

PRINCE EDWARD—TODAY—FRI.—SAT.

SHOWS 3:25-7-9—COME EARLY

Bob's a hilarious hawkshaw... with a case on Dottie! He's a pistol-packing private eye getting a private eye-full!

EXTRA: NEWS - CARTOON - ANIMAL COMEDY

CAPITOL Today

FRI. and SAT. SHOWS 3:30 7 and 8:45

ROY ROGERS King of the Cowboys

TRIGGER Smartest Horse in the Movies

Home in OKLAHOMA

Featuring GEORGE "GABBY" HAYES with DALE EVANS and BOB NOLAN and THE SONS OF THE PIONEERS

PLUS COMEDY and FEATURETTE

TIGNISH CONVENT

Honor Roll for March. Grade XI.—1, Mary McCue; 2, Earl O'Brien; 3, Betty Kinch. Grade X. A.—1, Nelson Perry; 2, Jean Ayward; 3, Mary Callaghan. Grade X. B.—1, Reta McCue; 2, Gladys Ahearn; 3, Theresa Gaudet. Grade IX.—1, Lena Gavin; 2, Camilla Gallant; 3, Rita Harper.

2. Alfreda O'Brien; 3, Frances Perry. Grade VII.—1, Camilla Arsenault; 2, Irene Buote; 3, Augustine Gaudet. Grade VI.—1, Shirley Perry; 2, Myrtle Keough; 3, Mary Cameron. Grade VI.—Boys—1, David Kinch. Grade V.—1, Teresa Cahill; 2, Leo Richard; 3, Leonard Broderick. Grade IV.—1, Florence Arsenault; 2, Freda Hogan; 3, Alberta Rowe. Grade IV. B.—1, Irene Richard; 2, Joan Gaudet; 3, Velda Gaudet. Grade III. A.—1, Audine Arsenault; 2, Jeannette Richard; 3, Yvonne Perry. Grade III. B.—1, Ronald Bernard; 2, Peter Gaudet; 3, Stuart Arsenault. Grade II.—French—1, Catherine Gaudet; 2, Edgar DesRoches; 3, Doris Richard. Grade II.—English—1, Florence Ann Cameron; 2, Albert McPhee and Dorothy Gallant; 3, Helen Rowe. Grade I.—1, Eugene Kinch; 2, Doreen Doucette; 3, Sylvia Hogan.

TIRED FEET Soothe them with MINARD'S LINIMENT 35c

EMPIRE

TONIGHT.—FRI. and SAT. Shows 7 - 8:45 Matinee Sat. Only 2:30

IT'S A DOG'S LIFE ...BUT YOU'LL LOVE IT!

with FRANK ALBERTSON BARBARA REED JOHNNY CALKINS LEE "LASSIE" WHITE

Also Laurel-Hardy Comedy and First Chapter New Serial "JACK ARMSTRONG"

KELLY'S CROSS W. I.

The April meeting of this Institute met at the home of Mrs. Louis Hogan on April 9th with an attendance of seven members and five visitors.

The different committees gave their reports and the same committees were re-appointed. It was decided to get a wash-basin and towels for the school, if they can be obtained. The president, Mrs. Maurice McDonald, is going to procure a mat and pattern for the Crapaud convention.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Joseph Kelly, May 7th. It was moved and seconded that henceforth the lunch would be supplied by "the hostess of the house" and would consist of a sandwich and two sweets.

A game of bingo was then played from which the sum of $1.30 was realized. First prize for bingo was won by Miss Noreen Trainor, and the second and third prizes by Mrs. Shirley Waddell.

A contest will be put on at the next meeting and Mrs. Louis Hogan will donate the prize.

A dainty lunch was then served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Kelly. The meeting then adjourned.

NORTH WILTSHIRE W. M. S.

The Easter meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of North Wiltshire United Church met at the home of Mrs. Wm. Clark on Thursday, p.m., April 3. The theme was, "God's Book of Life." "Christ the Living Word." The program from the Missionary Monthly was followed. Mrs. Bowman taking the leader part, Mrs. Clark the reader.

Hymns, "Crown Him With Many Crowns" and "O Word of God Incarnate" were sung. Opening New Doors for God's Word was presented. Mrs. Bowman taking the leader's part in Mrs. Denoon's absence, with five other members assisting. Hymn, "The Heavens Declare Thy Glory Lord" closed this part of program. The Word of Life and Light was then presented, the same members taking part. Hymn, "Light of the Lonely Pilgrim's Heart" closed this, the last part of the program.

