(AP. By Guardian's Special Wire)

Ottawa, Aug. 29—(CP)—Work began today on the bare stone toppling of the Peace Arch at the entrance of the Parliament Building disclosing the outline of a beaver holding a union jack shield in his paws. The original model destined for this place of honor, a mother beaver and nine little ones, remained in the sculptor's workshop in the basement.

Because of doubt expressed over the ability of a female beaver to produce a litter of nine, the first design, representing Canada and the nine provinces, has been shelved. Some persons contended, however, that as the provinces did not all join Confederation at the same time, the nine beaver-kittens did not necessarily belong to the same litter.
