Girls Suffering Ended by Surgery

ROSETOWN, Sask., Feb. 17. — Little Shirley Dunn, of this town, who has spent most of her four and one-half years in hospitals, is happy in the knowledge she will soon be back home in splendid health and with normal use of her hands.

Shortly after her first birthday her hands were terribly scalded in boiling water. The injuries would not respond to treatment at first. New skin was grafted on the hands, and fingers which had grown together were separated. Operation after operation was performed by skilled surgeons in Canada and United States to restore use of the hands which were held at right angles owing to wrist burns.

In a Chicago hospital where Shirley was sent more than a year ago treatments have continued, and her parents ahve just received word that hands and wrists are gradually returning to normal.

She must spend more time in the hospital and undergo further operations, but that doesn't worry Shirley with the prospect of putting such things behind her in a few months or a year's time.

DELICATE SITUATION IN FAR EAST

Efforts Made To Curb Russo-Jap Tension Over Border Clashes.

By Glenn H. Babb, Associated Press Staff Writer (By Guardian's Special Wire)

TOKYO, Feb. 17.—Staff officers conferred with the Japanese minister of war today on the delicate Russian situation after restrictions were placed on newspaper discussions of the issue.

A spokesman for the foreign office said reports from Hsinking, capital of the Japanese-fostered state of Manchoukuo, indicated Russia is withdrawing all her consulates from Manchoukuo except the Consulate-General at Harbin.

Officials pointed out that for three years Manchoukuo wanted to establish consulates in Russia in addition to the ones she now has at Blagovestchenk and Chita.

The demand for an equal number of consulates, it was said, was not answered by Russia until last December when Manchoukuo insisted upon action, this leading to the reported Russian move of withdrawing its consulates in Manchoukuo. The Soviet consulate at Mukden was closed last week.

Japanese officials said they believed the withdrawals had no connection with recent border fighting between outer Mongolian and Manchoukuan troops and could not be interpreted as a preparation for war.

The Japanese government forbade newspapers to print anything on the issue except official communiques of this and the Manchoukuan governments.

This move was attributed to a wish to avoid inflaming public opinion during official conferences here to prevent the border dispute from leading to war.

After a report from the Japanese general headquarters at Hsinking on recent incidents, Minister of War Yoshiyuki Kawashima today began conferring with his staff officers.

Meanwhile, the war and foreign offices agreed to turn down a Soviet proposal that neutrals serve on a joint commission to be created in an effort to solve the border conflicts.

(A Moscow dispatch said Soviet officials contend that a limiting of the commission to Japanese, Manchoukuan and Russian delegates would give Japan a two to one vote, but no official stand has yet been adopted).

"We hope the Soviet will withdraw that suggestion," said a Japanese spokesman, "to permit early formation of a tri-partite Japanese —Manchoukuan—Soviet commission to begin the task of easing the border situation."

In a protest to Outer Mongolia yesterday the Manchoukuan government contended that Mongol troops are still occupying Manchoukuan territory.

ANNUAL VINES

Among things which many gardeners will wish to include in the early seed orders are the annual vines Cobea scandens or Cathedral vine, and Thundergia. The cobea has finely finished bronze green leaves and lovely blue and yellow bell like blooms. It is a vigorous grower and is admirably suited to a lattice or the netting used to frame a gateway or door, where it will be seen at close range.

Cobea is a fine neighbor for such trimly finished things as the dahlias, balsams, begonias and violas. Though the cobea is happiest in a light well drained porous soil and a sunny location it will make fine growth in any good garden loam and in a location where it gets some shade during the day. Soak the seeds over night before planting and give at least four inches of root room each way, unless grown singly in pots.

The Thundergias are delightful trailing plants to be used in porch and window boxes to climb upward or down as the situation seems to warrant. Thundergia, a yellow flower with a darker centre is the variety most often seen in baskets and window boxes. They like a warm, sunny position and a light, rich, well-drained soil. Seed in greenhouse, warm sunporch or sunny window in the late winter transplanting to individual containers to give them their most vigorous start. They grow four to six feet high in the course of the season.

There are orange, red, white and blue flowered varieties among the Thundergias, though these are probably more often used as greenhouse plants than as window box or porch box material, but if your favorite seedsman lists them, they may well repay trial in some place where they may be enjoyed from the verandah or some window.

LAST MEETING OF S'SIDE TOWN COUNCIL

Mr. W. R. Warren was awarded the contract for remodelling and wiring of the part of Agricultural hall put at the disposal of the library, while Mr. Fred McLeod received the contract for painting.

The library demonstration branch at present is housed in the civic building. Its new quarters will afford the organization roomier local housing which was requested. A large number of new books will now be obtained for Summerside branch of the library, it was learned.

Mr. Hal Schurman was appointed to supervise the work of amelioration.

The election front remained quiet although last night was the eve of nomination day.

Retiring councillor J. Grady is expected to re-offer for the seat in his ward while Mr. Edgar Clark is believed to be considering nomination for the election in the west ward seat.