The president then took charge and gave three short readings. Minutes of previous meeting were read; roll called; eight members present.

Georgetown And Vicinity

Howard MacLean, Walter MacLean and Angus MacLean motored to Charlottetown on Tuesday.

Miss Edna Fitzpatrick of Woodville Mills was a visitor to Georgetown on Tuesday.

Miss Georgina MacLeod who has been visiting for some time in Charlottetown, has returned to her home in Georgetown.

Mrs. F. J. DeLory was a visitor to Charlottetown on Tuesday.

Miss Alice Jeffery of Charlottetown is visiting relatives here.

Members of the Canadian National Railways bridge and building crew, and local workmen started, on Tuesday, the construction of a ramp on the north side of the road between the coal cars will be unloaded in the future. A bridge leading to Main Street is also being constructed for teams going to and from the ramp. This will be an immense improvement, as the present unloading place, near the station, works quite an inconvenience and dust nuisance to residents nearby.

Friends of Mr. Horace Parker of Georgetown, who is a patient in the Prince Edward Hospital, are pleased to hear of his continued improvement and all hope that he will soon be able to return to his home completely restored to health.

Following the regular monthly meeting of the Town Council on Monday night, notices have been posted for applications for the position of Fire Chief for the town. On Tuesday members of the Council visited the Drill Shed and also inspected the town dump and the condition of several culverts under the streets and the repairs and replacements will soon commence on several culverts and an early decision is expected on dumping conditions and regulations.

Beautiful flowers appearing on the Communion Table of St. David's Church on Easter Sunday and the past Sunday were placed there by Mrs. Myrtle Robinson and family in memory of the late Oliver Babineau, who was killed while serving with the North Nova Scotia Highlanders in the Second World War.

The regular meeting of the New London W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Earl Carr on Thursday evening April 10th.

The president, Mrs. George Cole presided, opening the meeting in the usual manner. Thirteen members answered roll call by naming their favorite color. There was one visitor present. Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved. The secretary reported $9.95 proceeds from a card party and the government grant had been received. Six committees reported five calls made and fruit bills were passed in.

School committee reported a wash basin and a pencil sharpener had been purchased for the school. New committees appointed were: School, Mrs. Claude MacEwen and Mrs. Harold Mayhew; program, Mrs. Leigh MacEwen and Mrs. Lorne Campbell. Correspondence was then read and discussed. It was moved and seconded that $10.00 to the Red Cross. Plans for improving the school grounds are to be discussed at May meeting. Program consisted of contests. A "May" contest, put on by Mrs. Don MacEwen was won by Mrs. Pollard, our guest. Contest entitled "A Blank Old Lady" was put on by Mrs. H. Mayhew. Prize was won by Mrs. Mort MacEwen. Mrs. Don MacEwen invited the members to meet at her home for May meeting when roll call will be answered by naming a perennial flower and an exchange of slips or bulbs.

Meeting closed with the King. Lunch was served by the hostess and committee in charge.

BYRNES ROAD SCHOOL

Report for March: Grade IX.—1, Marion McInnis; 2, Anne McInnis. Grade VIII.—1, Rachael Trainor; 2, Berle Kenny. Grade VII. Sr.—1, George Clarkin; 2, Leith Woolridge; 3, Gerald Byrne. Grade VI Jr.—1, Bruce Woolridge. Grade V Sr.—1, Elva Trainor; 2, Francis McInnis; 3, Emmanuel Byrne. Grade V Jr.—1, Bernard Gillan. Grade IV.—1, Marie Clarkin; 2, Edna Woolridge. Grade III Sr.—1, Marie Kenny; 2, Ronie Woolridge & John Kenny (equal); 3, Roy Kenny. Grade II Jr.—1, Jean Clarkin; 2, Celia Woolridge & Flora Woolridge (equal); 3, Phillip Gillan. Grade I.—Laura Kenny. Perfect attendance—Marie Kenny.

Mrs. Thomas Kenny, teacher.

Masters Of The Parachute Mail

By Peter Benedict

Peggy was satisfied with her evening, and more than satisfied with its promises for the future. She was only anxious now to get away from the Cowles, and have a few words in privacy with Peter. She was glad when the third of began and they took leave of each other with mutual and cool compliments, and went back to their seats.

She did not, however, introduce the subject of which both his thoughts and hers were busy, until they had withdrawn themselves finally from the midnight crowd in the exclusive little restaurant he found for her, and were sitting shoulder to shoulder in a taxi on the way home. Then she said casually for even taxi-drivers have ears: "Will you come in and have a drink before you go home, Peter? I've got something I want to discuss with you."

