Among the 112 medical graduates of the University of Philadelphia Medical School, is Franklin J. Webster, of Ten Mile House, in this Province. Mr. Webster is to be congratulated on his success. He was formerly a school teacher at Ten Mile House, and also at Westport Covehead. The examinations at "Old Penn" this year were more than usually severe as the Faculty are contemplating making the medical a five year's course instead of four as heretofore.

That Prince Edward Island is having much better weather than Boston is favored with is evident by a letter received by a member of The Guardian staff from a gentleman in that city. He says that so far this spring there have been but three days in which he could go out without an overcoat and was compelled to wear one every evening. This is quite in contrast to the number of warm days the people of this province has been favored with.

Surely there is someone to undertake the running of a light eight-seater team during the summer months. There should be very little expense attached to the venture. All that is necessary is two pairs of wheels with two axles, two strong springs and backboard bottom with half a dozen or more seats and a canopy top. There is no doubt but the entire rig could be quickly got together by some enterprising carriage builder in this city. With two horses attached the team could start say at nine or ten o'clock each morning ending the trip in two or three hours. There should be money in it for some go-ahead person. The first applicant The Guardian will advertise free in locals daily during the season, the place and hour of departure.

The death of Frank Carney, one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Hopewell Hill, N. B., occurred on the 12th inst, occasioning sincere regret throughout the community. The deceased had been somewhat subject to attacks of heart trouble but was enjoying his ordinary health when, about two weeks ago, he was taken quite violently ill, paralysis eventually setting in. Mr. Carney was about 75 years of age and went to New Brunswick from P. E. Island when a small lad. His youth was spent in New Horton, Albert county, and about 35 years ago he removed to Hopewell Hill, residing there continuously since. He was a man of very vigorous constitution and spent a life in which industry and sobriety brought its natural reward of material prosperity and enjoyment. The deceased was upright and honest in every way and earned the esteem of all. He was a life long total abstainer and for many years was prominently connected with the Baptist church. Mr. Carney's father was Frank Carney, his mother being formerly Miss Charlotte McFonnis of Glasgow, Scotland. The deceased is survived by his wife, who was formerly Miss Charlotte McCreedy, St. John. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. J. R. Farrell, of Portland (Me.) two half-sisters—Mrs. Gillis, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Hall, of California, and a half-brother Rev. James Carney, of India.
