The Art Of Diamond Cutting

in four directions. When two corners of the usual six are removed, a 2 point diamond is left...with two corners...(those placed where the wheel has left the rough diamond black), and with two soft corners... (where the grain makes points.) The cutter sometimes decides to make a 2 point diamond because the 4 point diamond is smaller. Often a customer would rather have his stone left as large as possible. Then, too, sometimes, the diamond would be too small to work with if it were cut as a 4 point.

Then, since the diamond is made nearly, round, the next step is to cut the "table", or that rather large, flat area on the top of the stone.... the largest cut of all. The table is always cut on the flat wheel. And woe to the cutter who doesn't make sure that the grain of the table is parallel with the wheel, for he usually ruins his equipment. Next an angle, or corner, is cut on the wheel After that the opposite angle is cut, then, to x "square" the diamond, the two angles, remaining. Next these four corners are divided, until the diamond has, besides the table, eight neat facets around the sides. This is called an "eight square" diamond. ...

The next process is to 'brilliantier' the diamond. This is done by cutting 8 tiny triangles around the facets at the top, around the table These little facets are called the "stars," or "les etoils. Then triangles, like the stars, are made at the base of each facet. These are called "halefi"...probably a name having something to do with the Dutch cutters, who were very famous at this work in medieval times, and are still today.

Then the whole process must be gone through once more, on the back of the diamond. Of course, we have now much longer angles with which to work, and we have also a very tiny table. The table is now called a "culqtte." The black is cut 8 square, and then is cut with halefis. The halefis are now about 2—3 as long as the facets. There are no stars on the back of the diamond.

Now the stone is cut. It is a gem perfect in itself...it always seems to me that no stone looks as lovely set in the most beautiful of mountings, as it does lying on a piece of lustrous black cloth...a little drop of perfection, ccomplete, in itself The cut diamond does not show the grain of the diamond any more. It looks so shining and brilliant that it is hard to visualize all the weary hours it took to make this gem from the rough stone.

Sometimes the rough stone has knots in it, like knots in wood. Then the polisher has a hard time indeed, for no diamond can be cut against the grain. He must try every possible angle to get the grain that will carry away the knot, but nearly always he simply has to cut the whole knot away, and lose that weight in the finished stone. Then sometimes the cutter has to work with a "stubborn" stone,...one in which there are no knots, but which has very strong grains against the way he must work. Then he has a difficult task trying to find the grain that will "carry" the rest.

Many times the cutter must divide a stone. Then he is confronted with the problem of whether to cleave or saw the stone. To cleave he makes a grove in the diamond first then splits, it, with the grain just as one would split wood. Butthe problem is really not so simple as it sounds, for to inexperienced eyes, it is hard indeed to tell which is the grain one must cleave with: select the wrong grain, and you may ruin your stone. To saw the diamond also is a problem the cutter learns only by observation and experience, for while one saws against the grain there are only certain places in the stone where this can be done advantageously.

The art of the stone setter and jewelry maker is another trade,.... but without the beauty of the finish ed diamond, there is much in jewelry that would have no life, no color. The diamond is the aristocrat of jewels.

Butter Imports

The following excerpt from the report of the secretary of the National Dairy Council made at the annual meeting held at Toronto, Oct 18-19, sets forth at once the attitude of the council towards duties on imported butter and supplies the figures on actual imports.

"The fact that during the last fiscal year over 25,000,000 pounds of butter entered Canada at 1 cent per pound duty is sufficient to cause the council to press for the restoration of the former duty of 4 cents. In our last annual report we gave figures supplied by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics showing the imports of butter from the Antipodes, for five years end March 31, 1928. For the benefit of those who did not see these figures we again report them and add figures for the year ending March 31, 1929.

	Australia Lbs.	New Zeal'd Lbs.	Total Lbs.
1924	.....	1,296,706	1,296,706
1925	.....	162,848	162,848
1926	..2,485,502	2,342,966	4,828,468
1927	.. 801,424	4,904,536	5,705,960
1928	.. 571,872	13,623,917	14,195,789
1929	.. 241,760	24,969,251	25,211,011

"The United Kingdom supplied 610,560 pounds, making 25,820,671 pounds imported during the last fiscal year, almost double the previous year. For the 12-month period ending June 30, 1929, Canada's butter import totalled 28,724,129 pounds valued at $10,198,767. For the preceding 12-month period the imports were 15,084,164 pounds, having a value of $5,340,179. In our last report we referred to the many predictions that our import would reach 20,000,000 pounds in the last fiscal year, but it has exceeded this amount by over 5,000,000.

"Owing to the fact that there is less butter in storage this year than last by nearly 3,000,000 pounds and that winter production will undoubtedly be far short of last year owing to the shortage of feed, the import requirements of the present season will be far greater than ever before. We venture on the statement that at least 35,000,000 pounds of butter will be needed.

"There are many closely connected with dairying who think that if the former advantage in butter duties—4 cents per pound—was restored, Canadian dairymen would provide sufficient cream for butter-making to supply the needs of the Canadian people. Canadian dairymen and creamery men are watching with considerable anxiety the phenomenal increase in importations of butter from the Antipodes."

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. G. L. HANSON

There passed away at the Holy Cross Hospital, Calgary, Alberta, on October 26th, Mrs. G. L. Hanson, of Beynon, Alberta, formerly Helen Gertrude Hamilton, of Summerside. Her illness, though a long one, was not thought to be of a serious nature until a day or two before her death which came as a great shock to all her friends and loved ones.

