men and other canned foods, raisins, etc. were used extensively and in created a times a shortage in these lines. As the allied armies liberate European countries food and clothing must be sent to the starving people. Already rations in stocks are being rushed to France and this great and necessary work must continue indefinitely.

Speaking of the sugar situation Mrs. Coffin said that it may be a number of years before the ration is increased more than it is at present. Four-fifths of the sugar used in Canada is imported. Sources of supply are from United States and Cuba and are pooled between the U. S., Canada and Britain.

Lack of laborers on the farm have reduced the production of foodstuffs and an increase along these lines cannot be looked forward to. There is a possibility that Canadians may find shortages along certain lines, whether in foods or clothing. Coffin urged all to understand and cultivate a more unselfish attitude.

Attention was drawn to the safeguarding of the quality and price of rationed goods. Identification tag which insures satisfaction through uniformity when they return from the war with the small savings that they may have accumulated.

A clear explanation as to the allowance of rationed foods for transient labor was made by the speaker who also advised that interest in price control be maintained by the public. Identification tag which insures satisfaction through uniformity when they return from the war with the small savings that they may have accumulated.

Dear Lord, let I continue my compliance. Help me to remember that somewhere, where, out there, a man died for me today. So long as there are wars, I must ask my answer. Am I worthy dying for?

MR. REGINALD MACDONALD The next speaker was Mr. Reginald MacDonald, general secretary of the P. E. I. Teachers' Federation. In his talk he commended the work Mr. Lloyd Shaw was doing in striving to improve the educational system of the Province.

Mr. MacDonald thought the most necessary change in the educational system was the appointment of a "small permanent, non-political, representative Board of Education." He commended the work of the "small district administration" system by which the Province is divided into 44 units and contrasted this condition with that of Great Britain where there are only 35 units.

Further appreciation was expressed by Rev. Kenneth McMillan of the Basilica staff and Rev. E. L. Murray, parish priest of Summerside. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Teachers, said Mr. MacDonald, should handle the educational problems of a population 50 times greater than that of P. E. Island. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.
