WILSON AND THE TRUST PROBLEM

(Canadian Press.) WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—President Wilson desires the proposed Bills dealing with the trust problem phrased in such a manner as not to conflict with the decisions already rendered in the Supreme Court of the United States on the Sherman anti-trust law, that their efficiency be neither impaired nor complicated, but probably supplemented. Callers at the White House were informed that this was the principle matter of the conference with Attorney-General McReynolds. The President still regards the bill as creating an interstate trade. The commission is the central figure in the trust programme. He said that his recent study of this state creating a bureau of corporations convinced him that the bureau had greater powers than was generally realized. He believed the commissions should include the bureau of corporations and that additional duties be given the commission.

COLLEGE MAN IN RAILWAY WORK

(Canadian Press.) MONTREAL, Feb. 18.—That the system of special college training for the man who intends entering railway work, though still on probation, is gradually justifying its inauguration and turning out the proper class of men, was the conclusion arrived at in a paper contributed before the Canadian Railway Club in the Windsor Hotel by Mr. John S. Hall, a student in the department of railway at McGill University. Despite many adverse criticisms attributed to some prominent railway men throughout the continent, the consensus of opinion of the practical railway men attending the meeting, most of whom had risen to posts of responsibility simply through their own efforts and with no other training than that afforded in actual railway work, was with the conclusion arrived at by Mr. Hall.

Mr. Hall is the youngest man to have taken part in the discussions of the local railway club, and is the first student in a college railway course to contribute a paper. In his treatment of the subject, he quoted from both hostile and friendly authorities, the result of which was to show that in the last analysis, success or failure of the college man in railway work would depend entirely on his own native ability and his own initiative in acquiring as thorough a practical training in the shops as the theoretic and technical training he had in college. The college training, however, was equivalent to giving the man with ability a running start, and his impression was that the technically trained man, given equal ability with the non-technical man, would fense ahead much more thoroughly and rapidly than the latter. The great lesson for the college man to learn was that even though he had technical education, he must still start at the bottom in railway work, the same as the other apprentices, in order to acquire the practical side of the business; that he

DEAN OF CANTERBURY FEARS FOR CHURCH OF ENGLAND

(Canadian Press.) TORONTO, Feb. 20.—A Mail and Empire special from London says in connection with the Kikuyu controversy, that the Very Rev. Henry Waco, Dean of Canterbury, has raised in an impassioned manner a cry that the English Church is in danger from Romanizing tendencies. He told a convocation in Westminster that the present is the most critical period in the history of the Church of England since the Reformation. The deepest controversies that ever divided the Church are now in progress. He said there was an active and powerful body of clergy avowedly aiming to bring ceremonial and doctrines into harmony with the Church of Rome. They had advocated the reintroduction of the doctrine of the invocation of Saints and worship of the Virgin.

BIG FIRE AT LACHUTE

LACHUTE, February 18.—A fire broke out at ten o'clock this morning, completely destroying the roping walk of Thomas W. Bannerman, the loss being valued from $50,000 to $60,000. Although the origin of the fire is unknown, it is thought that it has been set accidentally by a man who, at the time, was employed throwing pipes which were in the building. The factory was a four-story stone building, and all that remained of it after six hours of incineration were the four walls, all the interior having been reduced to ashes. Although there were 25 men working in the building when the fire broke out, no accidents occurred, every one succeeding in making his way out before the flames had time to spread. The volunteer fire brigade of the Lachute Shuttie Company were summoned, but their efforts were in vain. A large quantity of oil which was in the place was the cause of the blaze and all the water thrown on the burning factory proved ineffective. The fire spread to the outer sheds, which were also completely destroyed. The fire lasted until 4 p.m., when the whole factory was nothing but a pile of smoking debris.

MANITOBA MINISTER LEAVES FOR HOT SPRINGS

must co-ordinate the theoretical and the practical, and, above all, he must possess his soul in patience and not expect too rapid advancement. Dean Adams and Professor Kay, of McGill University, who participated in the discussion following the reading of the paper, supported Mr. Hall's contention that the railway course in college was just what the suits already apparent, though they claimed that as the course was still in an experimental stage, judgment could not be passed. Counting that a university course, with special training, could not be amiss for any calling in life, Dean Adams remarked that he hoped to see the university some day touch every section of the community. Others present expressed the opinion that college men in railway work had been unjustly criticized in that too much had been expected of them. From the mere fact that they were professionally trained they had been expected to do things that in another man would not be expected except after years of experience. They represented a class numbering thousands only, had been unfairly compared to the few individuals of exceptionally native ability who had climbed from among millions to the very highest positions in the railway world.