Peter came. He knew that she had a hunch, by the set of her face, whose unlikely to be Mrs. Peggy had never yet ceased to disconcert him. He had a hunch in his turn that her hunches would be good. She was playing a game which at first he had not seen, and her snar-frold startled him every time he stopped to think of it. They sat in a corner of the almost deserted lounge at the Malbro, and the weary and impassive waiter brought them sherry; and there at last they could have discussed murder and sudden death without being overheard, and without arousing any interest even if they had been overheard.

"Spill it!" said Peter. "It isn't a doubt, by any chance?" "No, I'm more certain than ever I was. No, it's just an idea." She curled her painted finger-tips round the stem of her glass, and looked at him with the straight look she kept for him, since it went so badly with the rest of the personality of Eleanor Vandeleur. "Look Peter! You're practically a policeman, I mean, if you went to Scotland Yard, and said you wanted something very urgently, they'd get it for you, wouldn't they?"

"I Want Some Dope!"

"What is it you want?" "Some marijuana cigarettes, please."

"Great Scott!" said Peter, startled, "whatever for?" "They're the most American sort of dope I can think of. If you know of a better and more characteristic form, I'll use it. No," she said reassuringly, smiling at his quizzical face, "I'm not proposing to acquire the habit for local color."

"I don't do it for local color, as all that. But I've got to establish contact somehow, and she's coming to have tea with me here next Tuesday; and I thought that if I really had some of the gully stuff on me, and let her know it, confidence would be more likely to establish itself, I mean—well, I'm supposed to be rich—worth plucking—and they have goods to sell, private there; no one can be so very easy for a dope-crazy to get much of the stuff through the customs. Can you get it for me? Just half a dozen would do—in fact, that's all I need."

"I can," said Peter carefully. "And you will?" she said, scenting the difference. "Well—if you solemnly swear to me to look after myself, on my account—yes, I will."

"I don't swear anything of the kind," said Peggy indignantly. "I've no intention of touching it—but if I get into a tight corner, and conviction needs it, then frankly, I shall smoke crazyweed if I think fit. You don't think I'm fool enough to light the beastly things if I can help it, do you?"

"No," said Peter. "I don't. All right, I'll get you some. You shall have them ready for Tuesday afternoon."

CHAPTER IX Wrong Cigarette Case

Corrie Cowie came into the Malbro on the following Tuesday afternoon in the rest of half-past seven, and found Miss Vandeleur waiting for her in a corner of the lounge. She looked round her with her usual slow, languid and graceful indifference, and found the pale blond coils of hair, and advanced upon them with an unmoved face. Not an effusive woman. Even her smile was cool and aloof. And as for her thoughts, no one could be expected to make even a reasonably accurate guess at them.

Actually, reflected Peggy, rising to meet her, her motives for coming there were probably as shallow and rational as the haughty curiosity which moves idle women to draw from one another tales they do not believe, nor particularly want to hear. She had an afternoon to while away, without any particular spur, or any attractive programme. Eleanor was someone new and unexplored, and at any rate not distasteful, and she rather wanted to see the miniatures.

This was genuine enough, and Peggy never doubted it. Corrie had an artistic spot, like her grandmother, but located differently; though by all accounts, Lady Cowie was the universal woman, as opposed to the Renaissance universal man.

Peggy, secure in her daily makeup at the hands of Lillias's pyxidion, and perhaps still more secure in Sylvia's smartest afternoon frock, a creation in a luminous dark green which made her blondness eerie, met her with the brazen aplomb she had come to expect of herself.

"Miss Cowie! This is nice! Would you prefer tea in my rooms, or here? Or there's a quiet little lounge upstairs with a balcony over the park."

"The park, please. Maybe we can get a little fresh air there; I've been hunting for some all day. I don't believe there's any in London." But she looked cool as frozen silk.

They had tea in the balcony, in a corner three sides open to what little breeze there was moving in the still, hot air. It was beautifully private there; no one was within earshot, and no one even closely within sight, for the balcony ran a little way round the corner of the building, and their table was in the quiet corner.

(To be continued)

3 DAYS SALE THURSDAY FRIDAY & SATURDAY

15000—Buy them by the bagful for health SUNKIST JUICY ORANGES 4 DOZ. 1.00

CHOICE ONIONS 5 lbs. 39c Fresh Pitted DATES 3 Lbs $1.

