Directions for the Guidance of Electors in Voting.—

The voter is to vote only for one candidate, unless two members are tobe returned for the electoral district, in which case he may vote for two candidates as he thinks fit.

The voter will go into one of the compartments, and with a black lead pencil there provided, place a cross or crosses within the white space containing the name of the candidate or each of the candidates for whom he votes, thus "X".

The voter shall then fold the ballot paper so that the initials and stamp on the back and the number on the counterfoil can be seen without opening it; he shall then return the ballot paper so folded to the deputy returning officer, who shall, in full view of those present, including the elector, remove the counterfoil, destroy the same, and place the paper ballot in the ballot box. The voter shall then forthwith quit the polling station.

If the voter inadvertenly spoils a ballot paper so that he cannot conveniently use it as he desires, he may return it to the deputy returning officer, who shall give him another.

If the voter votes for more candidates than he is entitled to vote for, or places any mark on the ballot paper, by which he can afterwards be identified, his vote will be void and will not be counted.

If the voter fraudulently takes a ballot paper out of the polling station or fraudulently delivers to the deputy returning officer to be put into the ballot box any other paper than the ballot paper given him by the deputy returning officer, he will be disqualified from voting at any election for eight years thereafter and liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years and not less than one year, with or without hard labour.

TODAY IN CHINA NORTH AND SOUTH.

From The London Times.

Today, once again, the Powers that are sincerely desirous of seeing China re-established under a stable Government are being invited to repeat the error which they committed in 1912, in allowing themselves to be persuaded not to give Yuan Shih-kai the moral and financial support to which have enabled him to restore the authority of the Central Government. It is sincerely to be hoped that the Allies will not again be misled by these natural but utterly misleading manifestations of Young China's activities. It cannot be too emphatically stated that, so far as the toiling, in articulate masses of the Chinese people are concerned, there is no permanent cleavage, no rooted hostility between North and South.

There is a Southern political party, in the sense that the ever-restless Cantonese, the Irish of China, are always intolerant of authority and also because Canton has become a very cave of Adullam for the "Outs." In this sense, there is a Southern political party, whose programme is identical party, whose programme is identified with sea-green Republicanism, by no means incorruptible, but the fact remains that the peasantry and people of South China, have no standing quarrel with the North, no consistent complaint against the Central Government, and no sympathy with the pernicious activities of the baser sort of politicians.

What productive industry asks for in China is peace within its borders, law and order, and a respite from being looted in the name of liberty. The "stupid people" will welcome any Government, no matter what its image and superscription, which confers these boons upon them; for they have come to look with deep suspicion and fear upon the class of "patriot" that has made of China's Parliament a byword and a thing of scorn. Unfortunately, however, the noisy journalists and professional agitators of Young China still exercise influence, out of all proportion to their achievements and merits, at Shanghai and Hong-kong, and are thus enabled to spread abroad their bogey-talk of North against South.

Although the Government that has now been organized by Tauu Chi-jui may not be an ideal one, it is undoubtedly the only one in sight that offers a reasonable prospect of restoring law and order. But, as the Shang- graphed on July 10, there is evidence that the old intrigues against Tuan, originally fomented by German money are still active. The Cantonese leaders, faithful to their habits of factionist strife, now declare that there is no hope for Republican institutions so long as Tuan and President Feng remain in power. The Correspondent of The Times added that "every support should be given to Tuan and Feng, who are unquestionably the two men most able to secure the peaceful re-organization of which China stands in such great need." The Allies unanimously convinced that this re-organization can only be achieved by means of a strong and stably-centralized Government, will need to show the courage of that conviction and to avoid falling into the vacillating weaknesses of the past.

As a matter of fact, stability of government at Peking being fundamentally a question of solvency, Tuan's administration starts with a considerable advantage over its predecessors. In addition to the financial relief which it has already obtained in the greatly increased value of silver, and in the financial relief which it has already obtained in the greatly increased value of silver, and in the efficient management of the Salt Gabelle. Tuan has reason to expect that the Allies will show their appreciation of China's action against Germany by suspending or remitting the Boxer indemities and by consenting to a substantial increase of the Customs import dues. Thus financially established, and assured of the support of the Allies against pro-German intrigues and other conspiracies, the Central Government should be in a position gradually to restore the fiscal machinery of the Provinces, on which stability ultimately depends. At the outset, however, to tide over immediate difficulties and to inspire confidence in waverers, a loan from the Allies will be necessary and should be forthcoming.

SOLDIER MINER BECOMES ASSAYER

Young Veteran Maimed in France Realizes Cherished Ambition By M. H. C. Vocational Course

"Pte Jensen—assaying."

On the rolls of the vocational training classes of the Military Hospitals Commission in the Central Technical School in Toronto, where many returned soldiers are receiving industrial re-education, it is merely a record, but to Jensen it is a life's ambition realized, and having lost a leg in France is a negligible misfortune. He is one of the happiest men in Toronto.

The young Scandinavian, from his earliest days had a hard time of it. Things didn't come his way without vigorous pulling, but flourished even in depths of the earth, and Jensen's long days in the mines at Cobalt were spent in dreaming of the day when he should hang out a shingle inscribed "Assayer."

When war was declared, however, he scrapped his dreams and enlisted with the 63rd Battalion where he fought until June 1916. Then he was wounded and taken back to England with a leg missing and his shoulder and right arm badly shattered. Jensen's mining days were over.

When he was returned to this country he was sent to the Orthopedic Hospital to be cared for until the Commission fitted him an artificial limb, and training which would prepare him to arn a livlihood.

The vocational officers, seeking to find an occupation related to his former work, asked him what he thougat of assaying. Jensen lost no time in telling them that he had been thinking about it as long as he could remember, and the course was started.

He works not only as long as they will let him in the daytime now, but attends night school twice a week, and in a few weeks he will return to the Cobalt a qualified assayer.

Always Uniform by Test

WHAT could be more puzzling than to suddenly get disappointing bread and pastry in spite of all your care. Why shouldn't the same brand of flour, the same recipe and the same care produce uniform results every time you bake? The answer most often is—lack of uniformity in your flour. If you want flour that you know is always the same high quality, always made accurately uniform by scientific tests, use

QUEEN CITY FLOUR

The same grade of wheat varies in its composition from time to time. In our testing Laboratory wheat samples are scientifically tested by skilled chemists. First we know precisely what the wheat contains, then we know how to maintain without change the famous Queen City blend—just right for pastry—just right for bread—always right.

Try this always correct blend of flavory Ontario Wheat and the richly glutinous Western hard wheat. It makes the finest big loaves of bread and the most delicious, delicate pastry—always.

Build Up Your Library Without Extra Expense. Users of Campbell's flours get famous books free. In every barrel, ½ barrel or sack, you find a colored card. Save it. Follow the directions printed on card. As soon as you have the required number of cards, send them to us and receive books. List includes favorites by Dickens, Thackeray, Dumas, etc. Try our flour and get card.
