STRANGE TALE OF PARIS.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—Gil Blas vouches for the authenticity of a story which reads more like the first chapter of a detective thriller than a statement of facts. It concerns an American mother and her daughter, whose names the Gil Blas as yet has not been allowed to give, but the paper asserts that they are well-known members of society,

The story refers to the daughter as formerly Miss L., but now Mrs. W. The mother and daughter arrived in Paris from the extreme east late at night on the eve of the opening of the 1900 Paris Exposition. They went to a large hotel. The daughter in the morning knocked at her mother's door. She received no reply, and made enquiries of the chambermaid as to her mother's whereabouts. The chambermaid insisted that the daughter had arrived at the hotel alone, and the entire hotel staff made similar assertions. The daughter who was almost distracted, made appeals to the American embassy and the police to search for her mother, but her efforts were without effect.

The daughter, heart-broken, then returned to America. She was visiting Biarritz a week ago, and now says that while there she overheard three men who were seated in the hotel salon discussing the mysteries of the great capitals. One of them told a story which she recognized as her own. The speaker described the sudden death of an American woman in a Paris hotel at two o'clock in the morning. The doctors diagnozed the cause of her death as plague. As the publicity of the case on the eve of the exposition meant a catastrophe, the minister of the interior instructed the prefect of police to seize the woman's baggage, burn it with the body, disinfect the room, and bind all the hotel servants who had seen the woman to deny her existence.

The daughter of the woman says she has not been able to get confirmation of the story, but is determined to make a thorough investigation.

SECURED SCOOP WITH AIRSHIP.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 6.—How a newspaper reporter raced in an aeroplane to the scene of a wrecked gasolene schooner, from which six men had perished, was told by F. D. Guyton, the Marshfield correspondent of the Portland Journal.

Guyton received word that the schooner had been smashed to bits when it crashed into a submerged jetty early to-day. He ran to the shore from his office after having sent a bulletin to Portland. The wreck was about twelve miles from Marshfield. Guyton went to several captains, but they were unwilling to go to the spot where the Osprey had been wrecked. He was told that he would have to wait several hours before he could get the details of the wreck.

The newspaper man was in a dilemma. He had no craft, and despite the queries that kept pouring into his office each time he returned there out of breath he had no details to send.

Suddenly it occurred to Guyton that his friend, S. Christofferson, had an aeroplane. The wind was pretty strong but Guyton knew that Christofferson would brave any reasonable weather.

"I want to go to where that schooner was wrecked," Guyton told his friend.

Christofferson smiled at his friend and tantalizing told him that he had better get a boat. Guyton paid no heed to this remark.

"You've got to take me out there," he told the owner of the aeroplane.

"Right you are," said Christofferson, and in a few minutes the air craft was ready.

The reporter, acting as if it were an everyday occurrence, stepped in the aeroplane—something he never before had done in his life—and was dashing through the air at a speed of forty miles an hour.

The biplane soared safely over the bar despite the high wind. It went around the spot where the Osprey was wrecked. The biplane swooped down as near as it was safe to the wrecked schooner. From there the reporter saw the fragments of the vessel swept away by the rough water.

On the first trip the two men in the biplane saw some of the wreck, and it was decided that another visit should be paid to the scene. By that time the life saving crew were at work. The tug Rescue got near enough to the wrecked schooner to throw a line to Captain Gus Johnson. He broke away from the line and was washed into the sea. Captain H. Johnson, of San Francisco, a passenger, also lost his life, as did four of the crew.

The aeroplane then swept back to Marshfield whence Guyton sent in a thrilling account of the attempted rescue and the sight of the wreck from a height of a couple of hundred feet.

Psoriasis All Over Body

Doctors Said Incurable, But Now There Is No Sign of Disease, Thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mde. N. Massey.

Psoriasis is one of the most dreaded of itching skin diseases. It is a sort of chronic eczema. The itching it causes is almost beyond human endurance, and doctors are accustomed to give it up as incurable.

