"For Me And My Gal"
Story Of Vaudeville Stars Judy Garland

Judy Garland and clever players of today carry audiences back to the glories of the vaudeville of yesterday in a vivid romance with the variety as a glittering background. "For Me and My Gal" shows the Prince Edward Theatre coming Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The picture serves to introduce to the screen Gene Kelly, New York stage sensation in "Pal Joey," as her latest partner. Miss Garland plays her first adult role and aside from intriguing song and dance appearances has poignant dramatic episodes which she handles compellingly.

The story opens in small time vaudeville in 1915, with Miss Garland as a young singer; Kelly as a clown juggler. They find a song hit, become partners, fall in love, and now to marry when they achieve that ambition of all vaudevillians, and play the Palace Theatre in New York.

Their courtship is amid various vaudeville acts in various theatres. Then the World War starts, and Kelly is called on the eve of their triumph, a Palace engagement. Desperate, he tries to delay the call by injuring his hand; is renounced by

NIGHT FLIER

Dark night—the blue-black heavens gowned with stars—
The changeless, age-old stars—by God first flung
Into that awful void—worlds that eternal praises. Now the great God Mars
Has thrust his hosts into that untracked world.
And gallant Youth must follow to new fields;
Not now with keen, sharp blades and shining shields;
From swift, air-cleaving wings is battle hurled.
Through that dark sky we watched two dim stars climb—
We knew not what they were, but their heights sublime.
He seemed one with the stars—a Star that reeled
So strangely through that silent, glittering field.
Seeking new skill to meet the great God Mars.
He soared there, free—alone—

THE WOMAN'S TEMPERANCE CRUSADE

In 1874, the Crusade began, under the inspiration of the Spirit. Suddenly as by magic, armies of dedicated women filled the streets of the cities and towns of Ohio, going from one saloon to another singing, praying, pleading with the owners and all the eloquence of their mother-hearts. The movement went like wildfire over the land, and in fifty weeks the liquor traffic out of two hundred and fifty towns and villages.

It was this Crusade that brought Mrs. Ward, the first woman General President to devote all her gifts to temperance work.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Dear White Ribboners:—
The past twelve months and I hope every Union has celebrated, especially in a Young People's gathering. Frances Willard's plans for the young are still alive. The young are still active. We rejoice that some definite gains have been made in liquor restriction. And the warnings from the destruction of our way of life (Christ's birthday) and the New Year had its effect on liquor drinking.

May this come when the law will not allow people to buy beverage alcohol and that materials will not be wasted in its production.

A resolution asking that ALCOHOL IN BOND BE REVOKED.

Why should the Government have a duty to protect the health of its citizens? It is with a sad heart we record the death of Mrs. James McPherson, a true White Ribboner, who died in a hospital in London, England, after a long illness. Who will take up her torch?

ADDRESS BY HIS Eminence CARDINAL VILLENEUVE

This is the substance of the address delivered by His Eminence (Cardinal Villeneuve) at Palais Montclair, in Quebec.

There remains little to be said after so clear and so persuasive, of the chairman, who merely to emphasize certain points.

Many there are who will admit the necessity of alcohol, but only DRUNKARDS take it in excess. Unless a man is rolling drunk on the street or the roadway, they are not drunkards. They are only GENTLEMEN—I do not dare to say like a lady. This is an equivocation called alcoholism. It is the disease of the drunkard, and it is applied to alcoholism. There are many men who are alcoholics and yet whom one would never think of calling drunkards. In the vulgar sense, but the effects, psychological, physical and moral are equal in both cases. Indeed with the moderate drinker they are often graver than with the man who drinks heavily but only periodically. IT IS HABITUAL USAGE OF ALCOHOL, OR OF DRINKING WITH A STRONG ALCOHOL BASE SUCH AS BEER AND NORTH COUNTRY WINE, WHICH ORIGINATES ALCOHOLISM.

Another thing I should like to underline: Nothing is not an abuse, may believe, alcoholism is increasing at an alarming rate. And there are to be considered also the evil effects of alcoholism. For example, it is not acromioclavicular, but it is "not acromioclavicular" in way in which alcoholism among women is penetrating our society. Formerly one looked for this only in certain strata of society, but today it has become general.

One must deplore, also, alcoholism among our military men. I am sure that this aberration, bordering on treason. Many are persuaded that we cannot secure recruits for the army unless they are furnished with opportunity to drink. As Dr. Pope remarked recently, one may say it is true, secure recruits in this way, but one cannot expect them to make good soldiers. I admire their ideals and their heroism. But one cannot help but feel that the use of alcohol in the army is a form of treason to one's country.