Jury Reached Verdict By Flipping Coin

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

EASTON, Pa., Feb. 17—Fines of $10 each and costs were imposed today upon 12 jurors who admitted in court they had reached a verdict in a criminal case last week by flipping a coin. Judge R. C. Stewart said their action was one of the most flagrant cases of neglect of duty in his experience.

The jurors testified the verdict had been reached by chance, and that it was against the weight of the evidence. They adopted the coin flipping method when they were informed that unless a verdict was reached quickly they would be locked up overnight.

The witnesses testified the jury stood 11 to one for conviction. The toss won acquittal for the defendant, William Weitzman, a junk dealer charged with receiving stolen goods.

Mexican Port Placed UnderMilitaryControl

(A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

MEXICO, D. F., Feb. 17—The Pacific coast port of Mazatlan was placed under military control today after a clash between police and strikers in which five persons were killed, the latest outbreak in Mexico's unsettled capital-labor crisis.

Police fired on strikers when they attempted to attack a group of strikebreakers going to work in a Mazatlan slaughterhouse. Five strikers were killed and five wounded.

Blaming members of the city council for the shootings, labor organizations paraded to the municipal palace, demanding the resignations of the council and threatening a general strike in all industries.

New Book On Arrangements For Gardeners

"Flower Arrangement," by F. F. Rockwell and Esther C. Grayson (Macmillan) is not just another garden book, but one which deals with an intangible art in a most practical manner. Valuable to all flower lovers, it is particularly suited to the garden club member whose arrangements have missed blue ribbons. The authors treat their subject as a true form of artistic expression, and do so in a manner which makes their ideas immediately useful to the amateur.

The straightforward statement of principles of design and composition, even in the case of the delicate Japanese floral art, is understandable and practical to all gardeners. The volume illustrates principles with many helpful half-tones and line drawings. It's discussions on flower containers as a part of arrangements in interesting and clear.

20,000 DEAD

Mulugheta was attempting to reorganize his 60,000 surviving warriors on a high stronghold between Mount Aradam and Mount Alaji. The Marshal immediately ordered his entire available air force to crush the incipient enemy concentration before it could take orderly form.

LOCATE CAMP

The squadrons found the Ethiopian camp midway between towering Aradam, over which the Italian flag has flown since Saturday night, and Mount Alaji, Marshal Badoglio's next probable objective.

Once again the Ethiopians showed the fanatic bravery under fire which already has won the Italian High Commander's expressed admiration. Slaughtered by the thousands as a rain of TNT and incendiary bombs dropped into their midst, they stood their ground for a time, firing ruefully at the darting planes with spitting machine guns.

In the end, however, panic overcame the survivors when they saw around them the torn bodies of their dead and dying comrades. They fled in disorder, leaving behind their pack mules, their guns and their food supplies.

Officers here declared only the torrential "little rains" now could delay complete extinction of the enemy armies on this front.

The five-day battle of Enderta, which ended last Saturday night in the wholesale slaughter of Ethiopians who tried to hold Mount Aradam, left Ras Kassa's and Ras Seyoum's Ethiopian "mountain goats" in the Tambiens at the mercy of the overpowering Mussolini motorized war machine.

The belief prevailed here that Marshal Badoglio could send his air and land forces into the mountains to wipe out these segregated enemy armies any time the spirit moved him.

(By George Jordan, Associated Press Staff Writer)

ROME, Feb. 17—Marshal Pietro Badoglio reported to his government today that Ethiopia's "most warlike troops" had been repulsed in a smashing northern front offensive and 80,000 defending soldiers were fleeing under a heavy aerial bombardment.

The new onslaught climaxed a desperate Ethiopian counter-attack on the Black Shirt troops which during a five-day battle drove deep into new territory, captured Amba Aradam and took possession of war supplies and war materials.

Suffer Heavy Losses

"The rest of Ras Mulagheta's army is retreating to Fenanoa and Amba Alaji," the Marshal's communique said, "which are being bombarded by our massed aviation without ceasing.

"The enemy suffered heavy losses without scattering. The capture of Amba Aradam yielded large quantities of rifles, daggers, machine guns, ammunition and materials of all kinds.

"Horses, provisions and six cannons were abandoned by the enemy in flight."

The Stefani (Italian) news agency correspondent at Asmara, Eritrea, reported the fleeing Ethiopians had been sighted by an Italian plane which summoned other ships to the bombardment.

Fled In Panic

The Ethiopians attempted to fight back with machine guns but when their efforts of resistance failed, they fled in panic abandoning their guns, mules and food supplies. As fast as one of the bombing planes returned to its base for a new supply of explosive, another loaded plane took its place in the formation.

The news agency representative said Italians estimated 40 tons of explosives were consumed in the bombardment.

First reports of the new Italian victory brought a message of congratulations from Premier Mussolini to his commander in East Africa. Newspapers hailed the victory in extra editions featuring Marshal Badoglio's official communiques.

Praises Tribesmen

The Stefani correspondent praised the courage of the Ethiopians, who were "disdainful of peril," he said.

