not see straight. Accuse him of doing the same things that he accuses you of doing, and refuse to let him explain, or deny.

I cured my husband of being jealous 29 years ago by using these tactics, and we have been very happy and peaceful ever since.

ANSWER: Thanks for the tip. It sounds workable, and if it is, it is a godsend to a lot of harassed husbands and wives whose mates are always attributing crimes to them that they never even dreamed of committing.

If every wife who has a jealous husband would meet him at the door with a tirade of abuses and suspicions about where he has been and what he has done, and if every husband who has a jealous wife would spend his evenings at home accusing his wife of having affairs with every man she knows, they would both see how absurdly they were acting and drop it, and give their mates credit for being the decent people they are.

Happy-Go-Lucky

By Mrs. Harry Pugh Smith

The theater was crowded. The presence of the famous Broadway producer had brought out the town in full. Barbara, thinking she was to have the same place, walked clear down the aisle, only to find a group of people, among them Pinkney Law and Gloria Havener's parents and sister-in-law, occupying the front row. Her cheeks blazing with humiliation, Barbara walked back, feeling every sort of a fool. She intended to walk right out the door and go home, but Martin Fagg stepped over some other people and met her near the exit.

"What's the matter, Barbara?" he asked. "Some mixup about seats?"

Barbara's throat felt full of tears. "Yes, I — that is, I guess Tony forgot he had a wife."

"Take my seat, Barbara," urged Martin.

"I couldn't think of it." "I'll get another or stand at the back," insisted Martin.

Barbara's head was throbbing. She thought she would faint if she went on standing up, and more people were turning to stare at her. "All right," she gasped, "and thanks, Martin. You're always so thoughtful."

The curtain went up and the lights down in a few minutes. Barbara was grateful for the darkness. She was furious at Tony. She had seen his mother and sisters in the front row. He had taken care of seats for them, all right. Barbara's cheeks burned and suddenly she felt sick. What on earth ailed her, she asked herself desperately, and then a thought went through her life a knife. Suppose she were going to have a baby!

She did not hear a word that was spoken on the stage. She simply could not have a baby now. She had to keep her job. She was certain Tony would not want a baby, not at any rate for several years, if he ever wanted one. She was sure he was not so much in love with her as he had been.

They needed to make so many adjustments. Tony had to finish his play. "It just can't be that," she whispered to herself.

After a while the lights came up again. The applause was terrific. Barbara could scarcely hear herself think. People stood up and yelled, "Author! Author!" Gloria Havener took Tony by the hand and led him out upon the stage. Barbara could see neither of them distinctly for the blur in her eyes. Tony made a little curt speech. It was clever and spontaneous and winning. The crowd cheered and cheered. Apparently the play had been a success.

Barbara got slowly to her feet. People were crowding up to the stage to congratulate Tony and Gloria. Nobody paid any attention to Barbara. "I'm just his wife," she thought bitterly.

Gloria kept hold of Tony's arm. She kept calling him her discoverer. "What do you think of my find, Pinkney?" she asked the great producer.

Pinkney Law smiled, but refused to commit himself. "You'll hear from me," he said to Tony.

There was an informal reception on the stage. Barbara tried to get closer, but her heart was not in it and she was pushed back to the fringe of the circle. She did not even know Martin was standing beside her until he spoke. "Don't you feel well, Barbara?" he asked anxiously. "You're so white."

"I'm all right, Martin," said Barbara. "Just tired."

"You don't look all right," he insisted. "Want me to take you home in my car?"

Barbara shook her head. Tony's mother kissed Gloria. "I can't tell you how grateful I am for what you've done for my boy," she murmured.

Gloria smiled wryly. "You can teach a snare to sing," she said, "but he has to be born a snare."

Tony's mother beamed upon him. "The play is wonderful!" she cried. "Tony kissed her. 'So is my mother.'"

Nessa snuggled up to him. "I want to act in it. Brother, let me, please."

Tony grinned. "Here's five dollars," he said. "Buy a new hair ribbon and try the stage, Infant. Two temperaments in one family are enough."

Lily smiled rather sourly. "I hope when you get to be a celebrity, you won't forget us, Tony. We've seen a little of you lately. But I suppose your wife takes up all your spare time."

Barbara turned suddenly to Martin Fagg. "I believe I will let you take me home, Martin," she said. "Certainly," he exclaimed, and took her arm.

Corine Lucas met them on the way out and tittered. "As I live and breathe," she chorled, "this is getting to be a habit, isn't it?"

