YES—thinnest crepes, gayest of flowered chiffons, the flimsiest of frocks can now be worn, under one's most distressing hygienic handicap, in complete safety.

Filled with Cellucotton wadding, the world's super-absorbent, Kotex is 5 times more absorbent than the ordinary cotton pad. And that means five times ordinary safety.

Also, you discard Kotex as easily as tissue. No laundry, no embarrassing disposal. Also—it deodorizes thoroughly.

More than a mere "pad," Kotex offers scientific protection. Get at stores. But be sure box is marked "Kotex." If it isn't, it is not genuine Kotex.

(Special to the Guardian)
JASPER PARK LODGE, Alta., July 29.—A party of fifty three members of the Order of the Eastern Star, from points in Eastern Canada and United States, arrived in Jasper by special train over the lines of the Canadian National Railways yesterday. The object of this international order is to give Eastern Canadians and Americans a wider knowledge of the Dominion, its resources and scenic wonders, and this being Confederation year it was the first to be particularly appropriate for a tour of this kind.

Exiled Prince Left $400,000 By Ferdinand

BUCHAREST, July 27.—The late King Ferdinand in the codicil to his will dealing with the "severe ordeal" to which he was subjected by the abdication of his first-born, begs Heaven to make the way which "my dear son Carol" has chosen for himself easy and bearable.

The full contents of the will are now known. It was read to the Royal family, the Regents and the Cabinet, at Sinaia Palace Wednesday by the Minister of Justice, M. Păpescu. As the will was read Queen Marie wept continuously and often seemed on the point of a complete breakdown.

In a letter accompanying the will and addressed to the President of the Cabinet Council, Ferdinand stated frankly that it was his duty to his country that forced him, for the good of the state, to accept the abdication of Carol and his exile and that to the last his heart yearned as a father for the return of his son.

He made an almost pathetic appeal to the former heir to the throne and to refrain from throing his country into civil war by revolutionary attempts to regain what he gave up voluntarily.

The documents left by Ferdinand are not in the usual diplomatic language of a throne. In simple, forceful sentences the King revealed his lovable character and fair judgment which made him so popular. The letter to the ministers, dated July 15 says:

"As a Christian I have always in mind the moment when I will present myself to my God. As King of Rumania I have always thought of the welfare of my country, for which I have given my life on earth.

"My love of country does not permit me to consider my duty finished with this life. God wishes that the Crown, which I possess, should be jointly with the welfare of the country, should descend to my little grandchild, Michael. I pray to Heaven to defend him and allow that in time his reign in Rumania, which is built upon so many sacrifices, should become greater and more solid."

The King's original testament was signed January 2, 1925, when Carol was still Prince. On January 11, of the following year, one week after his son's renunciation of his heritage, Ferdinand added the codicil in which he disowned Carol, all bequests save the entailed portion legally due him, being cancelled in favor of his son Michael.

King Michael has the duty of maintaining the royal residences, in which his grandmother, however, will be mistress until he becomes of age. He also inherits the major part of his grandfather's personal estate, estimated as many millions of dollars and including a number of castles and other valuable property.

All that Carol now receives will be $400,000 a sum small in comparison with what he would have had. The bequest is to be paid to him in cash.

Ferdinand preface his will with an introduction to the effect that his recovery from his long illness obliges him to complete his testamentary dispositions. He thanks God for having permitted him to labor for his country. In this portion, written before Carol's abdication, he says:

"I lived for my country. My pleasure is the greatest of my land. I beg my son Carol to have as his first principle to strive for the same end and to work for the union of all the Rumanian peoples. His greatest aim should be true service to the State and he must put all his heart into it."

Later, in disposing of his property, he says:

"First, I must thank the woman and Queen who has been my dearest companion and benefactor in all things and at all times. Her love for the State has been common with mine. I leave her the castles of Sinaia and Cotroceni and a sufficient income for my principal estates to operate them in the manner necessary. Her Majesty also receives the furnishings of the castles."

In his first will Ferdinand left to Carol the residue of his estates and houses in Bucharest, but in the codicil he divides these and requests that Carol's part be paid to him in cash.

Do not polish floors immediately after applying wax. Allow the wax to remain on overnight. They will then be much more easily polished.

Dainty pieces of furniture will look like new if washed with a good white soap and water. If they are to be stained it is well to wash