Mrs. Hanson had been a resident of Beynon for about ten years and had won her way into the hearts of all whom she came to know there and elsewhere, as was truly shown by the large attendance of friends and neighbours who came the long distance into Calgary to attend her funeral.

The burial service was held from Foster & Fosters Funeral Chapel on Monday, October 28th, Rev. A. D. McDonald, an old friend of the family, officiating.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Hanson is survived by six sisters, Mrs. D. M. Waugh, Miss Flora and Miss Bertha Hamilton, of Summerside; Mrs. J. A. Collings of Charlottetown, who was with Mrs. Hanson at the time of her death; Mrs. James Sinclair and Mrs. Attenboro, of Winnipeg.

MR. ROBERT A. CRASWELL

The death of Mr. Robert Craswell occurred at Winsloe on November 2, 1929, in his eighty-first year.

The deceased was stricken down one week previous to his death with intestinal flu, and despite medical aid and tender nursing, was unable to baffle the disease, and in the early morning hours of the above date, his spirit winged its way to God who gave it.

During his illness he frequently spoke of dying, and being a true christian man, he had no fear of death and the end came, as one who wraps the mantles of his couch around him, and lies down to pleasant dreams. A few hours before his death he wished the 13th chapter of St. John read to him, and commented very strongly on the thirty-fourth verse.

The late Mr. Craswell was a communicant member of the Anglican Church from boyhood. He was of a generous social temperament, and everyone was assured of a hearty welcome and generous hospitality in his home. He was a son of William Craswell and Janet Buntain, of South Rustico, where the deceased spent most of his life, the latter part being spent at Winsloe, where he moved some ten years ago. He married Miss Margaret M. MacMillan, of Stanhope, who predeceased him by six years. By this union were born seven children, six of whom mourn the loss of a kind and loving father—Sadie, Mrs. David MacDonald, Union Road; Gertrude, Mrs. Neil Robinson, Charlottetown; Mabel, Mrs. Gordon Crockett, York; Gladys, Mrs. Ramsay Auld, West Covehead; Benson, of Strassbourgh, Sask., and Claude at home. Two sisters and two brothers are also left to mourn the loss of a loving and faithful brother. Lois, Mrs. John Mill, Clermont; Amelia, Mrs. Woolner, of Boston, Mass.; Cyrus, of Duluth, Minn.; and Albert on the old homestead at South Rustico.

His funeral, which was held on November 3, was very largely attended, many relatives and friends coming from long distances. The services at the house were conducted by his pastor, Rev. F. Johnston, of Milton, assisted by Rev. Mr. Grant, of Winsloe, and Rev. Mr. Wilson, of West Covehead, and at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Rustico, by Rev. Mr. Johnston, who spoke beautiful words of comfort to the bereaved. He was buried in the adjoining cemetery, the pall bearers being Fred Toombs, Wilburn Younker, Oliver LePage, James Stevenson, John Clark, and John MacInnis.

—COMMUNITY CLUB ORGANIZED—A large and well attended meeting was held in the North Bedeque Hall on Tuesday evening for the purpose of organizing a Community Club. Mr. D. B. MacDonald occupied the chair and after some community singing, including O Canada, Mr. A. E. McLean, M. P., who had been invited to give an address spoke on "Canada Within the Empire" with special reference to the steps taken by the nations of the world leading to permanent peace. Mr. MacLean dealt with the different peace conferences held since 1918 including the Locarno Treaty, the Treaty of Versailles, and finally the Kellogg Briand Treaty, which was signed in Paris by the representatives of fifteen countries, in person, and eight others who telegraphed their willingness to sign on that date, making twenty-three in all. This treaty was known as the Treaty for the Renunciation of War. Mr. MacLean also spoke of the question of Naval disarmament and showed the wonderful reduction in naval tonnage proposed by the different nations of the world. He strongly emphasized the great desire of Great Britain for peace when her people were willing to reduce their navy on which heretofore they have depended for tifeir world position in order that peace might be assured throughout the world. Mr. MacLean made a strong appeal for a community spirit of co-operation and tolerance in order to assist in bringing about this desire of the nations for world peace. A short program was then carried out in which Miss McCall, Rev. Mr. Nicholson, Messrs. B. Hall and J. Lewis, Mr. Emerson Heustis, and others took part. Mr. D. B. MacDonald then announced the purpose of the gathering in a neat speech and the meeting proceeded to organize their club and appoint their officers. Remarks were made by Rev. Mr. Profitt, Rev. Mr. Nicholson and others on the value of a club of this nature and the first Wednesday in the month was set apart as the meeting night of the club. A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Artemus McCaull and seconded by Mr. Fenwick Lefurgey and presented to Mr. MacLean for his address. Mrs. McQuarrie was organist for the evening. The ladies of the community then served a dainty lunch. S.

FORTUNES MADE BY NEWS VENDORS

LONDON, Nov. 14—(By The Canadian Press)—There are street vendors of newspapers in London who make $25,000 a year, declared A. MacLaren, of the National Federation of Newsagents, at the convention of the National Chamber of Trade held at Malvern. He was asking the conference to support a petition to the Government to register, license and control street traders on a national basis. A proposal that Saturday afternoon should be made a statutory compulsory half-holiday found little favor. Felix Blakemore (Wolverhampton), who made the proposal, said he had heard it stated that the right kind of assistants were not attracted to the distributing trades because they were debarred from getting their holidays on Saturday afternoon, and so were unable to take part in week-end sports and outings.
