

An Anso On Christmas Day Brings Joy The Whole Year Round

A Camera makes an acceptable gift at all seasons of the year, and at Christmas time no one present carries with it more of genuine pleasure. With it the joys of the holiday season can be perpetuated in pictures which will revivify the happy hours of Christmas day.

Perhaps next year the old folks will no longer be here. Changes are bound to come. The baby whose first Christmas this is will next year be toddling youngster glorying in the festivities which now he views with open eyed wonder. A picture of him will be priceless later on, for somehow you know these babies have a way of fading from our memories and nothing but a picture can preserve them.

Throughout the whole year the Anso Christmas gift daily bespeaks the thoughtfulness of the giver. Surely a camera is a gift ideal, and by giving an Anso you can make your gift distinctive. They range in prices from $2.00 to $50.00

NOTHING exceeds like excess!
THE WORST knock of all is the boost that isn't merited.
HOT HEADS often give way to cold feet.
SOME PHASES of this titanic Teutonic struggle are rather too tonic.
THE PROBLEM of what to eat is ever recurrent, says Julius Chambers, the noted writer. Yes, generally about three times a day anyway.
THE STEAMERS Stanley and Brant have been doing splendid work lately "uplifting the buoys," and they don't belong to the Y. M.
FAVORED.
 The bald man is a favored guy. Heaven does not, on him frown, The bald man doesn't have to die To get his shining crown.
THE CURFEW.
 The curfew soon again may toll The dismal hour of nine o'. When kids who should be in their beds Will say, "No home, sweet home for mine o'."
SCAT!
 Backward, turn backward, O Time, in thy flight! Show us the cat that disturbed us last night.

ALL HOPES for peace this Christmas are blasted—by shell fire.
 IT would be better for those people who are trying to "bull" and "bear" the market not to monkey with it.
THE TROUBLE with the world this Christmas is that it is suffering from the same old attack of Bill-lousness.
POULTRY may be a great luxury but this is no excuse for any person making a goose of himself at Christmas.
 THERE are two classes of men in the world—those who make fools of themselves and those who don't have to.
NO MATTER how high the price of eggs may soar we will not go as far as to say they are getting rather too fresh.
TAKE SOMETHING HOME.
 Isn't it fine when it's Saturday night And wherever the streets you roam The men that you meet, with their faces bright, Are taking something home— Taking her something on Saturday night, Life's little tribute of love and light. If only there's love in it, what does she care, So that the beauty of love is there. —BALTIMORE SUN.
AT THE WINDOW.
 When Christmas time is pretty near, If we're good girls an' boys, Our mothers' take us up the street an' let us see the toys. An' we forget that it is cold an' that our clothes is thin An' think we're mighty lucky just to stand there lookin' in. If we could only have our wish I guess that we would pray To have some angel come some night an' take that glass away. An' it would pay the angel, too, to see the mothers smile. If we could play with all those toys for just a little while. Some day when we are all grown up an' rich as we can be, If Santa Claus would just bring things like those in there to me An' for awhile it seems almost as if he really had. An' then I 'member that he ain't an' my, it makes me sad! Some day when we are all grown up
