This lovely bud so young and fair, Called hence by early doom; Just came to show how sweet a flower, In paradise could bloom.

THE DEATH OF LING, BRACKLEY BEACH. Miss Mina Ling, Brackley Beach has received the following sympathetic letter from France concerning the death of her brother, Private Arthur Ling who was killed in action as already recorded in The Guardian Somewhere in France, Sept. 21, 1916.

Dear Miss Ling:— It is a very painful task for me to have to write you and tell you that your brother Arthur was killed in action on September 15th. He was a good soldier and a good cheery boy, and it will be a terrible blow to you all to learn of his death. I am sure but you have this consolation that he died a true soldier and man, giving his life for his King and country, and the Cause of Righteousness and Truth which we believe we are fighting for.

He died in the advance of the morning of the 15th of September, between our old front line and the new position we were taking from the Germans. His death was almost instantaneous and so he suffered very little pain, if any at all. He died a true soldier doing his duty. He was in the same Co. as I used to be, and so I knew him quite well, and he was a popular and well liked boy. I am sending you two letters which he had started and which I found on his body, also his accommodation ticket on the boat in which he crossed the Atlantic I presume. He also sent a card which was in his writing case in his pocket.

Now trusting that God in His infinite mercy will give you all strength to bear your great sorrow, for His ways, though we do not always understand them, are best, and that He will abundantly make it up to you in Grace, for the loss you have sustained.

Believe me, a sympathetic friend, FRANK H. CLARK.

Sniper's Section 28th Battalion. Arthur Ling referred to was the oldest son of Mrs. William Ling, Brackley Beach. He left home for Regina, Sask., in March 1913, where he worked until May 1915 when he enlisted with the 46th Battalion and on going to France was transferred to the 28th Battalion. He had been in the trenches since early in January, and took part in several engagements. His letters were always cheerful and his death at the early age of 22 years is sincerely mourned by a large circle of relatives and friends. Besides his mother, his brother and three sisters who have the sympathy of all in their sad bereavement.

ACHIEVEMENT OF BIRD PROTECTIONISTS.

Uniform Protection for Birds Throughout Canada and the United States.

Bird lovers throughout North America are deeply gratified over the recent conclusion of the treaty under which Canada and the United States will co-operate in extending adequate protection to insectivorous birds. The treaty applies to useful birds, migratory habits, and includes practically all our Canadian songsters, most of which are invaluable destroyers of insect pests. An absolute close season throughout the year is imposed on migratory insectivorous birds, enumerated as follows: Bobolinks, catbirds, chickadees, cuckoos, flickers, flycatchers, grosbeaks, hummingbirds, kinglets, martins, meadowlarks, night hawks or bull bats, nuthatches, orioles, robins, shrikes, swallows, swifts, tanagers, titmice, thrushes, vireos, warblers, waxwings, whippoorwills, woodpeckers and wrens, and all other perching birds which feed entirely or chiefly on insects. Except for scientific or preparatory purposes, these birds, their eggs or their nests may not be taken at any time. Bird protectionists in general whether actuated chiefly by sentimental or economic motives, have fought a hard battle and achieved a magnificent triumph. The greatness of their cause, from a purely material standpoint, may be appreciated when it is stated on competent authority that the annual loss in the United States on farm and forest products, chargeable to insect pests, exceeds $500,000,000. As Canada's losses are no doubt proportionately great, it is evident that no efforts should be spared to protect birds and all other insect destroyers. Bird protection in Canada is a matter of provincial jurisdiction, and in most cases the laws have been fairly adequate. If properly carried out, however, the provisions of the treaty, offering uniform protection throughout the greater part of the continent, should enable North American bird life to thrive and increase as never before.

MONTEREY

(By Charles Fermo Hoffman.)

An old song, and true; and never more truly applicable than in these days to our own lads of the Maple Leaf. We were not many—we who stood Before the iron sheet that day; Yet many a gallant spirit would Give half his years if but he could Have with us been at Monterey.

Now here, now there, the shot it hail'd In deadly drift of fiery spray, Yet not a single soldier quail'd When wounded comrades round them wall'd Their dying shout at Monterey.

And on—still our column kept Through walls of flame its withering way; Where all the dead, the living slept, Still charging on the guns, which swept The slippery streets of Monterey.

The foe himself recoil'd aghast, When striking were the strongest lay, We swoop'd his flanking batteries past, And braving full their murderous blast Storm'd home the towers of Monterey.

Our banners on those turrets wave, And there our evening bugles play; Where orange boughs above their grave Keep green the memory of the brave Who fought and fell at Monterey.

We are not many—we who press'd Beside the brae who fell that day— But who of us have not confess'd He'd rather share their warrior rest Than not have been at Monterey?

