Celery Advancing In Price

The question is raised why should celery advance in price? One reason is, there is always a shrinkage if kept any length of time, and after storing for winter the extra expense attached to this is no small item again the demand is greater in the cold weather, and another reason is, we have made large shipments abroad, decreasing our stock materially, which cannot be replenished from any local source. So under the existing circumstances Celery must advance in price, and until further notice Celery will be $2.50 per barrel crate.

Our plan of keeping celery given with each purchase of one crate or more—Address orders to J. J. GAY & SON, Charlottetown, P. E. I.

Who was giving such great bargains in Groceries last week—F. J. Holman & Co., and they will continue the sale this week. No one should miss it.

Good Values in High Storm or Sporting Boots

Here are two samples from our stock of men's fall boots that are particularly good for farmers, teamsters, truckmen, sport men and anyone engaged in outdoor pursuits. These boots are very strong throughout, comfortable and specially made to give thorough protection from all kinds of rough weather. From top to toe there is as much quality of material and workmanship packed into them as can be found in any line of men's boots.

MEN'S HUNTING OR STORM BOOT of superior quality Chrome kip leather made with 12 inch leg and wax sewn throughout. Back seams are reinforced with neat straps, soles and vamps and double throughout, large Japanese eyelets, leather counters and finished at top with double straps and buckles. The soft oiled bellows tongue coupled with these qualities makes this boot absolutely waterproof. All sizes from 6 to 11. $4.75

ANOTHER GOOD VALUE in oiled Mennonite grain leather, not as good as above boot but a splendid value at its price. Made with 10 inch leg, wax sewn, reinforced back seams, Japanese eyelets and soft oiled bellows tongue. This boot is well finished throughout and a splendid value for the money. $3.75

A Cambridge, Mass. despatch says: A peculiar matrimonial mix-up is furnished in the case of Mrs. Sophia McLeod, whose action for the annulment of the marriage with Alfred McLeod, superintendent of one of the subway construction companies in New York city, came up in court here today for trial. Mrs. McLeod was married in 1877 to Augustus Doull in Prince Edward Island, and lived with him until 1890, when they separated. She came to Cambridge to live in 1897, and sued for divorce in Rhode Island the next year, and received a decree. She was not informed by her Rhode Island lawyer, she declares, that residence in that State for a year was necessary to give her a right to sue for divorce there. Believing her decree was valid, she was married to McLeod in 1900. Last April she was informed by McLeod that there was doubt as to the validity of her divorce decree. She refused to live with him until the point should be settled. McLeod then left Cambridge and went to New York where he has since resided. Mrs. McLeod now seeks to have the Rhode Island decree set aside and her second marriage annulled.

The congregation of the First Methodist Church in this city will celebrate on Sunday next the forty-seventh anniversary of the dedication of their house of worship. The day will be fittingly observed at both morning and evening services at which special music will be given and special sermons will be delivered. The hymns and music used will be the same as those used forty-seven years ago by the fathers and the grandfathers of the present members of the congregation and will no doubt prove specially interesting for that reason. Another special feature of the celebration will be found in the fact that in the choir on that day will be heard the voices of several members of the choir of forty-seven years ago.