The game was scheduled to start at 2.30 p. m., but did not start until 3.15 p. m., on account of some of the players being unavoidably detained, consequently the last half of the game had to be played in a blind, snowstorm. In the first half the teams were very evenly matched. The Victoria players profited by their defeat of Monday, previous, and got in some good combination work. The score for the first half ended 1-1. Just before time was called for the first half, the storm started and by the time the teams lined up for the second half the storm had greatly increased, and the Victoria boys had to play against the rubber, however, time and again to the Tryon goal, but failed to score, owing to the fine stops made by the goal tender. In this half Tryon scored 2, Victoria 0. The score at the end of the game being 3-1 in favor of Tryon. Fred W. Snow acted as Referee. Charles Buxton as judge of play. The lines were Thomas McNeill and Fred Linnar; goal umpire were John Lyman and Harry Clark. The line-up was as follows: Victoria Goal William Peters Point Wesley Clark Cover Point Charles H. SUBMERGED TUBE JOINING IRELAND AND SCOTLAND IS CHICAGO MAN'S PROPOSAL

LONDON, Feb. 18.—In order to link Scotland with Ireland, H. C. Tyrrel, a Chicago engineer, has proposed to construct a submerged tube as a remedy for Ireland's unrest. He suggests that a tube carrying a double track railway could be constructed between Black Head and Port Patrick for about $25,000,000. This tube would have a length of twenty miles. It would be drilled through the rock beneath the water, owing to the expense and also owing to the engineering difficulties which would be created by the mid-channel but it would lie in quiet water, free depression known as Branford's Dyke, from the effect of wind and wave, and would be supported continuously in a manner which would provide a minimum of bridging strength.

BROCKVILLE WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH WHEN LAMP EXPLODED

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Feb. 18.—In a fire that destroyed the home of Peter Quinn this morning, his mother, aged about sixty-five years, who came here yesterday from Verona, on a visit, was burned to death. The old lady was descending a stairway carrying a small grandchild, and holding a lamp in one hand, and holding the child in the other, when the lamp fell off and ignited a pile of clothing. Mrs. Quinn passed the child over to its mother and returned upstairs for some money in a drawer. In the meantime the flames cut off her escape by the stairs, and when she appeared at a bedroom window she was noticed to fall backwards, having been overcome by smoke. All attempts to rescue Mrs. Quinn failed. No trace of the body can be found. Messrs Ben Weeks and Waldon Bertran, Fredericton, spent the week-end visiting friends in Pleasant Valley.

KING PRAISES THE CHURCH WORK OF THE ARMY IN BRITAIN

LONDON, February 18.—The King has long been interested directly in the work of the Church Army, a Church of England organization along the lines of the Salvation Army. This morning His Majesty gave a special audience at Buckingham Palace to Prebendary Carlile, chief of the Church Army, and closely questioned him as to the progress of the work. The Rev. Mr. Carlile, among several other instances of the work, narrated the case of a former pickpocket, who had just stopped him outside the Palace and asked him to show the King his bankbook, having $40 credit, being the savings of thirteen years of honest work, to which the Church Army had assisted him. His last day of crime was on the occasion of the late King Edward's coronation, when he stole thirty-two watches and amused the King with the ex-thief's hard work and present condition. His Majesty declared that hard work was good for any one, high or low, and in conclusion gave Rev. Mr. Carlile the following message: "I am rejoiced to hear of the redemption of the number of prisoners and vagrants throughout the country and I have no doubt that the Church Army and other voluntary agencies have helped materially towards this good result. "I feel the greatest sympathy towards those who have made a slip in life and are now without the means or the character to work their way back to good citizenship through their labor with the aid of the devoted workers, on whose self-denying efforts I invoke richest blessings."

THE GARRET OF THE YEAR

(Frank L. Stanton, in Atlanta Constitution.) I've packed my troubles out of sight—all idle hopes and fears. High in the chimney's steeple of the year, The ghosts of griefs of other days—old time-worn sorrows gray, And the heart's doors are open wide and Joy has come to stay.

THE GARRET OF THE YEAR

I pass from all the shadows of the long-enduring night; I meet the Morning on the hills—a brother to its light, What gain have I for all the years where weeping Memory dwells? The New Year day shall greet me with the song of all the bell!

THE GARRET OF THE YEAR

The dreams that come a-sighing, with not one cheering gleam, Within the dusty silence they shall dream out their dreams; Life is too sweet for sorrow—too wondrous bright for tears; I leave them to the shadows of the year, the year,
