"DISPATCH FROM REUTERS" SPONSORED BY CHARLOTTETOWN Y'S MEN AT PRINCE EDWARD

Robinson Brilliant in Reuter Role

When the screen masterpieces of this decade are reckoned, "A Dispatch From Reuter's' will be among them for the Prince Edward's newest entry is a beautifully done screen document from every standpoint—direction, performance and all-around production quality — an important impressive screen event.

Dedicated to the Fourth Estate, "A Dispatch From Reuter's" dramatizes the life story of the founder of the first world-wide news service. From boyhood, Julius Reuter was obsessed by the desire "to make the world a little smaller" though a more rapid circulation of vital news. Dauntless courage and inconquerable optimism speeded him to this goal. As Reuter, Edward G. Robinson presents a brilliantly etched portrait in an outstanding performance rivaling that which he gave as "Dr. Ehrlich." He is supported by a uniformly excellent cast. There is Eddie Albert, whose insouciant charm in the role of Reuter's associate injects a bright note of gayety into the story. There is Albert Basserman, 70-year-old refugee actor whose fine work in American pictures have brought him over-night fame. There is Edna Best to lend charm and beauty to the role of Mrs. Reuter. Gene Lockhart contributes one of his most realistic jobs as a conniving banker.

The narrative covers a period of some thirty years—the middle of the nineteenth century — during which Reuter, starting with a small pigeon post to bridge communication gaps, builds up a news gathering and desseminating agency which covers the world. Dramatic highlights of the story are the speedy dispatch of Louis Napoleon's announcement of an armistice after the Crimean war — first news story to appear in the London papers under a line which was to become world famous: "According to a dispatch from Reuter's"; and the beat scored by Reuter's in reporting Lincoln's assassination. Eloquently interwoven with the main theme of Reuter's work is his tender love story.

Included on the program are three very entertaining short subjects. A Poular Science Reel — a Comedy and a Cartoon.

JACK HOLT'S NEW DRAMA IS "THRILLER"

Jack Holt fans, and that means all lovers of hard-fisted action, will be particularly pleased with Columbia's "Passport to Alcatraz," the two-fisted star's thrilling new drama at the Capitol Theatre. An exceptionally fine supporting cast, plus an exceptionally fine as well as timely story, make "Passport to Alcatraz" a stirringly "different" type of film.

A blazing indictment of the fake passport racket, which enables foreign agents to enter America in order to destroy our munitions works, "Passport to Alcatraz" presents the fighting star as a crack investigator for a large City Police Department, assigned to work with the government in smashing countrywide sabotage ring.

Worming his way into the confidences of the gang, Holt patiently and persistently attempts to learn exactly who is the mastermind behind its nefarious activities. The devious methods he employs, the sensational results with which his efforts are greeted, contribute mightily to the thrilling entertainment values of the new film.

Noah Beery, Jr., like Holt, is superbly cast as a fellow-operative. An attractive, talented newcomer to the screen, pretty Cecilia Callejo, shares with young Beery the romantic interest of the film. As an unwilling member of the espionage ring, Miss Callejo makes a brilliant screen start. C. Henry Gordon and Clay Clement are major members of the spy network, and Maxie Rosenbloom supplies the comedy relief.

Included on the program are a Sport Reel—a Musical and a Travalogue.

REDS LEAVE CELLAR

PROVIDENCE R.I., Dec 8—(AP)—Defeating Philadelphia Ramblers 2-1 for the second time in two nights, Providence moved out of the eastern division cellar of the American Hockey League tonight into third place.

A goal by George Johnston in the second period and another by Crosbie Sherwood early in the third gave the Reds their margin over the Ramblers.

New Zealander's Peace-time trip Stretched by war

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Dec. 7—(CP)-Little Duggan Smith has had a lot of adventures since he bade good-bye to the folks back in New Zealand, and told them he'd be back in a few weeks--flying a bomber.

He'd given up the life of a merchant seaman to enlist in the Royal New Zealand Air Force, and they were sending him off to Britain to bring back a Wellington bomber.-Duggan got to England without incident, but has never made that return trip.

