NEW ZEALAND OWES TURF GRASS INDUSTRY TO NOVA SCOTIA

New Zealand owes its crop of turf grass to the fact of the emigration of Scotch settlers from Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, Canada, to the Waipatu district in New Zealand around 1851, states the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways. In that year these Scotch settlers built a barque called the "Margaret" of 236 tons and the leadership of their pastor, Rev. Norman McLeod, and set sail for Australia. Their mattresses were stuffed with natural grass. Finding this in their liking they landed on New Zealand, and the contents were thrown out with the rest of the barque into the ground, grew and spread throughout the Waipatu district. There is a great demand for the grass and the contents of the barque have attained considerable success in the cultivation of seed. Prince Edward Island grows a superior seed and it commands a premium over the New Zealand and German strains.

Erin's Dialect Not To Be Used For Oppression

By Joseph Denigan.
DUBLIN, Irish Free State, April 16.—Legal documents served in the Irish language unaccompanied by a translation can be ignored, according to a ruling of the Free State Supreme Court. This, it is believed, will be a check on certain persons who are disposed to make mischief and embarrass their fellow citizens under the cloak of nationality and patriotism.

ONLY ONE ROYAL STANDARD IN CANADA

There is only one real Royal Standard in Canada and it is in St. Paul's Church, Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada's "westernmost Abbey," states the Tourist Department of the Canadian National Railways. It belongs to the Society of Royal British Veterans. The right to use the standard was granted to the society, which dates from the Crimean War, by Queen Victoria and during her reign it was unfurled on all official occasions. The privilege was retained in the reign of King Edward VII who decreed it could be flown only in the presence of Royalty.

WEDDING BELLS—A MARRIAGE

of interest to many friends took place when Dorothy Elizabeth Gosbee of Guernsey Cove became the bride of Clifford Stanley Jackson of Cape Breton, on the evening of Saturday April 14th, at the Parsonage, Murray Harbor. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gosbee of Guernsey Cove, and the groom's parents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Jackson. The happy couple were attended by Miss Florence Stewart and Mr. LeRoy White, both of Murray Harbor. Rev. T. R. Goudge performed the ceremony.

MRS. BONNELL IN ACCIDENT

Many home friends will regret to learn that Mrs. Bonnell, wife of Rev. Dr. S. J. Bonnell of Winnipeg, was in a severe accident last week. Mrs. Bonnell was accidentally hit by a car and had her left leg fractured which will keep her confined to her room for several weeks. She is now recovering at the home of her husband who is coming east to address the Pine Hill students in Halifax and to preach in his old charge in Saint John, N. B. The accident will curtail Dr. Bonnell's visit as he will hurry home and not visit Charlottetown as planned.

Montreal Company Expands Operations
LALLEMAND'S YEAST NOW AVAILABLE TO PUBLIC
Back of many successful businesses, there is often an interesting story and in an interview Mr. Fred Lallemand Jr., outlined something of the story of the success, the growth of the Fred A. Lallemand Company, a story bound up with that of years. Founded in Montreal in 1853, the Company until just now has sold its yeast only to bakers, confectioners, etc. Its business has grown steadily as this trade approximates the purity, the uniform high quality of Lallemand's Yeast, the splendid system of distribution built up to insure quick delivery, its reputation—fresh—in perfect condition—across Canada, from the Atlantic to the Rocky Mountains.
As the years went by, Mr. Lallemand said, the Company witnessed the growth of the public of the health building properties of fresh yeast. Vitamins became an absorbing subject of study and of talk—they were found in the yeast, the uniform high quality of Lallemand's Yeast, the splendid system of distribution built up to insure quick delivery, its reputation—fresh—in perfect condition—across Canada, from the Atlantic to the Rocky Mountains.
