

THE HUNTERS CORNER

Last Saturday's (Oct. 27) storm put the wild geese in the southward move for their wild music has gladdened the hearts of the geese hunters through the week. The flight is not heavy but enough to assure good sport if the proper setup and feeding ground can be found. Last Sunday night a sizeable flock of geese, judging by the ruckus they kicked up, made its way up the Vernon River and came to rest somewhere in its headwaters. Flocks have been reported from various other sections, but it is thought that the flight will not have reached our shores until another week has passed.

The season on Fox, mink and muskrat opened on Thursday, November 1st, and the buying of Fox hounds has already been heard as the fox hunters are getting their joints limbered up. Foxes are quite plentiful and good sport is anticipated by the owners of Fox hounds. The season on muskrat and mink are also good takes of muskrat have already been reported. The lowly muskrat is the biggest money maker. This animal is easy to trap and lacks the cunning of the mink or fox. Many a youth has received his first great thrill at the sight of this sleek, glossy dark brown furberer fast in a trap.

Prices for mink, muskrat and muskrat are holding reasonably firm. On the other hand, foxes, muskrats and skunk are in very little demand, and unless prospects brighten up the prices received for this type of fur will be disappointing.

Rabbits appear to be on the comeback and the outlook to date is brighter than last season. Rabbits are not hunted extensively until they take on a heavy coat. It takes a few sharp frosts to prime the rabbits and fat on their ribs. Some years ago the rabbits were being hunted were a common sight, but this past few years they seem to have lost ground in the favour of the heavier hounds. The little Beagle is tops for hunting rabbits. He can nose about in short, closely-spaced rows, and he is able to dig the edges of grown over fields where rabbits love to scurry down in a cosy hole. He is also a fast runner, longer legged and faster running hounds to pass by without moving. Hunting rabbits is grand sport, and it is a good idea to start early in the morning when the ground is bare of snow and the bunnies are in the open. The best time to hunt is about eleven o'clock, but the best time to hunt is about eleven o'clock.

The season on Hungarian partridge and nutted grouse closed on Wednesday. Toward the end of the season, the partridge were getting very scarce. On Thursday, the first day of the season, a party of young ones for a last try at those few who were left. The day after tomorrow, the partridge will be scarce. The day after tomorrow, the partridge will be scarce. The day after tomorrow, the partridge will be scarce.

Black ducks are plentiful and in prime condition. Reporting rates of those toothsome game birds may be seen lying off our shores, or moving in long straggling lines against an Autumn skyline. Sportsmen who are owners of a good stock of black ducks will be glad to hear that they are still holding the same number of birds.

British To Seek Hockey Players

LONDON, Nov. 5. (Reuters) - Major British hockey organizations for the first time will send special representatives to Canada this winter to scout and negotiate for players in preparation for a new league to be formed in 1946-47. It was reported today by Harold David of Wembley Stadium. With few exceptions, pre-war British teams consisted mainly of Canadians who crossed the Atlantic without any agreement with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. But this season, British representatives will work in close co-operation with the Canadian amateur governing body, signing players only with its permission. "The Hockey Association is most anxious to co-operate with the Canadian body," he added, "and we hope they will give us all the help they can in providing us with players."

MANCHESTER, England, Nov. 5. (CP) - Britain's soccer players today handed down an ultimatum to club owners in which they threatened to strike after Nov. 17 unless demands for increased wages are met before Nov. 12. Million Christmas Trees For Export

KENTVILLE, N. S., Nov. 5. (CP) - Prediction that Nova Scotia will export one million Christmas trees to the United States before the end of next month was made yesterday by W. B. Clark, New York buyer.

The Christmas tree industry has been a profitable sideline for Nova Scotia farmers for some time, and it is expected that next year's output will be approximately half a million dollars. About 500 carloads will be shipped this year starting in Nov. 20th.

Mr. Clark stressed that Nova Scotia producers would do well to concentrate on quality rather than quantity, as there is increasing competition in neighboring provinces.

The trees sometimes are shipped as far south as Texas and many go to centres in the middle west.

Claims Canadians Hiding In Britain

LONDON, Nov. 5. (CP Cable) - The Sunday Express said yesterday more than 17,000 deserters and absentees from the armed services including 240 Canadians, are hiding in Britain "in constant fear of arrest."

Identical cards, ration books or identity cards, marked with the names of the deserters, are being held by the police. Reports show that most of the absentees are sheltered by women.

Authorities are asking how it is possible that such large numbers are able to escape arrest, without being detected by military police. Military police have been ordered to round up absentees, many of whom are said to be holding down civilian jobs.

