A system similar to the Canadian soldiers' re-establishment board is in operation in the United States, coming under a different branch of the organization represented by Mr. Waite.

Despite press criticism in some quarters, the American soldiers and their dependents have been treated with the utmost consideration financially, Mr. Waite declared.

The payments have necessitated enormous tax burdens and no doubt some of the money has been wasted, but this it was impossible to prevent in so stupendous an undertaking.

It is the business of the Pension Board to see that the money is distributed justly, and officers and their dependents often hinder the work by presenting preposterous and even fraudulent claims.

Mr. Waite was a great friend of Mr. J. E. McEachen, a former Charlottetown man who achieved big success in the legal profession in New York, and who was an ex-chief of the Caledonian Club of that city.

CHAMPIONSHIPS AT MONTREAL ON SEPT. 6

(Canadian Press) MONTREAL, Aug. 30.—Almost three weeks of championship golf is due to start here on Sept. 6.

From then on will be staged here the Canadian Senior Golf Association's tournament from Sept. 6 to Sept. 8, the Canadian Ladies Golf Union second close championship (from Sept. 10 to Sept. 14) and the Canadian Ladies open championship (from Sept. 17 to Sept. 22).

The first two tournaments will take place at Dixie over the course of the Royal Montreal Golf Club and the ladies open over the Mount Bruno course. These tournaments include the busiest golf season ever enjoyed by Montreal as the Canadian Amateur golf championships were played at Kanawaki in July.

Since the senior men's tournament was inaugurated in 1918 the championship has been won each year by George S. Lyon, the Lambton ex-amateur champion. The annual international match between teams representing the Canadian Seniors and the United States Seniors for the cup given by the Duke of Devonshire when governor general of Canada takes place during this tournament. So far the United States representatives have won the trophy every year except 1918.

The Canadian Ladies closed championship fight calls for a qualifying medal round of 18 holes and the annual handicap and club team matches over the same route. On Sept. 11 will take place the senior round at match play of the championship proper the thirty-two best gross scores from the handicap match entering it and the driving approaching and putting competitions. For the rest of the week survivors in the various rounds will fight it out for the honor of competing in the championship finals on Friday, Sept. 14.

For the Ladies open the international flavor which has marked the tournaments for some years past is expected to be maintained though nothing definite as to entries from the United States and Great Britain has been forthcoming to date.

Notice to Editors:—The golf tournaments in Montreal from Sept. 6 to Sept. 22 will be covered by staff men.

Houlton Horses Won All Three Events Yesterday

HOULTON, Me., Aug. 30.—Rain in the morning cleared in time to run off the second day's card of the race at the Houlton Fair which went in straight heats. All were won by Houlton horses. Interest centered in the jurgor free for all, 2:09 class which was won by the veteran campaigner, Zom Q. (William) who was ridden by Earl King, another veteran took the 2:16 trot without much trouble and Peter Stillwell converted from a trotter took the 2:24 pace.

The old Grand Circuit pacer, Earl Jr., gave a sensational driver's performance plying the mile in 2:09:34 nearly down to his best mark, showing the first 1200 nobles from Bangor, Lewiston, and St. John temples were among the 10,000 people on the grounds.

ALL STARS HUMBLE MADISONS LAST EVENING, SCORE OF 10-6

Summerside Clinch Long End Last Night By Bunching Hits In Second - Teams Now Tied For Island Championship With Two Wins Each - Fifth Game To Be Played Either Here or In The Western Capital.

Bunched hits in the second inning, supplemented by a flock of Madison errors enabled the Summerside All Stars to go into a commanding lead last night and clinch the verdict by a score of 10 to 6.

Although his team-mates were somewhat ragged behind him in the early stages, Campbell the Madisons' flinger surely had a "night out" as his offerings in the second frame and before the "tea party" was over, nine runs were chalked up.

With excellent support behind him Monckley held the Madisons scoreless for the first three innings; Howatt a southpaw replacing him on the mound in the fourth.

With a ten to nil score looming big against them on the score board the locals opened in the fourth with a batting rally pushing two runs over. For the remainder of the six innings the Madisons by snappy fielding behind Campbell, held the winners scoreless while the locals in turn continued to lay on Howatt, hammering three more runs over in the fifth and one in the sixth.

The game had to be called here on account of darkness.

A Wonderful Trip

(Continued from Page One.) land the type changes to the old South American Indians who live in huts of grass and palm leaves along the river ways in all the simplicity of their savage ancestors.

The country is a mass of jungle, teeming with tropical life and with but scant clearings here and there where the native villages are situated. The dense forest could only be penetrated along the rivers, through thick masses of vegetation.

