Some Reasons Why Your Will Should Be Made Now

Because now you are in good health and are in a position where you can think clearly.

Because a Will made under pressure often results in being contested in the law courts, causing needless expense to the Estate.

Because it sometimes happens that a Will made during illness does not include some particular asset. In such cases court expenses must be again added before proper disposition can be made of the property.

Because you can not afford to longer jeopardize the interests of your family by delaying the making of so important a document.

Why not talk this over with one of the Company's officers?