There is another thing about this thing that is lamentable and that is the indifference with which it is generally regarded. It is this inertia, this indifference that we have to combat. There remain to be passed laws which can only be brought about by a change in public opinion—a change of opinion which will force our lawmakers to meet the law with regard to curbing this evil. Each of us must do his or her duty in this respect.

May I ask for the assistance of you all? Alcoholism is one of our most pressing problems. Consider it as affecting personally. Work in the spirit of an apostle, the good Samaritan who does not pass by on the other side, but makes his own contribution to what he can do to combat this evil. From his sermons

ERRORS IN ENGLISH

Spoonfuls, spoons full: The words are distinctive. Spoonfuls means one or more spoons; spoons full means several spoons filled over.

Stationary, stationery: Stationary is remaining in one place or position; stationery, writing materials in general.

Party person: Except in legal terminology, person is preferable; party means, in general, an entertainment.

If he overcame him the fiend, would tell him what he wished to know.

How did the King fare in his fight with the Elf Knight?

Ans. He was successful in his fight. Also in learning what he wished to know. But received a slight wound on the face.

What was the result of this fight?

Ans. He learned that he was to defeat the Norsemen, and also saw much of the future of Scotland. He defeated the Norsemen when they went home.

10. In what way did the King pay for his adventure?

Ans. Every year afterwards his wound would bleed and on the night on which he had fought with the Elf Knight.

1. How has the author emphasized the smallness of the Kusa-Hibari?

Ans. He gives us the size of the cage then tells us what it can do in this space and how hard it is to see. Later he compares it, in size to a mosquito.

2. When does the Kusa-Hibari sing?

Ans. All night.

3. Had this insect ever known the open fields?

Ans. No. It had been born and bred in captivity.

4. How did it come about that Kusa-Hibari died?

Ans. He was on holiday and the maid who was left to look after Kusa-Hibari was so anxious to keep it alive so when its usual food was finished did not bother to feed it.

5. When did it sing the sweetest?

Ans. The evening before it died.

THE SABBATH

"Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy." Exod. 20-8 How often we hear this. "The times have changed." Yet God's laws have not changed. The law of gravity has not changed, for it still remains true that he who walks off the edge of a roof winds up with a broken neck. Neither has the law of liquids nor the law of colors. And the law of the Sabbath—God said it in the beginning of time — "It is a perpetual ordinance." Some things are eternally established; the Sabbath is one of these. Man's physical well-

THE EDUCATIONAL HORIZON
—A SATURDAY FEATURE—
PRESENTING NEWS AND VIEWS OF INTEREST TO TEACHERS AND ALL OTHERS SEEKING IMPROVEMENT IN EDUCATION

THE INTERESTED BOY

In the home of the boy who is interested we find a child with an active and inquisitive mind. He asks many questions, some the result of his day's work at school, some prompted by his father's and mother's discussion or reading, other the result of his observations in the home or on his way to and from school; still others have arisen because of his own thinking and discussions with his playfellows. We admire his interest and alertness. We realize that he has been given right and with a little direction will continue right. Instinctively we think of the successful professional and business men whom we have known as having been just such boys, retaining all the years the habits and traits of early boyhood. Inquiry reveals the fact that this boy has been blessed with teachers who helped him most by leading him to observe and investigate subjects and questions, and to think in short, to do for himself. We also learn what is far more important—that this boy is constantly encouraged along his lines of study by an interested father and mother, who are never too busy to answer his questions, and who provide him with the means for self help and improvement.

THE SCHOOL

In passing a School let us pause for a moment to think what that school means to humanity. Recall the long dark centuries, when the masses were kept in ignorance when greed and oppression ruled the world with an iron hand. From the very beginning of man's struggle for knowledge, self-respect, and the recognition of his inalienable rights, the school has been his greatest ally. We refer to the school as "common" because it belongs to us all. It is ourselves working together in the education of our children. But it is a most uncommon institution. It is civilization's greatest gift to democracy.

NATURE

Rodents are gnawing animals. The teeth of rodents continue to grow out of the jaw; see: Rat, Rabbit, rat, squirrel.

Quadrupeds are four-footed animals. Some are herbivorous (living on plants); horses, sheep; some carnivorous (living on flesh); wolves, foxes; some omnivorous (living on both plants and flesh); pigs.

Preparation of animals for the winter: (1) Some go south. (Nearly all birds, some bats and butterflies).

was lifted. Russian troops had captured the fortified city of Soniusselburg, some twenty-five miles to the east, where the German based their inland line around the city of Leningrad.

Tripoli. Capital Tripoli, North Africa, on Mediterranean Sea; caravan centre; carpets, tobacco factory. The British flag was raised over Tripoli on January 23rd. The British Eighth Army moved from El Alamein to Tripoli — almost twelve hundred miles in 10 weeks. Most of the British supply problems will become relatively simple as a result of the possession of Tripoli. The British are now out of the desert and in a district where food and water are plentiful and transportation services available. The valuable air bases of Tripoli will be available to the Allies.