"They threw themselves into the assault insensible to the great gaps our automatic arms opened in their ranks," the news agency declared.

The vast advance, which started Feb. 10, cost the Ethiopians 5,000 dead and 15,000 wounded, the Fascist leaders claimed, while the Italians lost 500 dead and 1,000 wounded. (Ethiopia claims Italy had lost nearly 20,000). The invading forces gained approximately 300 square miles of territory, the official reports declared, and brought the Italian front line 20 miles south of Makale.

(Copyright 1936 by The Havas News Agency)

ADDIS ABABA, Feb. 17—The Ethiopian Government tonight did not deny Italy had won a big victory south of Makale, but it declared Italian statements that 20,000 of war Minister's Mulugheta's troops had been slain or wounded "undoubtedly" were grossly exaggerated.

An official communique asserted 4,000 natives in the Southern Italian army had deserted in a body and crossed over into Great Britain's Kenya Colony, where they were placed in an internment camp. Most of the deserted were said to be Eritreans who had been sent into the south to bolster Gen. Graziani's forces.

The same announcement said five Italian airmen were killed and their leader badly injured near Lake Haik, 20 miles northeast of Dessye, when their plane was brought down by Ethiopian snipers. Six machine guns were found in the plane.

A message from the southern front said a sharp engagement was being fought near Lontullo, at the fork of the Ganale Doria and Webbe Mana Rivers not far north of Dolo. Gen. Graziani's troops have recaptured the settlement after having been driven out of it last Saturday, according to the report.

FORMER THEATRE CZAR DIES

Death Yesterday of Showman Pantages.

(A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17—Death came quietly today to lean, bald Alexander Pantages, who entered the show business with a $24 "grubstake" and multiplied it one million times.

The former Czar of a farflung theatre empire, who at the height of his career was the object of the sensational suit of a showgirl, recently estimated his age at 72.

Pantages' body was found in bed at his home. His physician, Dr. Leland Chapman, said death probably resulted from heart trouble during the night.

He was a Greek, or at least he thought he was.

"My father told me I was born on an island off the mainland of Greece," he said recently. "I guess, I'm about 72."

Life was one sensation after another. He came to California on a tramp steamer, went to Alaska in the gold rush, got a start in show business there—and returned to "make a killing" in vaudeville.

In 1929, when the name Pantages had become widely known, Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, ran screaming from his office, babbling that he had attacked her. A policeman reported he found Pantages, clothes disarranged, on the office floor. Pantages said Miss Pringle "framed" him when he refused to "book" her act.

He was tried for criminal attack and found not guilty. Miss Pringle then brought $1,000,000 damage suit. This was settled out of court for an unannounced sum.

Unemployed Attend Educational Classes In New Brunswick

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

FREDERICTON, N. B., Feb. 17—More than 141 men in various provincial relief camps are taking advantages afforded them by the vocational education department in attending schools on camp sites at which general education, shorthand, typing and bookkeeping are taught by instructors.

According to W. K. Tibert, director of vocational education in New Brunswick, several schools are now in operation in buildings especially provided with the exception of two and the eighth class is now being organized at Little River camp.

General education classes include grades one to eleven, all subjects being taught.

"This work can be classed as adult education," said Mr. Tibert today as he discussed the situation and as we are dealing with adults who have broken their regular school course."

IN MEMORIAM

MR. DANIEL MCNEILL

On Saturday evening, the 15th day of February, there passed away to his eternal reward at the Prince County Hospital, Summerside, from pneumonia, Daniel McNeill, at the advanced age of eighty-three years, having been born at Rexton, N.B. on the 29th day of August, 1852, the son of the late Dougal McNeill and Ann Wood.

The late Mr. McNeill removed with his parents to Summerside about the year 1860 and when a young man he learned the carriage building trade with the late William Tuplin and set up in that business for himself on Central Street, Summerside, opposite the present residence of Mr. Hillard Muttart in connection with his older brother John. He for a time carried on a carriage business at Emerald for about ten years in partnership with one, Tarry Goodwin, and removed back again to Summerside and afterwards manufactured carriages at his factory on the site of the present St. Paul's Hall. The imported carriage business put this industry out of business in Prince Edward Island but Mr. McNeill worked in his workshop almost up to the time of his death.

He leaves to mourn in Summerside his daughter Margaret and two sons, Eben and James Alden McNeill. A daughter Francis, Mrs. J. E. Blaser resides with her husband and two children at Schenectady, N.Y. A son William McNeill at present resides in California. Two sons and two daughters of Mr. McNeill predeceased him. His wife died in June, 1933.

Mr. Wm. B. McNeill is a half-brother and a half-sister Tessie resides in Exeter, New Hampshire.

There are also a number of grandchildren residing in the United States.

The deceased Daniel McNeill was a Councillor of the Town of Summerside some years ago and has since held important positions in the employment of the Town.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday morning, February 18th at nine o'clock from St. Paul's Church, Summerside.

Much sympathy is extended to the family of the deceased.—S.