Monterey is a city in Mexico taken by the United States troops, under General Taylor, from the Mexicans under Ampudia, on Sept. 24, 1846, after three days' fighting.

CARE OF CUT FLOWERS.

Some women have what their friends admiringly call a faculty for making flowers live. Others seem to wither the flowers they touch so quickly do they fade. The vaunted faculty is really no more than intelligent care and any woman who wishes to exercise it may do so. There are the faded flowers to keep in mind, and some of their likes and dislikes if you would be one of the women with a faculty for making cut flowers.

A piece of charcoal dropped into a vase of flowers does much to keep the water from getting stagnant and when flowers are arranged carefully and you do not disturb them, the charcoal for freshness is very good. Always change the water on flowers when possible, every day. Use clear cold water and use plenty of it.

For roses, put half a teaspoonful of salt in the water and each morning cut off the ends of the stems a little—about a quarter of an inch. Remember always that faded foliage of any sort gives a faded air to the flowers. Hence all drooping foliage should immediately be thrown away. If there are faded leaves clip them off with sharp scissors. If there is a drooping bud or flower head clip them off and throw it away. Often a fresh appearance can be given to a whole vaseful of flowers by this simple method of eliminating the faded foliage.

A few flowers go a long way, always remembering, if they are skillfully arranged. Fern and other greenery can be used with any flowers to increase their bulk to very good advantage.

OATMEAL FOR THREE AND THINE

"Through neither a business woman nor a public woman, I have had much experience, a large family, and a small income," says a writer on household topics. "Seeking the strongest muscles, soundest flesh, rosiest cheeks, and the most active brains, I have sifted all the varieties of food products to the bottom, and the result is—oatmeal. My small baby eats or almost drinks the gruel. My children and husband eat the porridge in the morning. For supper I cut the oatmeal, left from breakfast, in slices, dip in an egg, well beaten, fry it brown. This is improved by using the dripping from the breakfast bacon for fat. Sometimes I serve it cold with milk and sugar. For company, it is very attractive, poured in molds. I use little cups. This makes it quiver like jelly, when it is turned out in glass saucers. Use whipped cream, powdered sugar and a maraschino cherry on top.

My favorite recipe is for nut cakes. 1 cup of sugar, 1 cup of shortening, 1 cup butter, 4 teaspoonfuls of sour milk, 4 even teaspoonfuls of soda dissolved in milk, 2 eggs. Spice to taste. I prefer cinnamon and cloves. 1 cup of raisins, 1 cup of nuts, chopped or cut up. Drop on buttered tins, and bake in a moderate oven. These bring a ready sale at church teas."

SONGS OF THE BRITISH SOLDIER ON THE ROAD.

The humble peasant hears it in the watches of the night, And he smiles and softly breathes a blessing then; The noble eagle hears it in his airy on the height, And the water-fowl within the moorland fen. The wounded Tommies hear it in the Chateau on the hill, How it helps to mitigate their weary load.

THE SILENT NAVY.

The silence of the navy is a most impressive thing. It has been silent in many seas and on many occasions. The biographer of John Hay, once American ambassador to England, has now, after many years, broken that silence by relating how the suggestion that the British fleet was at the disposal of the United States prevented a European conflict against that nation when the Spanish war was imminent. Again, it was the silent hint conveyed by the position of Sir Edward Chichester's flagship in Manila Bay that caused the German admiral to retire. It was in silence, too, that the British fleet disappeared from view on June 26, 1914, and made it unsafe for the German Emperor to despatch his squadrons, then quartered in Norwegian fjords, by way of the Atlantic to destroy the French fleet in the Mediterranean. But the silence that is almost uncanny is that which, broken only once on Judgment Day, yelled the battle-cries of Great Britain from the gaze of the world since the war began.

And yet protected by those great unseen ships, the commerce of the world has gone on; troops from every domination and British possession have sailed over thousands of miles; millions of British soldiers have gone to France, Greece, Egypt, East and West Africa, Mesopotamia and China, and the Entente Allies have been supplied with coal, steel, oil, shell and guns, and all the other necessities of war, as well as everything required for their sustenance. In short the resounding blows delivered by the army wherever the enemy is at bay in his long and attenuated battle lines. Canada is asked to supply a few men for the new super dreadnoughts; there ought to be an instant response; for it is no small honor that is done to us by the request.

