Bell Now Open To Sight-Seers

How does it feel to plunge 100 feet beneath the waves? Sight-seers may now experience that sensation, with the placing in service of the first diving bell ever open to the public. Operated from a pleasure ship off Long Beach, Calif., it is lowered over the side with an operator and three passengers inside. They watch through the portholes such scenes as Jules Verne might have described, as swordfish and devilfish swirl in surprise about the steel intruder and are revealed by its white and colored spotlights.

The three-ton steel cage, originally designed and operated by William Gordon, English submarine and salvage engineer, for use in surveying the sunken ship "Brother Jonathan" off Crescent City, Calif., was remodelled to accommodate four persons on under sea drops.

Operated by means of a crane, steel cables, and a steam winch, the shell sinks with 1,500 pounds of steel ballast aboard. It takes about a minute to touch bottom at the 100 foot level. Massive legs enable the bell to rest on the sea bottom.

Sufficient oxygen is contained in the air of the four foot diameter shell to last four persons four hours, but as a precaution an electrically driven air purifier is kept in operation while the bell is under water. In case of emergency 125 cubic feet of pure oxygen can be released from a reserve tank and when this gives out the four aboard can purify their own breath with individual masks. Passengers could live three days in the air tight cylinder if the shell should get stuck under water. This, however, is a remote possibility, as the operator, who goes below with his three passengers on each dive, can release the ballast ordinarily carried to overcome the buoyancy of the bell, allowing it to shoot to the surface. Steel flaps can be tripped over window apertures, sealing them water tight in case the thick glass covering the portholes should break.

William Lindley, salvage expert of Juneau, Alaska, who has worked on the project of attempting to raise the sunken ship "Islander" in Stephens Passage, installed and operates the pleasure device.—Popular Science.

CANADIAN PAINTERS NOT DISTINCTIVE

TORONTO, Aug. 31.—(By The Canadian Press)—Canada has no distinctively native character in her domestic or commercial decorative art. H. Thomas Carson, Ottawa, told the 28th annual convention of the Canadian Council of the International Society of Master Painters and Decorators here recently. Speaking on "The Heritage of Canadian Decoration," Mr. Carson pointed out that Canada's heritage was wholly English. Most of Canada's homes were Victorian in type, and the interiors were of the 1914 vintage or earlier. Occasionally one found a typically Canadian touch—Habitant or Indian influence—in a home, and generally people welcomed suggestions from decorators who understood the art of living a Canadian atmosphere by introducing native touches.

Chintz, Mr. Carson stated, was supplanting the ancient horsehair and brightening dim tapestry-hung and upholstered rooms. People who are starting out afresh in a new home or who are doing over their homes are, apparently showing a trend toward a Canadian decorative art which, developed to its highest point, makes for bright, homes reflective of the native atmosphere.

Talkies, movies, radio and the press were a potent influence in the new home which Canadians were beginning to build and decorate, the speaker commented, and because of these—and the fact that painters and decorators were making an art of their business—more liveable homes of infinitely better taste were within sight, said the speaker.

SHORTAGE OF MEN NO DISAPPOINTMENT TO ENGLISH GIRLS

LONDON, Aug. 31.—(By The Canadian Press)—A former South African girl writes to the Cape Argus: "It is very difficult for us in South Africa to realize exactly how the English girl's outlook is affected by the dearth of young men in her country. Certainly the preponderance of women in England strikes one immediately, especially in the fact that 2,000,000 of her sex must inevitably remain unmarried is regarded quite impersonally by the average English girl.

"Although she cannot enjoy the amount of male companionship that we do in our country, her dreams about her future are full of hope and promise, and she manages to fill her present life very pleasantly with numerous interests in the companionship of her own sex. England is the true home of feminine friendship. I wonder how many South Africans would enjoy dining and theatre, going in a party of girls, for instance. I can't quite picture it in Cape Town or Johannesburg. We would certainly consider it 'fame' and vaguely infatigable, to be obliged to fall back on the company of other girls instead of flaunting our latest conquests in the stalls. The idea of enjoying women's company for its own sake never enters our calculations. That, at least, is my experience."

IN MEMORIAM

MR. GEORGE DARRACH

Died at Concord, N. H., Aug. 24, 1932, George Darrach, aged 52 years. Mr. Darrach was born on Appin Road, P. E. I., a son of Archibald and Sarah Darrach, deceased. George spent 25 years a resident of Concord. In that city he worked for the Concord Lumber Company, also acted as Foreman in the Lumber Department at the State Prison. In his sickness of over 2 years he stood the test of the great Christian, of which he was exemplifying at all times love and patience, and serene trust in his Saviour.

He leaves to mourn a wife and three children, Mildred, Marion and George A.; also 3 brothers, William, Keswick, N. B., John of Somerville, Mass., and Jim of Cambridge, also 2 sisters, Mrs. John Backus, of Arlington, Mass., Mrs. Alexander Young, of Cambridge, Mass.

