will ever be stolen from the cash vault being constructed in the new Bank of Nova Scotia building at Summerside. The vault is 13 feet by eight and a half feet with reinforced concrete walls twelve inches thick. Seven thousand five hundred feet of reinforcing steel will be enclosed in the walls. The steel will be two inches from the outer walls and two inches from the inner walls and the horizontal and vertical rods will form a six inch square. The concrete is of a special mix to insure the maximum hardness possible. The steel door and door frame for the vault will weigh two and one half tons. It would seem like a waste of time for anyone to attempt to blow this vault open with anything less powerful than an atomic bomb. In addition there will be another vault of ordinary cement construction and two record vaults built of brick. The foundations of the building have been completed and work is progressing on the vaults.—S.