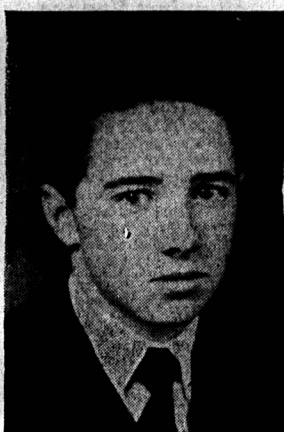

Martin flushed, but Barbara pretended not to hear. They said nothing in the car. It was only a few blocks to the flat. Barbara would not let Martin get out. "Itterly," "I'm used to it."

Martin looked distressed. "I don't want to push in where I don't belong, Barbara, but it burns me up to see you unhappy."

Cat In Tree Was Tough Customer

IPSWICH, England, April 27 — (AP) — For four days the Ipswich fire brigade tried to dislodge Tinker, a black-and-white Persian cat, from the top of a 100-foot pine tree.

Dense foliage made it impossible to use ladders. The firemen shot 16,000 gallons of water at the tree in an effort to drive Tinker from her perch.

Then it was decided to cut down the tree. But along came young A.R. Garnham.

"Pooh," said Garnham. "I'll climb it."

He did. He popped Tinker into a sack and made a safe descent. Tinker, waterlogged but happy, celebrated with a big meal.

DENHAM, Buckinghamshire, England — (CP) — Police are on the look-out for a gang of hooligans raiding the village in a cat-and-milk-bottle "war." In one month of "war" 16 street lamps were smashed.

After-Meal Pains Due To Indigestion

"I was a sufferer from dyspepsia for over a year. I was depressed and afraid to eat. I tried several remedies, but to no avail. Then I took Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and found great relief. Today I can eat almost anything and digest it. By taking Dr. Hamilton's Pills every other night, I have regular bowel action — my liver is in good order, and I sleep soundly at night."

Martin looked distressed. "I don't want to push in where I don't belong, Barbara, but it burns me up to see you unhappy."

"Thanks, Martin, only don't say anything more. I can't stand it," faltered Barbara, and fled upstairs. (To be continued).

So, you've never made a cake? Don't worry—with Swifting and this beginner-tested recipe, you'll make a light, tender, beautiful cake! Just watch for the little hands—they warn where there's a chance of error.

Preparation: Have all ingredients at room temperature. Pre-heat oven at 375°F. Line bottoms of two 9-inch, or three 8-inch round layer pans with heavy waxed paper.

Ingredients: (Use standard, level measure)
2 squares chocolate 1 1/2 teaspoons soda
1/2 cup Swifting 1 teaspoon salt
2 1/4 cups sifted cake flour 1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup shortening 1 1/2 cups sour milk
4 eggs (or 1 1/2 c. sweet milk) (or 1 1/2 c. sweet milk + 1/2 tsp. vinegar)
1 1/4 cups sugar 2 eggs

Step 1: Melt chocolate over hot, not boiling water. Place Swifting in bowl. Sift together flour, sugar, soda and salt into bowl. Add vanilla and 1 cup of the sour milk. Beat 2 minutes—by hand, using about 150 strokes per minute; or at medium speed of electric mixer. Keep scraping batter off sides and bottom of mixer bowl with rubber scraper. After 2 minutes, scrape beaters or spoon and bowl thoroughly.

Step 2: Add the unbeaten eggs, melted chocolate and remaining milk (1/2 cup). Beat 1 minute. Scrape beaters and bowl thoroughly. Continue beating 1 minute. Pour equal amounts of batter into prepared cake pans. Bake about 30 minutes.

When done, cake will spring back quickly when pressed with finger. Cool on cake rack 5 minutes; loosen sides carefully with spatula, invert on rack; remove pans. Cool thoroughly before frosting.

Pink Mint Frosting: In top of double boiler, mix thoroughly 2 unbeaten egg whites, 1 1/2 cups sugar, 5 tbsps. water, and 1 1/2 tsp. white corn syrup. Beat constantly over rapidly boiling water with hand or electric beater until frosting stands in a peak (about 5 to 7 min.). Remove from water, add 1/2 tsp. mint flavouring and small amount of red colouring. Beat until thick enough to spread. Tint 3 tbsps. of frosting a deeper pink. Fill and frost cake, making swirls with back of spoon. Fill center of swirls with deeper shade.
