"Men Of Boys Town" At Capitol Theatre, Summerside

"Men of Boys Town," coming three years after the notable screen achievement of "Boys Town," was worth waiting for. Not in any sense a sequel, because the drama stands on its own merits as one of the most dynamic, heart-warming entertainments of the season, the new picture again starring Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney, opened last night at the Capitol Theatre, Summerside.

An Academy Award winner for his performance of Father Edward J. Flanagan in the first story of the priest's City of Little Men, Tracy is once more at his very best which is the best there is in acting. He cloaks his difficult role with gentle simplicity, but behind it is the strength and power of his two-fisted nature when he fights against brutality in corrective treatment of boys.

The story is woven around Father Flanagan's increasing financial problems as he overexpands to care for the increasing hundreds of boys who appeal to him for aid. But such troubles mean nothing to him when a boy needs him. Tracy is hard pushed for honors by Rooney as Whitey Marsh, Mayor of Boys Town, now more mature, who has become Father Flanagan's right hand.

Don't forget to see this picture, which drew large crowds to the Capitol last night.

JAPAN HINTS

—In general, financial circles are inclined to believe that formidable difficulties will be encountered in attempting to make a new monetary agreement with the Java Bank, said the Times and Advertiser. The members of the Java Bank's accord with the Yokohama Specie Bank, suspended by the Batavia government.

The Netherlands action, Japanese said, possibly will bring consequences even farther-reaching than the action of Canada, Britain and the United States in freezing credits of Japan since the Indies are Japan's nearest source of oil.

In fact, it was said, oil may be considered the most vital single factor in the economic struggle, for Japan must have oil whether she gets it from the United States or The East Indies and it was said that cutting off that supply might bring a drastic change in the Far Eastern situation.

The Japanese privy council, in the presence of Emperor Hirohito, ratified yesterday the Japanese-Vichy accord on French Indo-China which touched off the round-the-world economic struggle.

The Japanese news agency, Domei, said yesterday that the council, approving the operation of bases in southern Indo-China, further encouraged the government to be prepared to cope with any situation which may arise in the east Asia co-prosperity sphere.

One of the big questions is whether Japan will act economically against Australia. The Australian Minister Sir John Latham, saw Foreign Minister Aomura Tetsuro Toyoka yesterday but the purpose of the call was not announced.

eras and foreign newspapermen, the German foreign office made public a note to Bolivia saying the Nazi government "again launches the sharpest protest" against the "fa'stification in the crudest manner possible" of the letters, which purported to be from Major Elias Belmonte Pabon, Bolivian military and air attaché who has been dismissed by his government on a charge of treason, to German minister Ernest Wendler, expelled from La Paz.

(In La Paz, police declared that experts had checked the signature of Maj. Belmonte Pabon on documents he signed while a minister of the government and that these signatures corresponded with those found on the letters.)

Maj. Belmonte Pabon himself read a prepared declaration in Spanish to the foreign correspondents declaring that "upon my word of honor as an officer... I never addressed either this letter or any other piece of writing or any communication to the German minister."

He quoted also from a telegram he said he had sent to the Bolivian government: "It is completely untrue that I maintain revolutionary relations with the German movement or its minister in Bolivia or that I maintain such."

The Major said the letter had been "placed at the disposal of the Bolivian government, which published it, by foreign powers."

A foreign spokesman who read the German translation of the major's statement said that "the continuation of such practice threatens to poison the relations between nations."

He said he could not officially name the "third power" but: "At this very moment there is a campaign of incitation by a third power against Germany under way throughout Latin America. The United States at this moment is trying to poison relations of South American countries with the axis and sow discord."

AIR TRAINING

—Immediately after the conference, Maj. Power went to civic hospital here to be treated for quinsy. He contracted the throat infection during his recent visit to Britain and probably will be confined to hospital for three or four days.

"Part of my job overseas was to Canadianize everything that has to do with the R. C. A. F.," the Minister told the newspapermen who attended the conference.

"There was complaint that Canadians were spread all over and were out of touch with Canada. We are going to try to group them as much as possible."

This did not mean that Canadians would be taken out of the Royal Air Force if they wanted to stay there, or prevent Canadian air personnel going into the R.A.F.

Members of the R.C.A.F. serving with the R. A. F. are paid at the rates paid by the latter service but the difference between that and the Canadian rates is made up to them in deferred pay.

At the present time Canadian-trained pilots getting commissions are under a percentage schedule of 33 per cent while serving in Canada and 17 per cent on arrival in England. That is to remain unchanged but Maj. Power said these are basic percentages and there is no ceiling.

Of air wireless men turned out by Canadian training schools the percentage getting commissions now is two per cent in Canada and two per cent overseas. That is to be increased to 10 per cent in each place, he said.

Air gunners now are to get commissions at the rate of five per cent in Canada and 15 per cent overseas.

Air observers and pilots sent out from Canada are proving "more than 100 per cent efficient," the Minister said.

There was some difficulty experienced by the air radio men because of the necessity of taking refresher courses after they landed overseas, but this was not the fault of the personnel or of the curriculum of training, but because of the technical nature of their work.

Maj. Power said it is a question at the moment whether there is need for more men or more machines. There seemed to be plenty of aircraft in England and he was convinced that shortly there would be a satisfactory supply of both machines and personnel.

It was not the immediate intention to enlarge the training facilities. Many more personnel were being turned out than was envisaged when the agreement was first made.

When a new agreement is reached it will be the aim to put it on a contract basis, with Canada supplying the training at so much per man.

Maj. Power said Lt.-Gen. A.G.L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian Corps, "is really a big shot over there, and he has a terrific influence over the army." He said Gen. McNaughton probably is as much in the confidence of the high command as any other officer.

Interpreting The War

Smolensk is east up the river from that point. However, even by Berlin reports, that jaw of the trap has been long stalled at the river.

The German alternative in the event of a decisive victory at Smolensk might be a vast southward turning movement toward Rostov and Bryansk to get behind the Russians on the Mogilev-Orsha-Smolensk triangle before they could retreat. Berlin commentators hint at some such development.

They are stressing, for German listeners, the argument that territory, even the taking of Moscow, means little in this war. The Hitler objective is destruction of the Red army in the field, they contend. And failure of that army to cling to the Dnieper crossings might well prove fatal to Russian hopes of a further general retreat in the centre.

—The British Ambassador to Moscow, Sir Stafford Cripps, was instrumental in persuading the Soviet regime that only an outspoken disavowal of alleged Russian aspirations to occupy the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus could be effective since the Nazis repeatedly have charged that Russia was intriguing for military bases on the straits.

(It was reported that Sir Stafford suggested the Russian assurance to Turkey to take the form of a written communication between Stalin and President Ismet Inonu, of Turkey, because Hitler already has sent two letters to Inonu this year.)

The swing to offensive tactics by the ground forces was paralleled, said the Monday communique, by a widening bombing campaign of the Soviet air fleet not only over the battlefield against Nazi troops and airbases but extending from German-occupied Rumania to the waters of Finland.

Constanta, the principal Rumanian oil port, was raided overnight while other bombers ranging to the north hit a Finnish coastal defence cruiser with heavy bombs and left her exploding.
