DOUKHOBOR WOMEN.

The National Council of Women are giving attention to the feminine portion of the Doukhobor colony which settled recently in Canada. A letter from the Secretary of the National Council just received by a friend in this city gives an inkling of the mode in which it is proposed to assist and also throws some light upon the social status of these immigrants. The Secretary writes:

"At present we are busy getting the loan of money to assist the Doukhobor women by sending them materials to do their beautiful embroidery, drawn work, &c which we will afterward try to sell for them. There are about five thousand of these women, and only about fifteen hundred able-bodied men to work for them, and so many of them are widows, or grass widows, whose husbands have been beaten to death by the Russians or are still in captivity."

The above extract was not intended for publication, but it may enable us better to understand and sympathise with the conditions of life in the Doukhobor colony, concerning whom such confusing accounts have been given to the reading community. It has been said that the Doukhobor men are lazy and that the women are in consequence forced to do work for which they are utterly unfitted and have even been doing the work of horses in dragging the plough. This sort of thing, though common enough in sections of the European continent, is quite revolting to Canadian ideas. It is quite probable, however, that the rougher tasks undertaken by the Doukhobor women in the Northwest arises, not from the laziness of the men but from the exigencies of life in a new settlement where the adult women are three times as numerous as the men.

The most reliable accounts show that both sexes of the Doukhobors are industrious, cleanly, honest and devout. They have suffered intolerable oppressions, to escape from which they have crossed thousands of miles of ocean and other thousands of miles of land. They will at once find in Canada the boon of civil and religious liberty, and yet there is much in their condition which must appeal to our humanity. They are in a land of strangers, whose language they cannot speak and whose ways are unfamiliar to them. The small proportion of able-bodied men gives an impression of the comparative helplessness of the community. "So many of the women are widows," too, and from such a cause! Husbands beaten to death by the Russians or he'd in captivity in the land of the oppressor.

We regard it as a most worthy charity to assist these Doukhobor women in their new homes in the Northwest. That they are Christians who have suffered much for their faith, we know. That they do beautiful work in embroidery shows that they are not wanting in taste which will develop under freedom and improved conditions. To provide them with employment of a partly remunerative sort for the long winter and in a line with their tastes seems the very best thing to do. It will also show the sympathy of their Canadian sisters, and make the lot of these Christian exiles more cheerful and hopeful. In doing this the Women's Council is engaged in a most praiseworthy work.

"Doing nothing is doing ill." Impure blood neglected will become a serious matter. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla at once and avoid the ill.

"Welcome, Evil, If Thou Comest Alone."

One evil that cannot come alone is impure blood. If this is allowed, it is attended by kindred ailments galore. This condition means that every vein and artery of the body, instead of carrying to the organs a health-giving flow of life, is laden with a slow and impure fluid that is harmful instead of healing.

It is unfortunate when there is "bad blood" inside of you. Hood's Sarsaparilla will not make enemies friends, but it will make "bad blood," good blood, and blood should be of the best quality. Hood's never disappoints.

Erysipelas—Had a severe attack of erysipelas, suffering from dizziness and nervousness so that I could not rest at night. Tried Hood's Sarsaparilla with good results, and now recommend it to others." M. CHALMERS, Toronto, Ont.

Rheumatism—"I was badly afflicted with sciatic rheumatism. Consulted doctors without relief. Was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and five bottles gave me relief and enabled me to go to work." WILLIAM R. ROACH, Margareville, N. S.
