

PURITY FLOUR More Bread and Better Bread

The Veiled Future THE year upon which we are entering is dark with mystery—we cannot forecast the events of a single day of it.

BASIC SLAG (Sometimes known as Thomas Phosphate Powder) The two sources of Phosphoric Acid, the element of fertility lacking to the greatest extent in the cultivated soils of the Maritime Provinces, are Basic Slag and Acid Phosphate, or Superphosphate.

BASIC SLAG Contains in addition to the Phosphoric Acid from 800 to 1000 lbs. of Lime. In the form in which this Lime exists it does not burn up the humus in the soil like burnt Lime.

BASIC SLAG In addition to the Phosphoric Acid and Lime contained in Basic Slag there is also present a quantity of iron, the effect of which is to aid bacterial growth in the soil, a matter of the highest importance.

Prof. Cumming of the Agricultural College, Truro In the annual report of the Dept. of Agriculture for Nova Scotia, for year 1914, writes, referring to their experiments in connection with commercial fertilizers as follows:

INCENDIARY ATTEMPT.—About 11 o'clock Friday night fire was discovered in a stairway in the Gedin building just in time to prevent what might have been a very serious affair. That it was an incendiary attempt was clearly indicated by the fact that papers were found stuffed between laths from which the plaster had fallen, paper and laths being quite brisquely when discovered. A few more minutes would have meant a fire that would have been difficult to cope with. The incipient blaze was put out without the help of the firemen.—C.

The bride looked charming and gowned in white shadow lace over a foundation of Brussels net with intricate and embroidered veil caught up in place with a pretty wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a beautiful bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern. Her attendants were her sister Miss Hazel and Miss Corbett of Alberton who were also attractively attired in shadow lace over silk. The evening was very pleasantly spent in music singing, recitation and gramophone selections. As the night advanced the invited guests began to take their departure thanking Mr. and Mrs. Horne for the way they had been royally entertained. Mr. and Mrs. Guard went to their new home the following day and all join in wishing them a very happy wedded life.