But here is a case that was given up and pronounced incurable. The result proves that Dr. Chase's Ointment almost works miracles in curing the worst form of itching skin disease imaginable.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes:—"For five years I suffered with what three doctors called psoriasis. They could not help me, and one of them told me if anyone offered to guarantee a cure for $50.00 to keep my money, as I could not be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this ointment enough."

The soothing, healing influence of Dr. Chase's Ointment is truly wonderful. Eczema, salt rheum, barber's itch, ringworm and scores of such torturing ailments are relieved at once and as certainly cured if the Ointment is used persistently. Mothers find Dr. Chase's Ointment invaluable in preventing and curing the itching troubles of babies, such as chafing, irritations of the skin and baby eczema.

ACQUITTED ON MURDER CHARGE.

SYDNEY, Nov. 6—July last the Post printed several despatches from Winnipeg to the effect that Hector McNeil, who claimed Sydney as his birth place, had been arrested at Winnipeg charged with killing an engineer named Gunderson, and that after a preliminary hearing the prisoner was committed to the November term of the Supreme Court.

Before Chief Justice Mathers on Monday McNeill was acquitted of the charge and given his freedom. All the evidence called in the case was presented to the crown, but after it had been presented M. G. McNeill, counsel for the accused, requested that his honor advise the jury to find a verdict in favor of his client. He claimed several technical discrepancies in the evidence of the crown, and that a case against his client had not been made out. Chief Justice Mathers refused to admit the point of Mr. McNeil's claim of his discrepancies, but stated that there was not evidence to show that Hector McNeil was guilty of the charge. It was shown that the deceased made vile suggestions and committed what was an assault on the person of the accused. There was also evidence of only one blow being struck. His honor gave as his opinion that McNeil was justified by law in striking the blow, and requested the jury to find a verdict of not guilty without going out, which it did.

How to make a stew— a really good stew.

Here is just the weather for a grand, hot, steaming stew; below is just the recipe for one of the finest stews that ever a good cook made—a real, good Irish Stew.

The secret of a successful Irish stew is in the last few lines of the recipe below. Make the stew as the recipe tells you—don't forget the Edwards' Soup—and—well, you'll be sorry to see the bottom of the plate through.

EDWARDS' DESICCATED SOUPS

5c. per packet.

Edwards' Soup imparts nourishment, strength, flavour, and colour—it's just as good for scores of other things as it is for Irish stews. Get a few packets and see.

Edwards' Desiccated Soups are made in three varieties —Brown, Tomato, White. The Brown variety is a thick, nourishing soup prepared from beef and fresh vegetables. The other two are purely vegetable soups.

This is how to make it—

IRISH STEW.—Put in a saucepan twelve peeled potatoes, sliced in thickness of a penny, four large onions sliced—a layer of each—with salt and pepper to taste. By successive layers half fill your pan. Then take four chops of neck of mutton—the scrag end—lay these on the potatoes and onions and fill up with additional layers of potatoes, onions etc. as before. In one-and-a-half pints of water boil one-and-a-half ounces of EDWARDS' WHITE VEGETABLE SOUP for thirty minutes; add it to the contents of the stew-pan, and simmer altogether gently for two hours.

50 IRISH BACHELORS ARE FIGHTING CUPID.

DUBLIN, Ireland, Nov. 6—There is somewhat a hullabaloo in the village of Dunshaughlin, County Meath, because only ten of the sixty-nine bachelors have married after they were warned three months ago either to wed or move out of the cottages owned by the Rural Council.

Of the ten, five have been, apparently, determined woman haters before the order was issued.

The cottages occupied by the bachelors are owned by the Rural Council of Dunshaughlin, the members of which wish not only to increase the population of the bailiwick, but to increase its prosperity, and they reasoned that if the bachelors would marry they would become more thrifty, work more regularly and be of greater general service to the community and its social and educational institutions.
