Painting Over Glass

When painting over glass it is important that the glass be absolutely clean of grease, and this can be done by washing it with benzene or alcohol, and then letting it dry thoroughly. A satisfactory first coat is a straight white lead-linseed oil paint, and over this may be applied the desired color coats.

Squeaky Shoes

Stand squeaky shoes in enough linseed oil to cover the soles and let stand all night. This usually removes all squeak. However, do not let the oil touch the paper part of the shoes, or it will stain them.

Prevent Warping

The aluminum cooking pans will be easily warped out of shape if one persists in putting cold water into them while they are still hot.

and Answers Price Control Questions

Questions and Answers on Price Control will appear in The Guardian as a regular feature each day. The questions are those which have reached the Wartime Prices and Trade Board from housewives in this region. The answers are provided by the Board. Readers, persons who have intelligent questions to ask on price control are invited to send them in writing to the Women's Regional Advisory Committee.

A. A week ago I bought a chenille housecoat and paid $8.95. I am enclosing an advertisement clipped from the paper showing the same housecoat at another store for $6.95. When I opened up my parcel at home I found all tags had been removed and the bill was not enclosed. Was I overcharged?

A. A difference of $2 on one article seems very high and we have passed your letter along to our investigation department. The labels on the garments are the property of the buyer and should have been left on the housecoat when you purchased it. Our investigators will check the store in this connection as well as to price.

Q. When do the butter coupons change in value?

A. The coupons do not change in value... the butter ration was reduced from seven to six ounces per person per week commencing this month, but the reduction is effected by postponing a coupon every fourth week instead of every eighth week as was the practice before.

Dorothy Dix Says— Teen Age Marriages

Boy of 18 And Girl of 14 Too Young To Take Vows

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young man of 18 and am very much in love with a girl of 14. We have been in love for three years and we know that it is true love. Both of our parents know that we are going to get married, but her parents are not willing right now. I am a business man and have my own business and $1,400 in the bank. Also, my parents are wealthy.

We plan to go to college after we are married. We think that is best, because then we will have our minds on our books and not on each other. I would like to have your suggestions.

W. C.

MARRIAGE IS FOR ADULTS

ANSWER: You won't like my suggestion, which is that you wait until you are grown-up before you get married. Marriage is for adults and not for children. Statistics show that the percentage of divorces is far greater among boy and girl marriages than it is among older people. And that represents only a small part of the tragedy, for there are thousands upon thousands of marriages that are nothing but long endurance tests to the men and women who entered into them when they were too young to know what they were going to be themselves or what they would want in a life partner.

The theory that when an unformed boy and girl marry they will be congenial because they grow up together is the cruellest lie in the world. When teen-agers marry, it is sheer chance how they will develop, and almost always one outgrows the other and they have nothing in common. One has a good mind, the other is dull and stupid. One is gay and pleasure-loving. The other is a stick-by-the-fire who never wants to go anywhere. One is warm-hearted and affectionate. The other is a human refrigerator. And so they bore each other to tears and only too often in their maturity they meet the one who should have been their mate.

If you have no concern for your own fate, let me beseech you to have mercy on this little 14-year-old girl who, you say, has been in love with you since she was 11 years old. Don't marry her before she is old enough to know what she is doing. You know that no girl of that age is capable of an enduring, mature love, and to marry her is nothing short of crime-matching. Don't commit such a crime against her. Give her a chance at selecting her mate.

In all of the thousands of letters that I get from unhappy married people almost every one starts with "I married when I was too young."

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am engaged to a boy who is in the service. We were to be married as soon as he came home. Now he is coming and the time is so close that people have been giving me showers. But lately he has changed so I don't know what to think. Instead of writing me love letters he bosses me and tells me that I have to learn a few things, and fast. He makes remarks that are uncalculated and says things boys don't say to girls. Do you think I should break our engagement? What shall I do with the shower presents? What shall I say to people when they ask me why I have broken my engagement? Unless he changes a lot I do not think we can be happy. What shall I do?

JANE

ANSWER: Wait until the boy comes home and see how you feel about him then. But my earnest advice is not to marry a boy who has evidently lost his taste for you and who is trying to boss you even before marriage. And above all, don't tie up with a groom-to-be. Showers presents are rarely valuable, so you might keep the stockings and the towels your friends gave you as a sort of consolation prize.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am in love with a girl who has a husband and two small children. She drinks heavily and has no sense of responsibility or the value of money. We broke up and I am miserable because I love her terribly. What do you think our chances of happiness would be if she were free?

WORRIED

ANSWER: None, brother. You are certainly hunting for trouble if you marry a woman who has no single quality that recommends her as a wife.

Q. How can I mend a crack in the linoleum?

A. Mix some finely chopped cork with liquid glue. When the crack has been filled with this, and it has set hard, rub down with emery paper and then paint to match the linoleum.

Q. How can I cook garlic with soup?

A. Never cook garlic in with soup or goulash. One or two cloves of garlic will give sufficient flavoring and these should be cooked in the kettle before putting in the other ingredients. This method will give flavor without proving overpowering.

Ellen's Diary

By an Island Farmer's Wife

I thought there could be no Sabbath morning more beautiful than the winter one which greeted me, when I came to the new window yesterday. It was mild then, and the light of the sun seemed to shed a lovely benediction over the scene and staid, leafy, along the side; above the house on the hill and the mill in the valley; on the green meadow and on every field and tree and woodland. The road, winding toward towards the highway was a deserted place, but presently Pat would be on his way to his Church, perhaps on foot or comfortable behind a white horse. "It's but right to 'lend Church'!" Pat will say to me, when he comes calling on an evening. And then, in the afternoon, when company had come to Aiderlea, talks from this road, who worship each Sabbath at the old Kirk at the corner, went by the side of the mill, along the snowy trail. Karolyn alone represented the family. "It was so nice today, and she asked me, 'Did you ever notice how pretty the grounds and Church are now, in their winter setting?'"

But if yesterday was mellow do that country folk were able to attend the Church of their choice in comfort, today the "strain of weather" changed. "Ellen" James called me softly from my sleep, this morning "do you hear that? It was the frost snapping with a startling report, like that of a small fire-arm. "And look at that window!" he said, raising himself on an elbow, as if he found it hard to believe, what his first glance had revealed. "I knew we were in for a cold spell. Remember how queer the sun set Saturday—when heaved it a day or two, what I do recollect a prism of rainbow colors, a distance to the right of the dying sun. So that was what I saw!" he said, "I had a good look at that window," he said, raising himself on an elbow, as if he found it hard to believe, what his first glance had revealed.
