The New Premier

TORONTO, Dec. 18.—A practical farmer with a university degree is to be Prime Minister of Ontario. Hon. George Stewart Henry, B.A., LL.B., has spent the greater part of his life on the farm in York county, where his ancestors settled more than 100 years ago. He had been no "white collar farmer," for all his background of education, but has taken an active part in the labor as well as the management end of his farm.

Perhaps Mr. Henry's greatest asset as he assumes the direction of the affairs of the province is his ability and experience as a business man. For a practical farmer he took a keen interest in efforts to bring the producer and consumer more closely together and cut down the cost of distribution of farm products. He was one of the active spirits in the formation of the Farmer's Dairy Company Limited.

Mentioned Before

When the leadership of the Conservative party in Ontario was vacant in 1920 Mr. Henry, as one of the few members of Sir William Hearst's cabinet who retained their seats in the 1919 election, was mentioned for the post. The choice of the party, however, was Hon. G. Howard Ferguson and now after 10 years of service as Mr. Ferguson's chief lieutenant in opposition and in power, Mr. Henry becomes premier.

The new premier is 59 years old and comes from North of Ireland stock. Born in King township, close to Toronto, he was educated in Toronto schools, at Upper Canada College and the University of Toronto. After his graduation he spent a year at the Ontario Agricultural College. He then spent a short time in a business office but soon decided to take up farming as his life work. He took over the farm his grandfather had settled when he first came from Ireland.

His first public service was on the township council and, rising steadily, he became warden of York county in 1909. He first entered the Legislature as a member for East York in 1913 by winning a by-election and has represented the riding ever since. Sir William Hearst made him Minister of Agriculture in 1918 but his tenure of that office was short for the Government went down to defeat the next year.

Acting Premier

On the return of the Conservatives under Mr. Ferguson in 1923, Mr. Henry became Minister of Public Works and Highways. Only a few months ago in the re-organization of the cabinet the Department of Public Works was turned over to a new Minister, but Mr. Henry carried on both portfolios up to that time. During the absence of Mr. Ferguson from Ontario Mr. Henry usually became acting premier.

Under Mr. Henry's regime Ontario's mileage of paved roads has greatly increased. The first important road improvements were made before he took office but it remained for him to map out the greater part of the network of highways which now covers the province and carry out the building program.

While not a showy speaker, Mr. Henry has a simple matter-of-fact style which carried conviction to his audiences. Invariably courteous, he seldom figures in the sharp exchanges which sometimes take place in the Legislature.

Three Children

Mr. Henry is married and has three children. His wife, Anna Katha Pickett, was the daughter of Rev. T. W. Pickett and a niece of Laura Secord, famous heroine of the War of 1812. Mr. Henry is an Orangeman, a Mason and a member of the United Church of Canada.

He was the central local figure in the big convention of the Ancient Order of the Mystic Shrine held in Toronto during the past summer. As head of the reception committee, Mr. Henry took an active part in the making of arrangements for the convention and welcomed the delegates on behalf of the province and the local Shriners.

WOMAN OF LITTLE VALUE IN CONGO

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 17.—(By The Canadian Press)—Christmas, shopping for an African chief, provided he observed that holiday, would be a comparatively easy matter, for he would probably just trade one of his 400 wives in as down payment for a lovely hippopotamus hide or a shiny knife. Women are still valued about as lightly as this in the Congo, according to Miss G.F. Yerbury, who is an interesting guest in town for a few days.

Miss Yerbury, who was in Africa for a short missionary period under the World-Wide Evangelization Crusade, is at present doing deputation work in Canada and the United States, before returning to England. She also toured Australia and New Zealand prior to coming to this country. During the years since 1913, 60 missionaries have gone out and 80 churches and schools with kindergartens in many instances have been opened in the Belgium Congo. On one occasion, herself has seen the man who had 400 before he became a Christian. Wives, except the first one, are among the luxuries which African Christians must forego.

In speaking of the women of Africa, Miss Yerbury said that she considered it marvelous how eager they are to learn to read, and what wonderful things they have accomplished since they have realized that they are not merely goods and chattels of the men. Cannibalism, too, is dying out since the advent of the missionary, and Miss Yerbury has also talked with one man who has eaten over 100 humans, but is now very gracious and pleasant to meet.

The pygmies, Miss Yerbury spoke of as being remade like the gypsies. They are from three to four feet high, and live in small leaf huts in the middle of dense forests. In the early days they were very feral, and would run at the sight of another human, but now they even travel the main highway which the Belgium Government has made through the middle of its territory.

Besides the work in Africa, there are 25 Crusades, five of whom are women, in South Africa, preaching to 400 tribes of Indians. There are still 200,000,000 unreached.

WOULD HONOR LADY AUTHOR

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 17.—(By The Canadian Press)—If England had a poetess laureate, the honor should go to Edith Sitwell, declared G. Ellis, who gave an interesting talk on writers and their books at a meeting of the Hospital Libraries Book Club in the University Women's Club. Virginia Woolf was described as the most cultivated woman author, the only English one in history whose work had been accepted during her lifetime for compulsory reading for the Arts degree of the Sorbonne.

A CHRISTMAS PRESENT

Judge—"You are charged with being drunk and also acting disorderly on Christmas Eve. What is your name?"
Prisoner—"Donald Angus McGeorge."
Judge—"Oh, and who bought you the whiskey?"

"I'm sorry," said the hotel clerk to the strange couple who had registered, "but we haven't a room with bath. We can give you, however, a very nice room without one."
Turning to his companion the man very affectionately said, "Darling, they haven't a room with a bath. Would one without do darling?"
"Yes, sir."