Easton-on-Deer Town, port. N. Caucasian area, U.S.S.R., the route to the Caucasus. It has been recaptured by the Russians Feb. 17. It exports wheat, iron and wool. Manufactures include flour, ropes, tobacco, boots and shoes; important fisheries.

Kurak. N. Russia north of the Ural. Rich in minerals; numerous streams; rye, oats, potatoes, hemp, wheat, millet, beetroot; sugar, oil, flax, flour, mulling, sugar refining; 17,266 square miles. The capital of it is Kurak. Kurak has been recently captured by the Russians. It exports soap, tobacco, cotton; has distilleries, iron foundries, and flour mills.

The Russian Front. At the dawn of the new year, two great battles were under way in Russia. One was taking place northwest of Moscow. The objective was to save the German lines of communication from Leningrad south to Rabin. The other was taking place east of Moscow. The objective was to ingrad with its objective the capture of Rostov and the trapping of the 2,000,000 German and Axis troops in the Don Bend and the Caucasus. Before Moscow, the Red Army pushed ahead. Velikiye Luki fell only after the German armor in the town has been wiped out. Velikiye Luki is located on the Riga-Moscow railroad, only 90 miles from the Latvian frontier. The railroad was one of the German's most important supply routes through Riga to the Moscow and Leningrad fronts.

PITCH, TAR, RESIN AND TURPENTINE

The stumps and roots of the pine, larch, etc., are heated in ovens and the gases and liquids which are driven off are collected. Among the condenser products, one of the chief is tar, which on further distilling leaves a residue of pitch.

From certain pine trees in Europe and in the Southern States a thick liquid exudes or is obtained by tapping the tree. This liquid is turpentine. When turpentine is heated strongly, a gas is driven off and condensed. This is the well-known liquid spirits of turpentine. The residue left in the vessel is resin or rosin. The name turpentine is frequently given to spirits of turpentine.

PEPPER, GINGER, ALLSPICE, CINNAMON AND VANILLA

Pepper. There are several kinds of pepper. Black pepper is the dried berry of a climbing vine, which is picked before it is ripe. To obtain white pepper the same berry is allowed to ripen, the skin and pulp are removed, and the seed is dried. Black and white pepper are usually ground before they are used. The greatest quantity of pepper is grown in the East Indies and Malaya; some comes from the West Indies. Cayenne pepper is entirely different plant. It is the ground pod of a staminate, which is grown in the same regions as the other kinds of pepper.

Ginger is the dried underground stem of a reed-like tropical plant. This product comes from both the West and the East Indies, and also from Western Tropical Africa. Being being used as a spice, it is candied and used as a sweetener.

Allspice is the dried, unripened berry of an evergreen tree growing in the West Indies. The chief supplies come from Jamaica.

Cinnamon is the inner bark of the younger branches of a tree which grows in the East Indies and the West Indies. The best quality and the largest quantity comes from Ceylon. Interior cinnamon is grown in the West Indies and the East Indies. Vanilla is an extract from the long pods of a climbing tropical orchid, which grows most abundantly in Mexico and some of the tropical islands. The beans, which are sometimes ten inches long, are allowed to ferment and are then soaked in the Crotton oil, which solves the substances which are so pleasant to taste and smell. This solution is bottled and sold as an extract of vanilla.

HISTORY

THE NATIONAL POLICY, 1873

At this time a wave of depression had overtaken Canada. The Americans dumped their goods into this country and many Canadians went bankrupt. Sir John A. Macdonald saw that a small goods coming into this country, Canadian industries would be stimulated, home buying would be encouraged, and the government introduced in the next year the protective tariff or the National Policy which was the basis of the Conservative platform.

THE OREGON TREATY, 1846

The Oregon territory was situated between the Rocky Mountains on the east and the Pacific Ocean on the west and on the Spanish boundary in latitude 42 degrees to Alaska on the north. This territory was claimed by Britain because it had been coasted in the eighteenth century by Captain Cook. A settlement had been founded on the Columbia Sound on Vancouver Island by Captain Menzies. Captain Vancouver had also skirted the coast, and went up the Columbia river where he raised the British flag. Hudson Bay Company's employees had been the only settlers of this territory until the arrival of the Americans in 1811. Robert Gray, an American Captain, had discovered the Columbia river and descended to its mouth. This boundary question was settled by the Oregon Treaty by which the boundary was to run along the 49th parallel to the water's edge and then to dip southward so as to give Great Britain all of Vancouver Island.