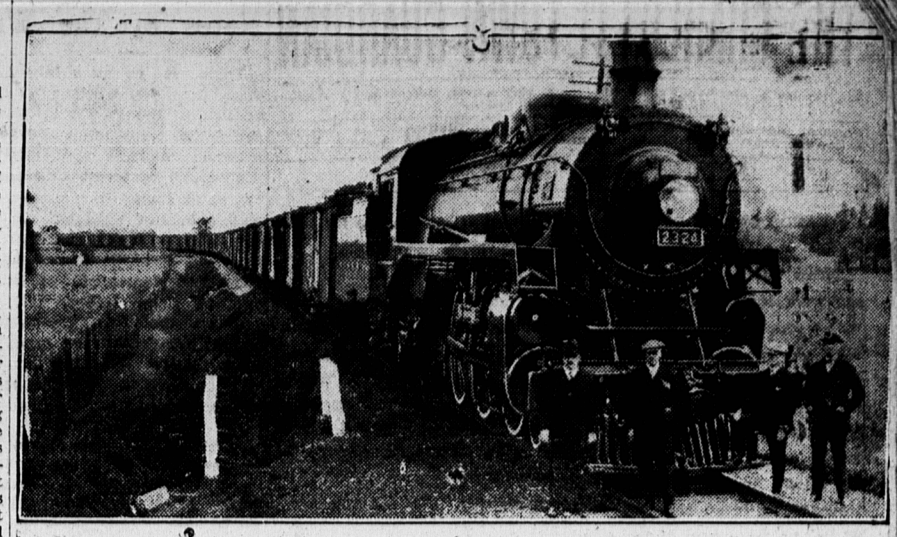

Mahogany, green heart and cedar trees grow to great height in the jungle. Surrounding the party as they journeyed upriver were innumerable giant creepers and brilliantly colored plants. Parrots, cockatoos and chattering monkeys thronged the forest. The river was infested with alligators and the natives amused the travellers by exhibiting their skill at lassoing these scaly monsters as they raised their ugly heads out of the water. Game was to be had in abundance. A jaguar, or South American tiger and two wild boars were shot by the party. The tiger was almost as large and quite as ferocious as the genuine African breed, and was killed with a rifle bullet at about seventy yards.

The South American jungle is the home of the boa constrictor and some specimens of this huge reptile were seen by the travellers, but from a comfortable distance. Snakes of all kinds, and multitudinous hordes of stinging insects, make life not altogether blissful in this paradise of nature. The rivers traversed abounded with fish, but of an unpalatable, scale-less kind. The crocodiles when caught by the natives are stuffed and sold on the coast.

Diamonds and Gold

In the interior the country is very rich in diamonds and gold. The natives have left the gold fields alone and are going after the diamonds, staking off claims and working up the streams, "panning" the mud and clay. Some in two years have made fortunes of from $50,000 to $300,000. These native miners can be seen strutting about the coast towns and vil-lages, sporting diamonds and gold nugget ear-rings. When they go on a "spree" nothing but champagne is good enough, and this they buy with a free hand, treating everybody within sight. There are a few Canadian and American miners, who are naturally working with the hope of realizing a fortune and returning home.

Several rapids had to be navigated in the trip upriver, which occupied fourteen days. Kaieteur Falls was the end of the journey, which was purely one of adventure and curiosity, and the party returned to the Coast by the way they had come, reaching Georgetown after about a month's absence. It was very hot on the coast.

Drawn by the latest type of Canadian Pacific passenger locomotive, the largest train of cars from the mill of the Abitibi Power and Pulp Co., Iroquois Falls, 42 in number, arrived in Toronto recently, en route to various newspapers in Canada and the United States.

scarcely ever under eighty in the shade, but they found it much cooler in the interior. The necessities of life are very cheap on the coast, and a whole bunch of bananas can be purchased for a shilling. In the diamond fields, however potatoes cost sixty cents a pound, flour a dollar a pound, and everything else in proportion. The natives test the diamonds they find by the simple process of placing them on a block of iron and striking them with a ten pound sledge; if they are good diamonds they simply leave a dint in the iron. Mr. Clark said he would like to see some of the diamonds sold in this country put to the same test. He priced a tiny, unpolished one which a native showed him and which looked for all the world like a bit of very dull and dirty glass. He was told it was worth $300.

From British Guiana the schooner left for Trinidad. They were interested in examining the Trinidad ditch lake, which has an area of about ten square miles and contains pitch deposits sufficient to supply the world.

In the Volcanic Section

On the way home a call was made at St. Pierre, Martinique where, twenty-five years ago, a disastrous volcanic eruption occurred. It is said that out of forty thousand only one negro escaped in this disaster, and he was in jail at the time. A new town is being built up about two miles further down the coast. A number of other islands were sighted on the return voyage, and from several volcanic smoke could be seen coming from the sides of mount-

There were many other witnesses subpoenaed for the Crown but at the evening session of the court it was suggested by the Court that the parties might get together and agree upon a settlement. This was done and a tentative settlement was made. It is expected that this settlement will be confirmed and litigation concluded. It is understood that Mrs. Hale will receive $3000 and the Crown will pay expenses.

Tentative Settlement Reached in Hale Case

The Point of Contact

HERE'S a simple catch in the familiar phrase that tells how the world beats a path to the door of the man who makes a better mouse-trap.

The maker of anything, if he is to win the plaudits of the world, must not only manufacture a superior product but must also let folks know of his achievements. He must point out just why his mouse-trap, his automobile or his shaving cream is better than his neighbor's. He must advertise.

Advertising is the point of contact between the man who makes something and the man who wants something. Through an advertisement, a manufacturer can tell you in a few short minutes all you want to know about the article or the service he has to offer.

This newspaper is constantly full of ideas that other men and women have thought out for your personal benefit. Fail to read the advertisements and you remain in ignorance of countless products that would make life easier, happier and more interesting for you and your entire family.

Advertising gives you news of the latest and best things made—with word as to what they will do, what they cost and where to get them. Think of all you miss when you overlook the advertisements.

Read them regularly—every day
