OTTAWA LETTER

By J. Watson MacNaught, M.P.
(Special To The Guardian)

The most interesting feature of the Ontario Provincial election was the almost uncanny accuracy of the Gallup Poll. On Saturday, the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion forecast that the Progressive Conservative party would get 45 per cent of the popular vote cast; the Liberal Party would get 28 per cent; the C.C.F. party would get 26 per cent and the other parties would get 1 per cent. The actual vote on Monday, gave the Progressive Conservative party 41.3 per cent of the total vote cast; the Liberal party 29.1 per cent of the vote, the C. C. F. party 26.9 per cent, and the other parties 2.7 per cent. This forecast maintained the high degree of accuracy of previous Gallup Poll forecasts. The Institute is always careful to point out that their forecasts are subject to a margin of error of four per cent. On this occasion the forecast was well within the margin of error.

It is rather amazing that the Liberals with 29.1 per cent of the popular vote were able to elect only twelve members while the C. C. F. party with only 26.9 per cent of the popular vote elected twenty-two members. The answer seems to be that the C. C. F. vote was concentrated for the most part in the large industrial areas such as Toronto, Hamilton and Windsor, while the Liberal vote was spread over the whole Province. The above results will in all probability stimulate the advocates of the single transferable vote. Most of the candidates elected did not have absolute majorities.

Two other significant features of the election were the C. C. F. gains in heretofore Tory Toronto and the Progressive Conservative gains in the heretofore Liberal Ottawa Valley. Many explanations are made for these unexpected changes. None that I have heard so far seems to be entirely satisfactory. The fact that the C. C. F. party can elect eleven out of fifteen members in Tory Toronto is causing no end of concern in the Progressive Conservative organization. Similarly the election of ten Progressive Conservatives in the eleven Ottawa Valley ridings is reason for much concern in the Liberal ranks.

The election of Reid Scott, 21 year old C.C.F. candidate in Toronto Beaches, establishes him as the youngest member ever elected to the Ontario Legislature. He recently graduated in Political Science and Economics at the University of Toronto. He will enter Osgoode Hall in the fall to continue his studies in law. Hitherto, the record was held by Farquhar Oliver, Liberal leader who was elected to the Legislature some twenty-two years ago at the age of twenty-two, he has been elected at every election since.

The personal defeat of George Drew in Hyde Park is not without some significance. I am inclined to think, however, that a personal defeat on the part of the leader is often inevitable. A good leader must devote most of his time to the ridings other than his own. This very often leads to his own personal defeat. Many predict that this personal defeat might seriously affect Mr. Drew's chances for the National Leadership, when next the Progressive Conservatives pick a new leader.

The referendum held last Thursday in Newfoundland was inconclusive in that no one of the three political choices offered to the voters won majority support. Consequently another test of public opinion will have to be held in about six weeks time, with the alternative narrowed to two: Union with Canada, or Responsible Government. It is to be hoped that the decision will be conclusive. Prime Minister King has stipulated that Newfoundlanders to secure entry into the Canadian Union "indicate clearly and beyond all possibility of misunderstanding their will that Newfoundland should become a Province of Canada."

The House in an effort to close by the end of June has commenced morning sittings. The House now meets at eleven a.m. on six, recesses until three a.m. until six, then recesses until eight and adjourns at eleven.

Probable dates on which this session will close are June 28th and July 3rd. The exodus of G. C. F. members to fight the Provincial election in Saskatchewan will materially shorten the session.

Mr. and Mrs. James Blaxland, Jr. were business visitors to the city on Wednesday.

Friends of Mrs. Somerled Kelly will regret to learn she has entered a Boston clinic for treatment.

The new cellar for the extension to the Catholic church at Morell, has been dug and work on the foundation will be started next week.

Rev. Francis P. Aylward, who was ordained here two weeks ago, has been on vacation in this vicinity since and celebrated Mass in the churches here in the mornings.

Despite the poor weather and poor fishing, this season in general is considerably better than last year. Veteran fishermen of one factory report more than five hundred cases put up to this date.

Miss Jean McAdam of the staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia, has returned from a vacation trip to Toronto where she spent some time with her sister Rita, who is a registered nurse, and also her brother Gerry, who is a patient in the Hospital.

Mr. Bill Aylward suffered a severe loss last week when one of his horses died. Hearing a noise in the stable during the night, Mrs. Aylward called her husband but thinking it was just the animals pawing the floor as was their habit, he did not go out until early morning when to his horror he found one of the horses had got its foot over the tie rope and fallen and died during the night.

The mission that opened in the Church of the Little Flower at Morell on Sunday has been well attended. The mission is being conducted by the Rev. Father Gleason, S.J., of Boston, Mass., a noted missionary. His work keeps

"STOP and THINK"

Before purchasing your potato sprayer Mr. Farmer, consider the following facts:

- Is my sprayer manufactured at home where all parts are easily accessible.
- Am I, by purchasing a sprayer, helping out the manufacturer in my home town, and helping to keep up home industry.
- Am I getting the best value for my money, and is factory service a worth-while consideration.

We believe if you will consider these facts you will purchase a Hall Sprayer which is manufactured in your home town.

"Come In and let's talk it over."
