Who would have supposed that a partition of sheet lead would prove less effective in cutting off the passage of sound than a partition of glass of equal thickness? One instinctively expects his voice to be carried through a sheet of glass to the ears of a person seen sitting on the other side, while lead might well be thought to exercise a deadening effect on sound.

Set plants into freshly turned soil so that moist earth will come into contact with the fine roots. A rainy or at least a cloudy day late in the afternoon is a favorable time. Make the hole about the depth of the root, insert plant and press the earth closely and firmly to the roots. In dry weather press the soil with the foot, and then go over lightly with a rake to stir the surface and to hold in the moisture. Keep the plants wet during setting. Ten minutes of wilting either before or after setting would often settle the fate of the plant.