Australian Letter

BY J. E. HOLDSWORTH Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 6. - The Commonwealth Government's Australian servicemen from islands of the Southwest Pacific has been accelerated by the allocation to Australia six American victory ships as troop transports.

The ships were provided as a result of representations by the Commonwealth Government to the Allied Shipping Pool controlled from London and Washington. As a result, it is expected that most Australian troops in the islands will be home by next February or March.

Almost daily the streets of Australian cities are deluged with torn paper cascaded from office buildings as the citizens welcome homecoming soldiers and airmen. The first to arrive were prisoners of war returning from Japanese prison camps. Later came long-service troops pouring into the major cities to be demobilized.

Quick change: "When did you get out?" that's the question men are asking each other these days in Australia. They see an active service badge or returned soldiers' emblem and the question is automatic. Those still in uniform want to know how long they have been in the process and whether there are any short cuts. Most discharges take a few weeks.

On discharge the servicemen get vouchers worth £9 (about $32.50) to purchase clothes—they can get them in a matter of days. They get enough for housing and clothing are major worries. There are federal and state government housing plans but none offer immediate housing.

Home deliveries: Australian women are worried over the problem of home deliveries from shops. The practice stopped during the war by Government order but deliveries have been made legal starting this month. Retailers say they cannot promise deliveries because of the shortage of gasoline, tires and vehicles. But housewives are getting some relief from lugging home heavy parcels from retailers in queues. They particularly want food stores—grocers, butchers and fruit and vegetable shops—to resume deliveries.

New Details Revealed In German Rape Of Austria

Following is another of a series of stories on the Anschluss of Austria as told in the recorded secret telephone conversations of Nazi officials recovered from the ruins of Berlin. BY DANIEL DE LUCE Copyright, 1945, By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Nov. 5. (AP) - When Adolf Hitler learned that Mussolini was not going to interfere in the rape of Austria, the Fuehrer did oratorical flip-flops as ecstatic as the 36 he performed when France surrendered.

Admitting he would have been in a "frightful" military position had other powers protected Austria, Hitler declared he would "never forget" the magnanimity of Il Duce.

The King of Italy sent a weak hint to the German Government that he would like Austria's 2,000,000 Jews to be allowed to escape, but Reichsmarschal Goering was blusteringly firm as always when loot was involved - and declared "the Jews can go but they must leave the money."

Openly defying the world, secretly cringing, the Nazis wrote their own condemnation for the historical record in the sordid Austrian affair. Goering's Air Ministry functionaries took down every word as the international telephone lines buzzed during the crisis.

Then at Goering's request they bound the whole record in a neat folder labelled "Secret Archives" and sent it to the Reichsmarschal as his personal copy.

Mussolini In Key Position This record discloses that Prince Philip of Hesse was the go-between in the conversations between Berlin and Rome. Prince Philip, who married Princess Matilde of Italy in 1926, was in a key spot for the Fuehrer's plans. Mussolini had backed the first plot against Austria at the time of the murder of Chancellor Dollfus in 1934 when he belligerently marched troops to the Austrian border.

But now Mussolini had fallen out with France and Britain over Ethiopia and Spain and spurned the Austrian plot to sign a solid front against Germany.

LeBlanc-Howatt Wedding

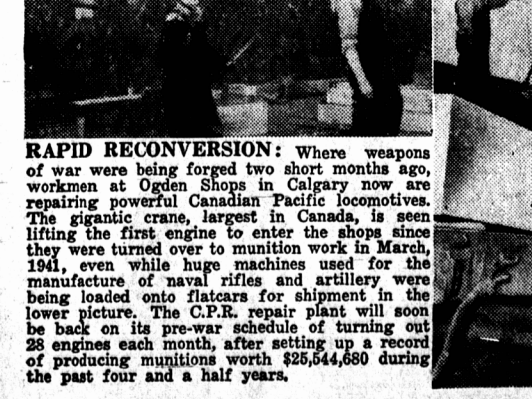

A pretty double ring ceremony was solemnized at Trinity United Church, Amherst, Wednesday, August 29th at four o'clock when Rev. H. C. Olsen united in marriage Miss Bertha Howatt, eldest daughter of Mrs. Bertha Howatt and the late Melbourne Howatt, to William Joseph LeBlanc, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jude LeBlanc.

To the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Babcock, the bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Kelsie, who recently returned from overseas. The floor length gown was of white diaphanous net in rippling fullness over white tulle, with floor length veil to match, held in place with a wreath of white satin flowers and pink baby roses. She carried a bouquet of pink gladioli and maiden hair fern tied with white satin floor-length streamers. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Mrs. Frank Creed, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid, and wore a floor length gown of pale green diaphanous net with shoulder length veil to match, held in place with pink gardenias and carried a nosegay of mixed flowers with pink streamers.
