(Special to the Guardian) BRUSSELS, Oct. 24.—Count de Broqueville, minister of national defense, replying in the senate today to criticisms of the new military laws extending the period of military service, openly cited the possibility of a sudden attack by Germany as a thing always to be feared. He admitted, however, that it now was unlikely. That, he added, was why the six months period of service was useless because it would mean that the eastern garrisons would be opposed to attack for half of the year.

Britain As A Musical Nation

Choral Level Lowest in 25 Years Says Sir Thomas Beecham—No Opera House for London With 8,000,000 People.

LEEDS, Yorkshire, Oct. 22.—An indictment of Great Britain as a musical nation was made recently by Sir Thomas Beecham, noted orchestra leader, at the Leeds Lunch-club. England, he said, was the only country in the civilized world which was not only immeasurably below the standard of other nations but had fallen back terribly below the average of 25 years ago. The level of English singing was now what it was 25 years ago. "I have a clear recollection year by year of the musical life of this country," he said, "and I say that the level of singing is far lower than it was. The level of choral singing may be about the same in certain places, but in regard to orchestras, 20 years ago the English orchestra took rank with the best on the continent. Now there is not in the whole country one in the first rank according to the estimate of most continental countries. As for opera, the most precious mind in music this country has produced for the last 50 years the greatest composer today is an Englishman. But the bulk of his work is quite unknown, not only in this country, but in the country of his birth. This man is Frederick Delius. It is the most difficult thing in the world to find a singer, but there are great English singers; they are to be heard, but it is in every other country under the sun. These great artists do not think it worth while to live in this country. "You have in this country that superannuated, obsolete, beastly disgusting, noisy hybrid method of making music in sheer abundance known as the brass band. This grinding, disconcerting music, there is plenty of the gramophone. Look at the profits of the gramophone companies. Oh! I don't mind the profits. I've got shares in them all. I make records, but I have never heard one yet. I considered to be music. Then think of all the incompetent musicians in every cafe and hotel in the country, and in broadcasting there is distorted music committed by all sorts of orchestras, making the whole of life wretched as a result of this filthy sound. But for real music, what on earth have you got to show in this country? Germany has 135 opera houses and 210 permanent orchestras. Italy—poor old Italy under the yolk of Mussolini—70 opera houses. Paris five in the city alone, London with 8,000,000 of people, has not an opera house, nor a permanent institution. "Opera properly done is the most appropriate medium of conveying any music but other arts to the unappreciated mind of the average person. Opera is an amalgam a combination of all the arts. You cannot have great singers rallying round the music life of the country without opera, yet, I fear, the England in ten years' time will not have even a skeleton of the musical life it has today, and today it only exists in attenuated form."

UNIVERSITIES CLOSED IN HUNGARY

Numerous Casualties Result in Renewal of Anti-Semitic Riots at Budapest—140 Arrests Made.

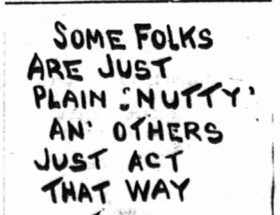

BUDAPEST, Oct. 24.—A government order closing four universities, a bitter parliamentary debate ending in a challenge to a duel, 140 arrests and numerous minor casualties were the products of renewed anti-semitic riots today. Students and workmen fought bitterly, police charged the crowds viciously and government adherents alleged that the students were aiming to overthrow the government of Count Stefan Bethelen, Prime Minister. The order closing the four universities will be effective until after an official investigation has been cleared. The outbreaks among the students started several weeks ago when they alleged that the government was favouring upon the institutions a greater proportion of Jewish students than was allowed by law. The riots caused a stormy parliamentary debate. The opposition parties charged that the government was responsible for the whole situation and one of the deputies, Dr. Fabian alleged that an under-secretary in the Department of the Interior. He said this official had sent secret orders to the students telling them to attack the Jews. He added that innocent persons had been assassinated and their slayers permitted to escape. Amidst the uproar created by these charges the Minister of the Interior Bela Scitovszky De Nagyker, made himself heard and called upon Dr. Fabian to produce the evidence upon which his allegations were based. The deputy failed to do so and was suspended from the house by the speaker. Then the Under-Secretary challenged him to a duel.

Production of Minerals in 1928

(Special to the Guardian) TORONTO, Oct. 24.—Ontario's mineral production for 1928 will, it is understood, practically reach the $100,000,000 mark in value. This figure, which represents an increased production of $10,000,000 over the 1927 output, is due chiefly, it is learned, to the tremendous development of the copper nickel industry particularly in the Sudbury district. Gold production this year will show a slight gain over that of last year, but silver will register a small falling off. In construction materials, however, there has been a decided boom, and their increased production has played no small part in making the high-water mark of $100,000,000 possible. Full details of this expansion of the mining industry will be made public shortly at Queen's Park in the nine month's report of the department of mines.
