FEW BRITISH GIRLS FAIL IN CANADA

TORONTO, Dec. 8.—Ten thousand British girls emigrated to Canada last year, 5,000 of whom settled in Toronto. From the Scottish highlands the moors of the borders, the cities and rural districts of England, these 5,000 selected girls arrived here to become part of Canada's social fabric. The careers of these girls form a fascinating study of success in every field of the city's life and with a very small percentage of failure. Eighty percent of the girls according to record, have done at least 50 percent better than they did in the old country; 7 percent are earning a living but doubtfully recommended in terms of the word success; and 13 percent have fallen by the wayside.

The lot of these girls whose lives have run full of established social custom, alone and friendless in a strange country, has been a hard one.

But there is also a bright side to the picture; tales of happy homes and mothers, for a large percentage of these girls marry within two years of bank balances, property and investment owned, and of girls who have qualified for better types of employment than that for which they were fitted on their arrival. Many girls have studied in night schools and are stenographers in city offices, or nurses who have graduated with honors. Some of these girls are now school teachers in the far west, domesticated and balanced with the poise that only sacrifice endeavor and self-reliance gives.

PLAY AT CORNWALL

On Wednesday and Thursday evenings, December fifth and sixth, the Cornwall Community club presented to appreciative audiences in Cornwall hall the three act farce, "Poor Father." The scene of this play is the living room of the Tompkins' home. Mr. Tompkins, who is portrayed by Mr. Seymour Scott, gets into difficulties because of his two weaknesses, namely: politics and an attraction to the fair sex. In getting out of these difficulties he brings to his aid Harold Caldwell, which part is ably taken by John Scott. The colored servant in the Tompkins family, George Washington Brown, whose imagination is allowed to exert itself to the fullest and which is also responsible for the "obnoxious deeds" committed is portrayed by Mr. Gordon MacMillan. Many laughs and much merriment is caused by this character. Mrs. Tompkins, the distracted mother of the family, is played by Mrs. Gordon MacMillan. Mr. Leonard MacDonald acts the part of Mr. Dummel to perfection.

Mr. Dummel has a very serious affliction, partial loss of memory, and Tompkins takes advantage of this in getting out of one of his difficulties. Tompkins attempts to bring about a marriage between Dummel and Vivian Laramie, an actress, who is an old flame of Tompkins. The part of the actress is well acted by Miss Flossie Younker. Clifford Tompkins, a student of psychology, who is always quoting Prof. Smith, is acted by Clarence MacLean. Gladys, Caroline, and Bessie, the three daughters of Mr. Tompkins, are acted by the Misses Ina Livingston, Emily Platts and Reta Abbott respectively. The maid of the remarkably pretty french maid is well taken by Mrs. Leonard MacDonald, while Mr. Waldron Lowther capably acts the part of the police sergeant. Altogether the play affords a great many laughs and provides a fine evening's entertainment.

AFRICAN WAGE BOARD HIT

A round-table conference of representatives of European natives and Indian unionists to discuss ways and means of establishing a minimum wage indifferent industries for non-European workers is being discussed in South Africa. The conference will probably be held at Johannesburg. The desire is to secure a minimum wage which will take cognizance of the economic position of the industries concerned. It is reported that the movement arises from general dissatisfaction with the Wage Board, which is distrusted because, while claiming that it recognizes no color line in industry, it knows that neither Indians nor natives would be allowed a wage equal to that of Europeans.

UPS AND DOWNS FROM TRYON AND VICINITY

We humans ourselves have our ups and downs.

One day is all smiles, the next one all frowns.

Mr. C. D. Wright of Tryon returned recently after spending a few days in St. John N. B.

Mrs. Dora Pooley of Amesbury, Mass., arrived home last week and will remain for a month, the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Thompson of Crapaud, P. E. I. Her many friends in Tryon and vicinity are glad to welcome her back again and renew old friendships.

Mrs. Jack Thomas and daughter, Miss Ruby of Tryon were visitors to Crapaud on Saturday.