His arrival and the outbreak of the war were roughly coincident, and the Royal Air Force decided the New Zealander would be of value in their plans. They assigned him to a bombing squadron and for months he joined in forays over enemy territory.

Now he's in Canada, still wearing the crest of the New Zealand Air Force, and with two things he didn't have when he landed in England—a Distinguished Flying Cross and a deep admiration for the English people.

Of the reason behind the first, the little pilot says nothing. As for the British race, "it's the finest on God's earth."

"The manner in which those civilians are standing up to the bombing makes me proud that my ancestors came from the British Isles."

Smith left by train for Ontario today as part of a complete R.A.F. flying training school that crossed the Atlantic to drill young men of the empire in the tricks of modern sky battling.

In Memoriam

MRS JAMES JOHNSTONE

Word has just been received by Island friends of the sudden passing in Vancouver B.C., of Frances beloved wife of Mr James Johnstone of Hardisty, Alta,

Before her marriage the late Mrs Johnstone was Miss Frances Orr daughter of the late Jame and Jemima Orr of French River P.E.I. In company with her husband and daughter, she recently went to Vancouver to spend the winter.

Besides a sorrowing husband she leaves to mourn one daughter, and three sisters namely Mrs Vina B. Wilson, Victoria, B.C., and the Misses Florence and Margaret Orr, of Vancouver, to all of whom sympathy is extended Mr James Johnstone above mentioned is a son of the late John Johnstone, Long River P.E.I.

THOMAS L BERNARD

Thomas Leslie Bernard aged 61 years and 20 days died at his home in Claresholm, Alberta on November 20th. he had been ailing seriously for more than a year, being a patient in the hospital for many weeks, but recently was able to go home and was building up to undergo a major operation which it was hoped would relieve his condition He had been to Town Monday morning and again Monday after-noon but had complained of feeling queer and being unable to collect his memory. Tuesday evening he suffered a severe pain in his head and soon lapsed into unconsciousness, to pass away from the effects of a stroke about five o'clock Wednesday morning.

Mr Bernard was born at Long River P.E.I., on October 31st. 1879 In the year 1902 he was married there to Gertrude Acorn Mr. and Mrs Bernard came West and settled in Claresholm in 1906. It was in Claresholm that their only child was born a daughter, now Mrs Murray Dawson. He is survived by his widow, his daughter and granddaughter, three brothers, Jack Bernard of Lethbridge, Alta., George Bernard of Long River P.E.I. Keir Bernard of Graham's Road, P.E.I. and three sisters, Mrs Ed. Johnstone of Long River P.E.I., Mrs Elmira Paynter, of Long River P.E.I. and Mrs James E. Campbell of Burlington P.E.I.

For a number of years, from 1906 to 1922, Mr Bernard carried on here in the real estate and insurance business. He then took over the defunct Claresholm Creamery and transformed it into the profitable and progressive industry it has become to-day. For a number of years he also owned and operated the High River Creamery.

Mr Bernard had a wide circle of friends, particularly among the old-timers, and his business brought him in contact with people far and near. He accepted his civic responsabilities and at the time of his death was a member of the Claresholm Town Council, having served in that capacity for the past six years.

The funeral was held Friday afternoon at 2:30 in the United Church. Rev. R. W. Dalgliesh conducted the services Interrment in the Claresholm Cemetery. The funeral arrangements were directed by Geo. W. Ringrose. The pallbearers were:D.H. Ramage Ezra A. Carey J. Morkin, Mac Chillton, I.L. Miller and F. W. Dawson of Okotoks. —Claresholm Local Press.

Lack of Leaders Contributed to French fall

Canadian Newsman Says Must Learn the Lesson Not Waste Time in Criticism.

OTTAWA, Dec. 9—(CP)—France lost the war not only because she lacked war material, but also because she lacked "men of decision, of firm purpose and of inspiration," Percy J. Philip, Canadian correspondent of the New York Times, said tonight.

