any golfer, on holing out a twelve foot putt on the eighteenth green, and thus winning the match, feel like saying those words? Did any footballer, with the sin of Rugby under him arm (we called it a "Pill" in my day), sprinting through the enemy's defense, feel like saying those words? Did any young man, secretly holding the hand of his fiancee, as they listened to an organ recital of the music of Wagner, feel like saying those words? There's no reason why they shouldn't, is there?

Before I sign my nomme de guerre (I'm a man of peace) please allow me to say a few words about the camel, and a moral. "One Who Knows" says: "Take the restraint away, and it becomes the camel seeking to occupy your entire tent" ... the tents of the Europeans are always pitched on the other side of the camp to that of the jolly old camel lines. It's on account of the most unpleasant smell you know. Also there is, keeping watch over you and your tent, a Chokadah (a night watchman), armed with a massive staff to ward off Loose Wallahs (thieves). So how on earth that animal with the funny lump, could occupy your tent beats me. Of course the moral is "Learn everything, about something, before you say anything."

New System Of Fat Reduction

Here's a new way for all fat people to laugh together at that old bugaboo—Obesity. The saying that "there is nothing new under the sun" does not now apply to fat people any more. Here is something new for them—a new sensation, a new pleasure, a new and graceful figure, easily found by anyone who is passing beyond the limits of slimness. Everyone has heard of the Marmola Prescription; that harmless combination of fat-defying elements perfected by one of the foremost physicians. Now, from the same high authority there comes another idea—the idea of condensing these same, pure, harmless ingredients into a pleasant little tablet. Taken after eating and at bedtime, they help the stomach to dispose of all the fatty foods, converting them into compact, solid flesh, muscle and energy, without dieting or exercise. Marmola Prescription Tablets regulate the entire system—do for you what bodily exertion and self-denial can not do, and the fat, once routed, it gone for good. You can prove all this at a trifling cost. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or sent postpaid by the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich. A case—sufficient to bring results—is but one dollar.

THORNTON DESCRIBES BIG SAVINGS MADE

KINGTSON, Mar. 29—In a 20-minute speech at the citizens' banquet in honor of the 50th anniversary of the incorporation of the Board of Trade, Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, dealt with the work of organization of the system, which has just been completed, upholding the work of the railways in this respect.

He pointed out that, as the railway system was one which has 100,000 employees, scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific, organization was necessarily difficult, and the system must trust to the loyalty and fidelity of the employees.

"The development of the organization," said Sir Henry, "was the best which would be provided and the principal factor was the concentrating at headquarters of technical skill for the determining of the policy of the system. To attempt to concentrate all details at headquarters would be disaster, so we have extended authority and responsibility to managers and supervisors. I am told that I had courage to accept this position. It needed no great courage, for I simply bet on the future of Canada, and I believe it's a good bet. We are convinced that prosperity is coming to the Dominion, and all we want is a fair deal, and I believe we will get it."

He pointed out that in the cutting down of Vice-Presidents alone a saving of $150,000 a year would be effected.

Thrilling Stories Of The Winter Mail Service

circumstance that caused little surprise.

About three p.m. Prince Edward Island shores were discovered some distance to north at a place called Desable, the Scottish church being the first object seen. But the news caused no excitement; apparently resigned to their fate, the parties seemed unwilling to move. Camp was finally broken and the expedition began its tardy march to the shore; the way was uneven and at times the entire party was needed to move one of the boats.

Finally the board-ice was reached, where the impediments were promptly abandoned; they were yet two miles from houses, and this distance tried them more than any part of the way. The snow was drifted in hard ridges crossing their path, and in their blinded condition they were stumbling and falling at every few steps. Their clothes from being wet were now stiff and unyielding, and the efforts to gain an upright position would be amusing were conditions less grave.

Even after reaching the shore there was a further obstruction; a wide swamp had to be crossed, where (sheltered by tall rushes) the depth of snow was enormous, and the weakest almost succumbed. This barrier passed, they moved blindly forward, each striking out for himself.

Though the night was not dark, so blinded were they that nearness to habitation was discovered by the odor of smoke; they then shouted till persons came to their aid.

The news spread very quickly; searching parties set out through the fields and soon all were rescued. One was discovered in a barn which none would think of examining; parties going along heard a noise as of dancing, to find an unfortunate, striving to blow the vital spark into flame. He lost both feet and the fingers of both hands, except the mereest apology. Another was found in the swamp in snow to the middle, supporting himself by a tree, and soundly asleep. He lost fingers and toes.

Before ten, the waifs were all sitting in farm houses, most of them with hands and feet in dishes of water. Of the whole number, four lost fingers and toes; six others were badly frozen but not maimed, an equal number were merely touched with frost and the rest escaped free. The boatman who had become delirious did not long survive the thirty-six hours of experience.

After the above misadventure the government took the service in hand, and it has since been conducted on lines that offer greater security.