Perfection Icecream Pints & Bulk Fresh Shelled Walnuts 1-4 Lb 33c

Head LETTUCE Large 21c New CARROTS 3 lbs. 29c New SQUASH lb. 8c

Fresh Dug PARSNIPS 3 lbs. 29c They Are Delicious

Fresh HADDOCK FILLETS lb. 32c

Tender PEAS 2 tins 31c Corned PORK HOCKS lb. 19c

SPARE RIBS 3 lbs. 29c Choice CORNED BEEF lb. 25c

EGGS GRADE B DOZ. 35c

Wash HAMS Whole or Half lb. 47c JUST THE THING TO HAVE ON HAND

CASH & CARRY STORES 187 Gt. Geo. St., Charlottetown "The Big Store With The Big Stock"

FAVORITE BRUNETTE A LAUGH-FILLED RIOT

"My Favorite Brunette," which opens to-day at the Prince Edward Theatre with the irrepressible Bob Hope masquerading as a tough private detective, armed with gas instead of gats, is more than likely to be voted the season's favorite comedy.

With Hope as a private eye, and co-star Dorothy Lamour as his eye-full, the Paramount release is packed with laughs, thrills and suspense—the Hope, not Hitchcock brand. Boy plays a frustrated baby photographer with a suppressed desire to be a private investigator. He wants to focus his eyes on more adult "babies," and when one, the sultry Miss Lamour, mistakes him for the sleuth next door, Hope enters eagerly into the disguise.

The girl leaves a mysterious map in Bob's care, and enlists his aid in her search for his missing uncle, an important foreign diplomat. That's where sanity leaves off and Hope takes over. He is immediately involved with the most gruesome group of cut-throats ever assembled in one picture, is trapped in an insane asylum where he plays golf with a partner who doesn't use a ball, and finally winds up in the death house at San Quentin, framed with a murder rap. It looks like the end, but there are still more laughs to follow.

Supporting Hope by trying to kill him, are Peter Lorre, Lon Chaney, John Hoyt, Jack La Rue and Charles Dingle.

"GINGER," DOG FILM, DUE ON SCREEN

The story of a young boy's love for a stray dog, and the obstacles they face together, forms the interesting background of Monogram's "Ginger," which comes to the Empire theatre to-day. Frank Albertson and Barbara Reed co-star for the first time, heading a cast which includes many juvenile players.

Albertson is seen as a prize-fighter forced to retire from the ring because of injury to his eye. He goes to a small town with his ten-year-old nephew, Johnny Calkins, and takes a job as master of the dog pound. Johnny adopts a stray dog which he calls "Ginger," but runs into unexpected trouble when the mayor of the town plots to have the property on which the pound is located condemned as a public nuisance. The plan backfires when the dog and his youthful master combine forces to bring the story to a thrilling climax.

Janet Burton and Gene Collins are prominent in featured juvenile roles in "Ginger," while Lee "Lasses" White, Dick Elliott, Oliver Blake, Edythe Elliott, Wally Walker and a host of youngsters and canines fill the Lindsay Parsons production. Drake wrote the screenplay from an original story by Donald C. McKean. Ace Herman was the associate producer, and Edward J. Kay was musical director.

STANCHER SCHOOL Standing for March. Grade X.—1, Lorne Keating; 2, Shirley MacLean. Grade IX.—1, Beryl MacLean; 2, Iona Keating. Grade VIII.—1, Violet Aiken; 2, Sheila MacLean. Grade VII.—1, Edna Todd. Grade VI.—1, Jackie White; 2, Alberta Todd; 3, Mary Kelly. Grade IV.—1, Vernon MacLean; 2, Audrey Cameron. Grade III.—1, Marcellus Trainor; 2, Edna Todd. Grade II.—1, Stephen Trainor. Perfect Attendance—Violet Aiken, Edna Todd, Alberta Todd, Mary Kelly, Jackie White, D. Lester Cairns—Teacher.

NEW Apply in Seconds... 2-IN-1 LIQUID SHOE POLISH BLACK, BROWN—15c

Ripping a 150-mile path across Texas and Oklahoma, a tornado like this killed more than 150 persons and injured upwards of 1,000 as property damage ran into millions. Hardest hit was Woodward, Okla., where 72 died. Guards were posted to prevent looting.

RAT-NIP DESTROYS Rats Quickly

PENRITH, Cumberland (CP) — A golden eagle has been seen recently in the Lake District.