Mr. Philip, for 24 years a correspondent for the Times in Paris and other European capitals, was speaking in the weekly "Let's Face the Facts" program, arranged by G. H. Lash, director of Public Information, and broadcast over National Network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

"There are some people on this continent, Frenchmen among them" he said, "who go seaching for other reasons like hens searching for grains of corn in a pile of straw and crowing with satisfaction when they find one. That kind of industry is a waste of time.

"Let us look squarely at the facts. France lost the war because she was disunited, without discipline and strong leadership at a time when she had to face with an armed force which was far numerically inferior to that which (Marshal) Foch had at his disposal in 1918, an enemy who was disciplined to the point of complete unity, who was armed to the utmost necessity by the tremendous labor . . of German men and women and inspired under the spell of that 'wicked man' Adolf Hitler.

"It is for us," who are still fighting this war, if we want to win, to learn a lesson instead of wasting time criticizing others and that lesson is surely that we will have to put everything we have of courage, of work, of skill of loyal obedience, and of sacrifice into the task of beating that tremendous force for evil which Hitler has built up and holds ready to strike at us again."

There had been perhaps a little too much freedom and not enough self-imposed discipline in France, "but then, every Frenchman and woman felt that France was not as good as it should be. They were all impatient for improvement."

Behind the quarreling of those of various political faiths there was a common desire to serve France, but unfortunately no leader had arisen to direct all those seemingly contending forces.

"The men of the third republic who had survived the last Great War were not up to the task," he said. "That was where Germany got ahead—much more than in any other way.

"From the sorrow and misery and defeat of 1918 and from the confusion and hunger of years that followed, the German people turned reluctantly, but finally under the compulsion of propaganda and fear to the leadership of that phenomenon Adolf Hitler."

France, Mr. Philip said, was by comparison leaderless. While it might be a fine thing to feel that one was fighting for an ideal like democracy, liberty, or whatever one cared to call it, it was an even better thing to feel that one was following a man whose stout heart and body were at the head of a column.

Mr. Philip described other hardships, both physical and mental, placed upon the people of France and said: "Didn't Hitler build his whole career on the alleged injustices to Germany of the treaty of Versailles? How, then, can he justify this far greater injustice than was ever done to Germany?"

"Marshal Henri Petain, who stands for decency and uprightness in the new regime, is now being cheered when he goes around the unoccupied territory, and he is always the more warmly cheered after he has done or said something in protest against Nazi encroachment on the terms of the armistice," Mr. Philip said.

Hitler demanded submission, but "I am sure he will never get it from the French people," Mr. Philip added.

When he left France an Alsatian soldier gave him a "grand, brave au revoir." The soldier said: "Tell them in England to hold on. Tell them we aren't finished yet. We have been beaten but we aren't conquered. We'll fight again and beat them yet, these Nazis."

Appointments to Chaplain service

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Dec. 6.—(CP) — Col. G. A. Wells, principal Protestant chaplain of the Canadian Active Service Force, has announced appointment of Maj. C. G. Hepburn, of Ottawa, as his assistant.

Maj. Hepburn succeeds Lieut.-Col. H. A. Kean, of Kingston, Ont., who is returning to Canada. Maj. W. G. McLean, of Winnipeg replaces Maj. Hepburn as principal Protestant chaplain of the 2nd Division.

Col. Wells also said Maj. P. Charters, of Toronto, assistant to the senior chaplain of the 1st Division, is returning to Canada because of ill health.

Col. Wells, in civilian life Anglican Bishop of Cariboo, has been in England for a month and visited every Canadian unit, including the Royal Canadian Air Force squadrons. He held unions in two divisions.

"I have strong conviction that the working out of policies of the chaplain service among Canadian troops must be left largely to authorities in the field," he said. "I am convinced the policy of limiting the age of chapiains appointed for overseas service to 50 years is sound.

"There will be no exceptions to this rule."

The conduct of Canadian soldiers in England "is a source of great pride to me," Col. Wells said.

Col. Wells described the spirit of the people of London as "superb."

