RUMOR FROM OTTAWA REGARDING GOVT. RLYS.

OTAWA, Jan. 11.—A persistent rumor exists in certain circles, of conferences which have been held during recent weeks having for their object the relation of Canadian Government Railways to private ownership. No immediate action to this end is contemplated, it is said, by those who profess to know but rather the opening of negotiations toward the return of the roads on the basis of valuation laid down by the board, composed of Sir Walter Cassels, Sir Thomas White and Hon. William Tait, former president of the United States, which is now engaged in making a new valuation of the Government's holdings.

One of the arguments to be brought against the continuation of the Government ownership of the railways, it is claimed, will be the objection is being raised by the Government of the United States against the Canadian Government being the owner of a road which operates partly on United States territory.

ANOTHER FORD MAN RESIGNS

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 11.—Louis H. Turrell, for nine years chief auditor of the Ford Company, has resigned. His resignation is said to be due to the fact that it was impossible to pay him $100,000 a year, which was the figure of his official salary.

In connection with the situation in the Ford Motor Company differences of opinion on conducting the business are said to have existed for some time. They came to a crisis when prices were cut to a pre-war basis last September. It is said that vice-president and general manager, Klingensmith, Charles A. Brownell, advertising manager and other officials were opposed to this action, while Charles E. Sorenson, manager of the Ford Tractor Works, and E. G. Liebold, Henry Ford's private secretary among others thought that it was the proper course to take and that it would lead to general reductions in the prices of materials and finished products needed by the Ford Company. It was also expected that other automobile manufacturers would follow the Ford example and that increased business would result from this step.

Events which follow practically upon the heels of the resignation of the companies furnishing Ford with materials reduced prices from ten p. c. some of the most important sources of supply are understood to have refused to listen to requests for lower quotations. The plant is now shut down.

LITTLE TRUE STORY OF TODAY

CURRENT COMMENT

I'LL GIVE $100 FOR A CASE OF GOOD STUFF

It is related that a wayfaring man went into a country town in this Province recently to transact a little business.

Having concluded the same, he was somewhat weary and made enquiries as to where he might be able to procure a stimulant. His enquiries brought him to the home of a person in touch with the drug business. Having explained that he was badly in need of a tonic, the statement elicited the sympathy of the "druggist." The wayfarer who threw out a suggestion that old-fashioned rum was the kind of a tonic which in his case would give the quickest results and sure relief was rather surprised to learn that the man of drugs however, assured him that if he had the patience to remain for about three quarters of an hour he would have it made up while he waited. This the visitor readily agreed to do.

The druggist immediately sent out a "S. O. S." call for aid, he himself taking off his coat and vest, while the youth took off his sweater and rolled up his sleeves. They went to it.

The alcohol was first of all brought forth from its hiding place in the basement; then also was brought forth the required quantity of food, old-fashioned brown sugar with the real Demerara odor. This was put on the gridiron and allowed to burn to a cinder, resting on the rich brown hue of mahogany. Then came a portion of something which was probably fourth cousin to eau de Cologne which imparted a wonderful fragrance. Several other well-known, also unknown and mysterious ingredients entered into the composition of the concoction.

After going through a certain process, the beverage was sent to the refrigerator for a cooling off in order to guard no doubt, against all danger of spontaneous combustion.

When the allotted time had come the precious liquid was once more brought to view--to the dispensing room to undergo the interesting process of being bottled. When this was accomplished it was agreed to give the material a formal test in the shape of a drink all around.

After a silence as deep as death and which lasted about fifteen minutes a general verdict was given to the effect that the best in fact that the noble three had ever tasted, producing a wonderful exhilarating and glorious feeling. It was so good in fact that the customer took an even larger supply than he had first anticipated.

After taking his departure he met a few friends on the highway and very considerably offered them hospitality in the shape of a taste of the nectar, each one proclaiming as they partook thereof, "Where in the world did ya' get it?--its the best I've tasted for years." However, that secret was not to be revealed and the traveller proceeded on his way, calling on an aged couple with whom he was on particularly friendly terms. He was met in a very hospitable manner by the aged couple and some friends who had been visiting them.

After putting a while over old and new vents the ardent was again brought forth, and was generously dispensed, among the guests, who also pronounced the quality of extraordinary excellence, and soon it was suggested by some one, in honor of this particular occasion that the good old violin be tuned and the dancers take the floor. No sooner said than done and soon the place was a scene of evening delight, all joining merrily in the terpsichorean art, the old couple leading off in the giddy whirl, stepping off gaily to the dulcet strains of "Miss McLeod's Reel." "After the ball was over," and the last strains of Auld Lang Syne had died out on the fond adieu proceeded on his way rejoicing, hoping to meet soon again such convivial society, while in his ears he could dimly hear the company in the distance, singing "Will Ye Nae Come Back Again."

Catholic or Protestant were ready to fly at each other in unrighteous anger, when high church and low church, election and free grace infant or adult baptism and other differences were stumbling blocks to the effectiveness of the work of the Church Militant are rapidly passing away. The dawn of the new era in which all, although progressing by different methods, will combine their efforts for the betterment of the world and the conforming of the people more closely to the Divine will has fairly opened and the spirit touched upon by Mr. Louison is speeding the gospel message of good will in its onward course.

The Hon. Mr. Arsenault, speaking to the question of education at the last session of the legislature said that God should have the first place in our public schools and in all places of instruction and with out His teachings the education of our people will be incomplete. What is true of that which concerns the child life is of equal force to the grown up population in the greatest of all schools, the political arena, wherein the science of government and national development is worked to its final conclusion. Why should not truth and fact become the real foundation of all political discussion, and the betterment and good of the people and country the aim of everybody in public life? Suppression of truth and fact may produce a transient advantage, but in the end it brings its own retribution. The statesmen who have stamped the greatest measures of success upon their labors have been those whose word was as lasting as the hills, and whose political standards were planted in the eternal principle of justice and right.

OTTAWA DOUBTFUL ABOUT BURNHAM AS GOVERNOR GENERAL

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—The Journal in its news columns this afternoon says: The suggestion that Lord Burnham is to be the successor to His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire is not given credence in official circles here. It arose solely through the fact that Lord Northcliffe announced at a dinner given to Lord Burnham after the conclusion of the Imperial Press Conference that he, Northcliffe, had sounded Lord Burnham on the subject of accepting the Governor-Generalship of Canada, having sent one of his "young ambassadors" to approach him with the suggestion. Lord Burnham turned the suggestion down, possibly not considering the proposal as authorized.
