THE SALVATION ARMY is to be commended in the steps they are taking to stamp out the irreverence and bad conduct of the young men and sometimes young women who in the back benches have been allowed to disturb the meetings. It is due to the respectable and order loving portion of the community who attend those meetings as well as to the Army itself that the proceedings should be conducted as St. Paul enjoins, "decently and in order."—Com.

To the Boys of Summerside.

One who sympathizes with you, for your own sakes, in the present state of your minds as regards the powers that be for your restraint and your education in the science of good citizenship, would speak a friendly word. Boys, notoriously, seldom see things except as they are told them by those who on age and experience have taught, usually after many mistakes and misconceptions on their own part.

The ideal boy despises a bully and a coward. The bully and the coward are, as a rule, the same person. The full-grown specimen of that genus eventually wins the sobriquet of rowdy. We do not blame you when urged on by those who take advantage of your weakness and inexperience, you commit what would otherwise be a cowardly and bully-like act, such as grying a respectable middle-aged, defenceless stranger, who came to town peaceably, honestly and alone, to perform a duty to which he had been assigned. Do you not see, then, that it is not the manly part to throw cheap reproaches and insult upon the one who stands alone in the midst of an unfriendly crowd? If you were British-to-the-core boys and were watching a dog fight, in which several dogs, canine-like, running out each from his own back-yard, combined in the assault upon the poor stranger dog which has just come to town to take up the position of night sentry in the house of a new master, you would certainly sympathize with the 'under-dog.' You would feel yourself a coward if you did not rush in with the aid of your boots to give him fair play. Of course, you did not see that your little sport on the occasion in question was of the bully-coward variety. We all have made like mistakes. But your fathers should have told you better.

The other day a man stopped to admire a burly band of Summerside boys in another part of the town, marching in skirmishing order like soldiers intent on a noble mission. They looked as if they might be knights—errant of the old days of chivalry; out in search of deeds of daring-do; to fight for the weak and oppressed, and to punish tyrants who dared insult or take advantage of defenceless females. This gallant company was led by a boy of 12 years or more. He had a face and form which with a few or more years of development might be worthy of a Paardeburg. And yet what was the man's astonishment to see them make a deliberate raid upon a company of little girls, wantonly destroying their play things and but for timely intervention, one at least was about to treat a little maiden in a most cowardly and inexcusable fashion. They were indeed, little boys. As yet, however, they are not what we would like to think British boys, nor are they manly boys. They are in fact quite mistaken as to what a manly British boy is expected always to do. They do not as yet, know the difference between a bully-coward and the type of lad who will in future make a good citizen, having no occasion even to be afraid at the approach of the policeman.

It is well within the bounds of propriety for a boy, under stress of excitement, at a hockey match, conscious that the reputation of the Crystals or the Pioneers or any other of our town's honorable, muscular and alert champions is at stake, to shout and scream and whistle as shrilly as he may. But the proprieties of a hockey match are not on a par with the gentler and more refined events which from time to time transpire within the more sacred walls of Market Hall. Hence cat-calls and war-whoops and other characteristic ebullitions of the traditional yahoo are not expected, any more than they would be expected of you in the drawing room at home when the family is entertaining company. Imagine how it would shock the tastes, not to say the nerves, of the company were the polite order of the household—disturbed by one of the rude noises, which if uttered in the street of any well-ordered town would, in all probability land you in the lock up. Do you think it would be palliated as applause of the lady whose songs perhaps just delighted the company.

Again: inordinate devouring of peanuts is quite within the personal liberty of every boy who frequents public entertainments, but it is never as far as we know, indicative of good breeding or manliness in the slightest degree. As far as our experience has taught us a boy is not considered braver or more admirable according to the standard of any known law or custom of civilized society, in proportion to the capacity of his appetite for peanuts on any extraordinary public occasion. But a great deal does hang upon orderly behaviour—a great deal of the reputation of parents, teachers, town everything and everybody you respect.

It is much to be desired that all our boys shall learn in some way that admission to such entertainments as those given by our town talent and Prof. Earle are distinctly an admission to polite society. It is much to be desired that they shall be made to understand how objectionable to the rest of the audience is the perpetual disturbance which passes charitably under the name of applause, sometimes also vulgarly previous. It will indeed be unfortunate if our boys for the sake of an untimely display of what at the bottom all know is only animal spirits, shall sometime as is inevitable now have to suffer the disgrace of appearing in the Police Court to answer for rowdiness.

With every good wish. Your friend who is also.

Maritime Boys' Camp

Quite a number of Dartmouth boys will go to camp with the Y. M. C. A. boys branch this season. Arrangements are now being made for the season. There will be three sections. Section 1 will be under the leadership of A. W. Robb, of Halifax, and will camp in New Brunswick. Section 2 will be looked after by Warren Steele, and will camp at Chester. Section 3 will be in charge of James Malcolm, and the camp will be in Cape Breton. It is probable that the Dartmouth boys will attend section 2 at Chester. Richard Walsh, who went last year to assist in looking after the boys, and is very popular with them, will go again this season.

One in Seven Dies ... of Consumption

And Consumption Begins with a Cold that Could Be Cured by Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

That one in every seven persons dies of consumption is proven by government statistics, and when it is remembered that it is usually the young man and young woman who succumb to the effects of this terribly fatal disease, the ravages of consumption are more fully realized.

Consumption always begins with a neglected cold, and how dreadful must be the misery of every mother whose dear ones fall prey to this mortal as a result of mother's neglect to cure the cold.

It is rarely that consumption is ever cured, but it can always be prevented by a timely use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, the most popular and far-famed remedy for throat and lung diseases.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is composed of the best ingredients ever used for coughs and colds. It is pleasant to take, prompt in its action, and a positive cure for croup, bronchitis, whooping cough, sore throat, hoarseness, asthma and coughs and colds of every description. 25c. a large bottle at all dealers, or EDMANSON, BATES & Co., Toronto.