BRITISH SHIP ORE TO SPAIN

LONDON, Dec. 8—(CP)—British authorities are granting facilities for shipment to Spain of 6,000 tons of manganese ore, "urgently needed by the Spanish steel industry," the British Broadcasting Corporation reported tonight. Half the manganese will come from India.

LUNENBURG, N.S., Dec. 8.—(CP) —Two Norwegian seamen drowned Saturday as the small motor-boat taking them from Liverpool, N. S., to Camp Norway —training centre here for Norwegian seamen allied with the British forces— capsized. A third member of the party swam ashore.

Damage to Midlands is Said slight

BIRMINGHAM, England, Dec. 9 —(AP)—Bombing damage to Britain's industrial west midlands as a whole apparently has been almost negligible.

The area is so vast and so teeming with blast furnaces, factories and plants of all sorts that even if the Germans completely knocked down one of the industrial sections of Birmingham itself, the damage still would be slight.

Birmingham proper has been hit—and hit hard—but except for its statellite neighbor, Coventry, 18 miles away, most of the midland industrial centres have not even been threatened, so far as I could see today.

Birmingham possibly has suffered even worse than Coventry from waves of night raiders.

A big church has been blasted, hotels blown out and great stores, including some of the best in England, damaged.

But on the surface it is less apparent, for Birmingham is big and sprawling and modern.

While the heart of middle-aged Coventry and 18th century Bristol burned out, most of Birmingham's modern buildings stand.

Some of her big buildings are reduced to shells, however, others have been sheered half away, and rows of houses and small shops have been blasted.

At a rough estimate the city has 10,000 to 15,000 homeless and an equal number whose jobs have been destroyed. This is from a population of well over 1,000,000.

Roosevelt Inspects new U.S. Naval Bases

ABOARD U.S.S. MAYRANT at Kingston, Jamaica, Dec. 7—(AP via radio)—Without fanfare or formalities, President Roosevelt today inspected sites for United States naval bases in this key British island of the Caribbean.

It was the President's first visit to the waters of a belligerent since the war began, and his first time in British waters since August of last year, when he visited Nova Scotia and Newfoundland just before hostilities broke out.

His tour favored by sunny skies, the President looked over the prospective American naval anchorage at Portland Bight and adjacent land area, including Goat Island and the nearby bays inside the bight, which were leased from Britain in the destroyer deal. He also saw the site acquired for an emergency and auxiliary airfield along Bankers Canal.

Beside these points, almost in view of the guns protecting the West Indian British naval station, the United States has obtained territory in Jamaica for recreational and hospital use, the right to develop dockyard facilities at historic Port Royal at the entrance of Kingston for joint Anglo-American use, plus reciprocal rights with Britain for military airfields being established by the two governments.

An official call was paid by the United States Consul General, H. H. Watson and party, who were followed by a British delegation, including Sir Arthur Richards, Governor of Jamaica; Lady Richards, and their children, and Colonial Secretary and Mrs. A. W. G. Grantham.

MRS. THOMAS SULLIVAN

On Tuesday morning November 12, there passed peacefully to her eternal reward Mrs. Thomas Sullivan, one of Clinton's oldest and most highly respected citizens. Although Mrs. Sullivan was 84 years of age she had enjoyed excellent health all her long life about six months ago, but was able to be up and around until three weeks previous to her death, during which time every care and attention was given her by her family, and she bore her sufferings with patience and resignation to God's Holy will. Mrs Sullivan was the mother of nine children, two boys and three girls predeceased her, and the following family are left to mourn a kind and loving mother:— Mrs. D. B. Bowlen, Carstairs, Alberta; Mrs. Harlan McGuirk, Clinton and Mrs. Walter Curley, Freetown; also one son John L., on the homestead.

Her husband predeceased her five years ago.

The funeral took place on Thursday morning.

The service at the church and grave were conducted by Rev. Father McKenna. May her soul rest in peace.

The pallbearers were her four nephews:— George Pond, Cecil Trainor, George Sherry and Albert McKenna, Edison Heaney and Bert McKay.