On Wednesday evening, Dec. 5th, the annual Chicken Supper and Bazaar of the Combined Ladies' Sewing Circles of North Tryon and Tryon United Church was held in the hall in Tryon. The night was ideal and car roads quite good, this combined to make the affair a huge success. The booth of fancy articles was well patronized and everyone satisfied with their purchases and the chicken supper speaks for itself, everyone doing justice to the excellent meal set before them. Over $100.00 was realized from the supper and bazaar. Congratulations Ladies "Not so Bad!"

Mrs. John H. Myers and son Frank of Hampton, P. E. I. were motorists to Tryon on Thursday December 6th.

Miss Fannie Rogerson of Tryon spent the week end with relatives in Crapaud and vicinity.

The auction sale of the household effects, farm implements and machinery of Mr. John B. MacFadden of Augustine Cove took place on Tuesday, Dec. 4th, and proved to be one of the largest, if not the largest attended sales, held in the district for some time. Mr. Hugh Morrison of Kensington auctioned off the many articles in a remarkably short time and in a manner satisfactory to all.

Mr. and Mrs. Marley M. Bell and Harrison B. Bell of Summerside, P. E. I. were motorists to Tryon on Sunday of last week.

Mrs. Jack Thomas has returned to her home in Tryon after spending a fortnight's visit with her sister in Northport, P. E. I.

Everyone is anxiously awaiting the Chicken Supper and Bazaar of the Presbyterian Ladies which they are holding at the home of Mrs. Sarah MacKenzie of Tryon on Wednesday, Dec. 12th. They have a large showing of fancy articles, gifts which would make ideal Xmas gifts and as that happy season is drawing nigh, here's a chance to do your shopping.

Mr. Willard Thomas of Victoria, P. E. I. made a business trip to Summerside on Saturday December 8th.

Mr. and Mrs. Steward MacMicken of Charlottetown, P. E. I. motored to Victoria, P. E. I. on Thursday December 6th.

Miss Edith Lord and Mr. William D. Lee of Summerside P. E. I. spent the week end at their respective homes in Tryon.

Canadians Make Sweep in Chicago

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—The performance of Canadian horse and sheep breeders yesterday in making almost complete sweeps of the ribbons in four divisions at the International Livestock Exposition has brought the Dominion back once more in the limelight after the discouraging start that it made in the early days of the show.

The pure bred Clydesdale breeder, J.E. Falconer of Govan, Sask., took five firsts in the age classes, two grand championships, two senior championships, and a junior championship in the competition in his particular field, and three Ontario sheep breeders who came here represented by strong entries did their best to improve upon his performance in their department of the show.

The outstanding sheep victory was that registered by Humphrey Snell, of Clinton, Ont. Snell won every age class save the aged ram, won the ram and ewe championships and took first place ribbons in both ram and ewe pen competitions. The aged ram class, his only failure, brought him a second place, and one of his lambs later defeated the first place aged ram for the ram championship.

'Phantom' News-Papers Tell of King's Death

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The newspapers which are not printed are among the thus far untold stories of the King's illness.

Until all danger of the Monarch's attack is passed there will come no relief from the intensity of the vigil in the street of adventure—Fleet Street—which runs from Ludgate Circus to the Strand, hiding behind its nondescript frontage of newspaper signs and heterogeneous architecture, the greatest neighborhood of press rooms in the world.

On cold stone forms in these buildings for the last fortnight have rested page by page of type with column rules inverted. From these in a few brief minutes a flood of printed newspapers could be snatched off roaring presses.

These newspapers would tell of the King's death and all it means to Britain. They would tell the story of the widowed Queen of an Empire bowed in sorrow and of a Kingdom preparing for the funeral pomp of a royal burial, and of the majesty and glories of an enthrone.

Every detail is complete, nearly every line of type is in place. Almost hourly there are changes made in the set pages of type as the latest bulletin from the palace is added and the latest progress of the Prince of Wales' return voyage to England is received.

But these special forms hold only phantom newspapers which will never see the light of print unless; the worst comes to worst with His Majesty.

