WINNIPEG, June 8—Even the customary closing flurry was absent today as wheat futures prices, relinquishing early fractional advances, slowly eased to finish ¼ cent lower in all options on the Winnipeg grain market today, July at 62½, October at 64⅜ and December at 65⅞ cents.

Export sales, worked mostly during the session and announced near the close was estimated at 750,000 bushels, the best single day's business of the week, but which failed to induce any support to values.

Trading today started off actively and, for a while, it appeared the market had shaken itself out of the narrow rut it has travelled in other sessions of this week. But traders once again lost interest in dealings, and the volume petered off. The opening flurry comprised most of the day's business.

Another "bull" hope faded away shortly after the start when expectations of good export sales of wheat were not realized. Some overnight foreign buying induced good local support today but later in the session it was reported the sales had only been of small, scattered lots insufficient to cause more than temporary reflection in operations.

Fractional advances were held for most of the session, due more to the absence of selling than to any definite support. Seaboard houses were prominent in the buying side early but this support soon faded away, and values idled thereafter. Considerable early-session selling, too, soon disappeared an dthe market was as quiet as past sessions of the week.

Heavy crop damage in the United States, inducing "bull" drives to higher levels in the Chicago grain market is not being reflected here, local traders paying more attention to the current condition of Canada's export trade. The only other feature to the day's news was the report that Argentine wheat shipments for the week were estimated at slightly less than 3,000,000 bushels.

Cash grains, too were dull and uninteresting. Offerings were light throughout and sales at the close were practically unchanged from the previous finish. Flax, for a time featured coarse grains but interest soon lagged in that pit. Trading for the greater part of the day was slow.

The burglars proceeded no further, as they apparently took alarm. About 3 o'clock a pane of glass was broken in Devereaux's Grocery Store. The noise was heard by a neighbour, who at once phoned the police, and the proprietor of the store, but before the burglars were identified they made good their escape.
