24 pounds.

Average daily gain per steer: Heavy meal ration, 1.92 pounds; medium meal ration, 1.88 pounds; light meal ration, 1.46 pounds.

Feed cost per pound gain: Heavy meal ration, 17.3 cents; medium meal ration, 15.6 cents; light meal ration, 17.2 cents.

The results would indicate that the younger steer, if well developed, would make the cheapest gains, and the feeding of an average of 6 to 7 pounds of meal per day, or starting at 2 pounds and finishing on 8 pounds per day would give the most economical results.

It has been found that a spread between buying and selling price of at least 2.5 cents per pound is necessary in order to make a profit.

The steers fed at this farm are given, in addition to the meal mixture, good quality hay and turnips or silage. The latter feeds may be fed up to 40 pounds per day with good results.

Several meal mixtures have been used and the following has given good results when fed with roots or silage and good quality mixed hay:—Crushed oats, 200 pounds; bran, 150 pounds; oil meal, 50 pounds and cornmeal or barley, 100 pounds. The amount of cornmeal is increased gradually until during the last month there are 250 pounds in the mixture. Barley may be substituted for cornmeal with good results.