Outside the newspaper offices in the labyrinth of narrow streets and ancient alleys on either side of Fleet street, long lines of newspaper trucks stand ready to rush special editions to trains and aeroplanes.

Not since the great British general strike of 1926, has Fleet Street's army of adventures been put to such a stress and strain, on the possibility of a newspaper story that comes but once in a generation.

It is stated that the extra expense of each London newspaper handling the story of the King's illness is running into four figures sterling weekly, with editorial, mechanical and distribution staffs on duty day and night, watching and waiting for the big story which nobody wants to see break.

For Fleet Street probably knows the simple, kindly, home-loving man who lives at Buckingham Palace as well as any other section of the British people, and Fleet Street's sincere wishes for his recovery are far greater than anyone's wish, that the phantom editions should become realities.

In Memoriam

THE LATE JAMES MORAN

The neighbourhood of Newport, P. E. I. was profoundly shocked on the evening of the 22nd of November when it became known that Mr. James Moran, a life-long resident of that place, had suddenly passed away.

The late Mr. Moran enjoyed excellent health until early in November when he suffered from a severe cold. He recovered from that, however, and for a week previous to his death he had been attending to his farm duties as usual. About nine o'clock on the evening of the 22nd of November he went to the barn to feed his horses, and on returning to the house, some twenty minutes later, was taken suddenly ill and expired before medical aid could be summoned.

The deceased who was sixty-eight years of age was unmarried and resided with his sister Catherine, on the old homestead. He was a man of quite and unassuming manner, and enjoyed the respect and esteem of all who knew him.

Mr. Moran was the first member of a family of nine to be claimed by death; the eight surviving brothers and sisters being: Michael J. in Charlottetown; Emanuel J. in Brooklyn, N. Y.; John F. at Newport; Mrs. William Ryan; Cardigan Bridge; Mrs. Kieran Larkin, Farmington; Mrs. Roderick MacDonald, Dorchester Mass; Mrs. P. W. Farrell St. Georges; and Catherine at home.

The funeral which was largely attended, was held on Saturday morning, November 24 to St. George's Church, where a Requiem Mass was sung by the Rev. J. C. MacDonald, after which the remains were interred in the adjoining cemetery.

The family will have the sympathy of a host of friends in their sudden bereavement.

A head covering of resilient wires has been patented by a Chicago woman to impart waves to the hair which is folded over the wires while moist and later dried with warm air.

Mothers, Do This—

When the children cough, rub Musterole on their throats and chests. No telling how soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And then when you're glad you have a jar of Musterole at hand to give prompt relief.

As first aid, Musterole is excellent. Keep a jar ready for instant use.

It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, chilblains, frosted feet and colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

DEATH OF J. A. PATTEN

(Special to the Guardian)

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—James A. Patten, capitalist and what king of twenty years ago, died Saturday at his home at 1423 Ridge Avenue, Evanston. Mr. Patten had a picturesque career as a trader in all food commodities. He was the only man who ever succeeded in cornering the wheat, corn, oats and cotton markets.

He gave away during his life time millions to charity, to educational concerns, libraries and to boys and young men and girls who were trying to work their way through school. The funeral will be held to day.

BYRD SAYS FAREWELL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Word that Commander Byrd's Antarctic exploration expedition had "left civilization at last" was received by Secretary Wilbur over naval radio today from the explorer. "Expect to reach ice pack and Ross Sea about Dec. 9," said the cryptic message. "Impossible to estimate date of arrival at the Ross ice barrier." The navy has arranged to maintain constant radio communication with the Byrd expedition after it establishes a base in the Bay of Whales on Ross Sea, the only safe harbor at the edge of the Antarctic continent.

"Putting Your Dollars to Work"

Work produces wealth. Dollars work too—if they are properly employed. And the result of their work is highly profitable.

The principles of sound investment have been established by the lessons of long experience. It will be worth while to examine them. They will show you how your dollars may be put profitably and securely at work.

For the guidance of the less experienced investor we have prepared a booklet outlining the principles which govern sound investment, and containing various accumulation and investment tables. A copy of "Putting Your Dollars to Work" will be mailed on request.