Bridge was played early in the evening and the prize winners were Mrs. D. R. Morrison, Mrs. James Wood and Mr. Walter Darby. There was a large attendance at the dance and all enjoyed the excellent floor and music by Mr. Harold Gaudet's well known orchestra. Dainty refreshments were served at midnight and dancing resumed for a brief period.—S

—QUIET WEDDING — A quiet wedding was solemnized in St. Mary's Convent Chapel, Summerside, on Wednesday morning, Rev. G. J. McLellan, D. D., officiating at the Nuptial Mass. The bride was Miss Millicent Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Perry and the groom was Mr. Joseph Gallant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Gallant, all of Summerside. The bride was charmingly attired in a wedding gown of blue georgette with hat to match and was attended by Miss Clara Gallant. The groomsmen were Mr. Cedric Perry, brother of the bride. After the ceremony the young couple were entertained at the home of the groom and left shortly after on a motor trip to Charlottetown where they took in the air pageant, Mr. and Mrs. Gallant will make their home in Summerside, where their many friends wish them every happiness.—S

—OLD LANDMARK REMOVED — Mr. L. B. Crue of Summerside has just finished pulling down the residence on Winter Street, where his mother, the late Mrs. Daniel Crue had resided for seventy years. This house was built by Mr. Crue's father when he first came to Summerside from Union Road near Charlottetown. Here he brought his young bride. Here he carried on for many years his trade of watch maker and repairer until he took up premises on Water Street, just below Holman's Store. There were only two other houses at that time in that part of the town. One was the house of the late Hon. John Lefurgey, now owned by Mr. J. E. Dalton. This House, however, was not as large as it is today and consisted merely of what is now the kitchen section. The other house, owned by the late Thomas Crabbe, father of Mrs. W. J. Whitney is situated on Summer Street and is the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Whitney. A pump about opposite to Trinity Church was used by these three families for many years. Mr. Crue remembers quite well going up the steet to the pump as a lad to fetch all the water required by the family. The late Mrs. Crue lived in the house until her death last fall. Although in a good state of preservation the building did not come up to present day requirements as the ceilings were low and the rooms divided. Mr. Crue therefore decided to pull it down and in its place is building a modern bungalow. It is a pity old associations have to go, but that is the way of things the world over.—S

Services at home and grave conducted by his pastor, Rev. Edwin Cook.

Doctors Champion, O'Leary Delaney of Wellington, Mills of Malpeque and Jardine of Kensington attended from the country districts, besides the local doctors. The visiting doctors were entertained at Dr. J. O. Simpson's new home to a lobster dinner. At this party the new residence was christened "Heatherdale on the Hill." Dr. Simpson and Mrs. Simpson have been in residence in their charming new bungalow about a week.—S

—SUCCESSFUL SUPPER — The chicken supper in aid of the rink at St. Eleanors was a decided success. Large crowds heartily enjoyed the supper which was put on in the hall on Tuesday evening by the ladies. Other attractions added to the enjoyment of the evening. A tug of war between Sherbrooke and St. Eleanors was won by the latter team after a very strenuous contest. Mr. H. M. Downing and Mr. A. E. McLean, M. P. acted as referee. A large fruit cake weighing sixteen pounds which was made by Mrs. Lee Compton was drawn for and the winner of the lucky ticket was Harry Cannon, (Jr.) The number of the ticket was 166. The cake was then put up for auction and some spirited bidding was witnessed between A. E. McLean, M. P., and Mr. H. M. Downing. The cake was finally knocked down to Mr. Downing for $10. It was again offered for sale and purchased by Mr. Percy Crosby for six dollars. The proceeds from the cake made a grand total of $36. Other cakes were auctioned off in like manner. Mr. J. A. C. Cresswell was the auctioneer.—S

—SUMMERSIDE HIGH SCHOOL NEARING COMPLETION—The annex to the Summerside High School is almost completed. The roof is finished with the exception of the coping. The class rooms are all plastered and two are finished and in the hands of the painters. The electric wiring, plumbing and heating is well ahead of the carpenters. The assembly hall will not be finished for some time but the plastering is completed. At a meeting of the Summerside School Board held on Tuesday evening it was decided to postpone the opening of the school from the 6th to the 12th, as the teachers' convention is being held on the 6th which would only leave three school days in that week. There are twenty five applicants mostly from the country districts, for the 11th grade. It is anticipated there will be over forty. The property committee were instructed to purchase 170 seats for the new wing, 105 of which are individual chairs and desks of the most modern type in strong white ash, with metal supports. The purchase of the laboratory materials will be left until the arrival of Miss McFarlane, who will have charge of this department. The book stores have received instructions as to the books required for the new grade. It was decided to erect the flag pole on the grounds instead of on the roof as formerly. Mr. Samuel Simmons has charge of the painting of the new wing. The janitor has received instructions to have the rooms cleaned and ready by September 12th. The extra six days will allow everything to be in readiness for the pupils who will not object to a few extra days vacation.—S