Are Interned German Ships in America Ports Being Used To Aid The Enemy

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The following two letters, intercepted on their way to Germany, were made public here today. The first one from Max —461 East Eighth Street, South Boston, addressed to his brother, said: "Dear Gustave: "The Willehad sailed today. I am to stay until the end of the war. The Willehad will act within the American three mile limit as a telegraph station for submarines. She has four months' provisions on board." The second letter was from the captain of the Willehad, named Jacobsen, who wrote from New London to his sister in Germany, saying: "I rejoice I am now here as captain of the Willehad. The Koln still lies at Boston. I am here with the Willehad on a special mission. "Later you will hear more from me. I rejoice that I have done something for the Fatherland and that I still have more to do." The North German Lloyd steamship Willehad, which took refuge in Boston soon after the beginning of the war was taken to New London on August 25 last under command of Captain Jacobsen and was tied up at the pier of the Eastern Forwarding Company, the American agent for the German submarine merchantman. The Willehad was said to carry a full crew of German sailors, some of whom were declared at the time to have been recruited from other ships. The wireless on the Willehad, as well as on all other German and Belgian vessels in American ports, was dismantled and sealed by customs officers soon after the beginning of the war. The steamship Koln, also owned by the North German Lloyd, reached Boston from Bremen on August 11, 1914, after eluding British cruisers in the Atlantic. The Koln is still tied up at Boston. The Willehad at New London was taken to a prepared dock on which the Eastern Forwarding Company had elected under rush orders after the arrival of the lumberable Deutschland of Baltimore, a corrugated iron shed about 400 feet long by 25 feet wide with the end of the pier enclosed by a high fence joined on to the office of the company. Captain Hinsch, former master of the North German Lloyd liner Neckar, was brought from Baltimore and placed in charge of the property. The Willehad, as she now lies, is made fast to cluster pillars fifty feet away from the dock, her stern hard against the bank of the Thames River. Her wireless is sealed. Between the ship and the dock is space of about fifty feet intended for the reception of the expected Bremen or other ships of the submarine merchant fleet. To shut out possible view of interruption of loading and unloading process of the merchant submarines a floating gate 30 feet high has been constructed, made fast to piling at the bow of the Willehad, and so designed that when closed the space between the ship and dock is completely closed in. The piling under the pier on which the shed is built as well as the piling to which the Willehad is made fast is said to have been wired under the water to prevent, it was explained, possible damage to the merchant boats coming up to it under the Willehad. These wires are electrically connected with a gong in the office of the company. The crew of the Willehad are doing all the work around the docks and piers, including that of watchman. It is also said in New London that the sailors will be used to discharge and load the cargo of any merchant submarine which may arrive in the future.

Two Cases of Eczema And How They Were Cured

FURTHER PROOF THAT DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR CHRONIC ECZEMA. "Mrs. W. G. Dowden, Greenspond, Bonavista Bay, Nfld., writes: "I suffered with eczema on my hands, and for eighteen months was so bad that I could use a needle to sew or do anything. I could scarcely dress myself. Though I had lots of salves from doctors, I could never get much benefit from them. Then I sent for a sample of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and found it very different in action. It was not long before my hands began to heal, and four 60c boxes made them well. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment too highly, and frequently give some to others to get them using it, for I know that it will cure." In the home Dr. Chase's Ointment is of almost daily usefulness for relieving chafing and irritation of the skin it prevents eczema and similar itching skin diseases. Applied to all cuts and wounds, it prevents blood poisoning and heals the skin. Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

ISLANDERS WOUNDED.—Saturday's casualty list contained the names of two Islanders wounded, Private A. Stewart, of Iris and H. Jarvis of Charlottetown. In the list in Saturday's issue of the Guardian the item referring to the wounding of Mr. H. C. Hooper's son was somewhat "mixed." It is Gunner Fred Hooper of the 88th S-edge Battery who is in the hospital in Rouen, suffering from a gunshot wound in the face which was accidentally received. Another brother Bert, who enlisted in the first contingent in Weyburn, Sask., as a trooper in the Strathcona Horse, is also at the front. TO CONTINUE REMOVING FREIGHT.—The car ferry steamer which has been awaiting an opportunity for some two months past, to go on the drydock at Halifax, received orders on Saturday morning to proceed to that port, as the slip would be available for her on Tuesday. Premier Matheson at once got into communication with Mr. C. A. Haynes, Montreal, informing him of the congestion of freight here, particularly perishable produce, and pointing out the undesirability of having the steamer withdrawn at this time. As a result Mr. Haynes at once gave instructions that the steamer should remain here until further orders. Premier Matheson all further orders. Premier Matheson communicated to the Board of Trade, who were taking steps in the same direction, and who expressed their satisfaction at the decision arrived at. ONCE NEARLY RUN DOWN. "I also came awful near being run down by a big fishing vessel on a foggy night. The fog came so quick I couldn't make a port, so had to keep running all night. "Out of the thick fog came a big ship and cleared my boat by only 18 inches. The spray from the prow nearly filled the Lily May, and I was sent flying away from the ship like an eggshell. "If I had been swamped I would not have been saved, because I could not see a single member of the ship's crew on deck. The lookout must have gone below for a hurried lunch. The fog was so thick that nobody would have seen me, and they would have passed on just as they did.
